A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Do you remember the last time you were seriously ill? Do you remember how when you were headed back toward recovery the days of convalescence seemed to drag? During these days the visits and telephone calls from friends and relatives were most appreciated. Weren't these red-letter days in your life? Think for a moment of the many folks hereabout who are facing solid months and years of invalidism. It takes a particular and superior quality of red brevity to be cheerful under such circumstances.

Our thought today is that if all of us who are blessed with good health would take the time in our busy everyday schedule to call or pay a friendly visit to someone we know who is a "shut-in" we would be doing an understanding kindness to a less fortunate human being.

And, just perhaps, in return, we might absorb something of the invalid's patience, forbearance, tolerance, understanding and bravery...

Cultural Commission Concerts To Start July 4

The Quincy South Shore Cultural Commission, a non-profit organization, will be sponsoring its eighth summer concert programs at the Ruth Gordon Amphitheatre beginning July 4.

The program began in the summer of 1983 on the lawn in front of City Hall and relocated to the amphitheatre following the rededication of the amphitheatre by the City of Quincy.

Donations are received through sponsorship, an ad book and small contributions. The City Arts Lottery also participates yearly.

The program this year has been booked since January and will feature a variety of music that includes the popular Army and Navy showbands.

The president of the Commission, Joseph LaRaia said that expenses have been curtailed this year to ensure that a program will be held.

Bus service, which has been available for groups, will be discontinued mainly due to its limited use in previous years.

Donations have already been received from solicitations, which, LaRaia said, "is very encouraging in light of budget limitations in the public and private sector."

CITY OF QUINCY IN COUNCIL

ORDERED:

January 16, 1990

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF QUINCY AS FOLLOWS:

THAT THE REVISED ORDINANCES OF THE CITY OF QUINCY, 1976, AS AMENDED, BE FURTHER AMENDED AS FOLLOWS: IN CHAPTER 16, SEWERS, FAULTS AND CESSPOOLS, DELETE THE PRESENT ARTICLE III, EFFECTIVE APRIL 1, 1990 AND INSERT AFTER ARTICLE II, SEWERS, THE FOLLOWING ARTICLE:

ARTICLE III SEWER USE ORDINANCE Section 14 CALCULATIONS OF SEWER USE RATES

The City shall amend the Ad Valorem Sewer Use Fee for use of the City's sewerage system effective with bills rendered on and after April 1, 1990. Such fee shall be collected in the following manner from the following three classes of users:

1. MAJOR INDUSTRIAL USERS

Users who discharge more than 25,000 gallons per day into the sewerage system shall be classified as Major Industrial Users. These users shall pay their share of wastewater management costs in proportion to their actual use of the sewerage system. Users in this class shall be charged based on the actual metered discharge to the sewer system or actual water usage, whichever is deemed applicable by the Commissioner of Public Works.

2. TAX EXEMPT USERS

Users who are exempt from Real Estate taxes shall be classified as tax-exempt users. Users in this classification shall pay their share of wastewater management costs in proportion to their actual use of the sewerage system. Users in this class shall be charged based on their actual metered discharge to the sewer system or actual water usage, whichever is deemed applicable by the Commissioner of Public Works.

3. SMALL COMMERCIAL AND RESIDENTIAL USERS

Users who are not exempt from Real Estate taxes and who do not discharge more than 25,000 gallons per day of sewage into the sewerage system shall be classified as small commercial and residential users. Each user shall pay their share of wastewater management costs in proportion to their actual use of the sewerage system. Users in this class shall be charged based on their actual metered discharge to the sewer system or actual water usage, whichever is deemed applicable by the Commissioner of Public Works. Sewer Use Fees shall be reviewed at least annually to reflect changes in operating costs and revenue requirements.

1. Total annual sewer use charges for each user shall be based upon the best available measurement or estimate of each user's contribution to wastewater flows in the City of Quincy, prorated against estimated total annual wastewater flow in the Quincy sewer system.

2. The Mayor shall annually approve, subject to the recommendation of the Commissioner of Public Works, a base sewer use rate expressed as dollars (and fraction) per hundred cubic feet of wastewater discharge. Said rates may include a rate structure designed to encourage conservation by way of an inclining block rate if so authorized by Regulations of the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority.

3. For those users whose wastewater flows are not metered or otherwise reliably measured, the Commissioner shall use related measures such as metered water usage, the best professional judgement, in determining each user's contribution.

The Commissioner may require metering or another form of measurement of any user's contribution to wastewater flow at the expense of the user when in his judgment there is no other reasonable means of establishing or estimating that contribution and the cost of so metering or measuring is not unreasonable.

Sheets Speaker At QCA Meeting

Mayor James Sheets will be the guest speaker at the Quincy Citizens Association meeting tonight (Thursday) at 8 p.m. at the Beechwood

Community Life Center, 225 Fenn St., Wollaston.

QCA and interested residents are encouraged to attend to hear the mayor's plans for the city in the next two years. The Association will also discuss with him matters it feels need his attention.

The monthly QCA meeting will follow the refreshment break. Items on the agenda are:

- The effects of the new sewer user fee.

- If the MWRA has already given out a $57 million contract for the "temporary" sludge plant at the shipyard, how are we ever going to prevent the plant from becoming permanent?

- How can Quincy save money to prevent high taxes (if the state drastically cuts aid to cities and towns)?

Take Efforts To Washington Broadmeadows Students Continue Campaign To Free Prisoners

Students at Quincy's Broadmeadows Middle School have been on a good news-bad news roller coaster recently.

The ride began last fall when the students wrote 358 letters to the Yugoslavian government, asking to free 18-year-old Nafije Zandeli. She and four of her classmates were arrested and put in prison in October, 1988 for peacefully protesting that they be taught in their native Albanian language in school.

For most of the winter, the students heard nothing.

Then, two weeks ago, they learned Nafije had been released after being imprisoned for 16 months. However, their joy for Nafije quickly turned into concern for the other four young Yugoslavians still behind bars.

Two Broadmeadows students, Cheri Brennan and Julie Lai, learned of Nafije's release during a recent trip to Washington, D.C. The news of her release provided a mini coaster ride of its own, noted Broadmeadows teacher and advisor Ronald Adams.

He and two students were in the nation's capital to help deliver some 3,500 release letters to the Yugoslavian Embassy. The letters, which included those written by Broadmeadows students, were part of a correspondence campaign to free Nafije.

Most of the letters were written by students in New England. Some came from as far away as Bermuda and Indiana.

Adams and the students also wanted information on Nafije's status. However, the embassy wouldn't comment. The embassy also didn't initially take the letters because of safety reasons.

The student became frustrated. "We were getting nowhere," Adams said.

However, they then met up with Senator John Kerry on the steps of the Capitol. He told them that he had news and he wanted to know if they had learned anything. Adams and the students said no.

"But then (Senator Kerry) said, 'We've learned that (Nafije) has been released,'" Adams explained. "There was a two-second delay reaction.

The students then jumped up and down and yelled. "Cheri said 'This is great news' and Julie said, 'I'll never be surprised by anything again.'"

"It was just a magical moment. There were some tears of happiness," Adams added.

Nafije's release culminated five months of letter writing, phone calls, working with Channel 7's "Right to Go" program and elected officials.

"This has been a big team effort. It was frustrating until we got the news," Adams said.

Also on hand for the major announcement were "Right to Go" co-hosts Scot Reese, Liz Callaway and Channel 7 Reporter Katy Abel, coordinator of the show's "Kids Campaign for Human Rights" which Broadmeadows has been a part of since last fall.

The delegation received a telegram from Ismet Zandeli, Nafije's cousin, which confirmed the release. The cousin wrote: "Thank you so much to R.T.G. and Amnesty International, and thank you so much to the children who have helped free Nafije from prison—our family is thrilled.

"Nafije is in good health and is very happy to be out of prison, but no one is happier than her mother."

Knowing their work paid off in Nafije's case, the students are continuing their correspondence in an effort to get the other students released.

The students were also scheduled to accompany a resolution to the State House which urges the Yugoslavian government to free the other prisoners. The resolution was drafted by Senator William Golden.

For the past two years, students at Broadmeadows have been standing up for human rights and making their voices heard through involvement in human rights classes, programs and projects both in and outside of the community.

Last fall, Channel 7's "Ready to Go!" program and the school formed a partnership which evolved out of the school's involvement with Amnesty International. Last year, Broadmeadows students chartered their first Amnesty International Club at the School.

"Ready to Go!" had "adopted" Zandeli as part of its "Kids Campaign for Human Rights," which was done in conjunction with Amnesty International.

Knowing the school's involvement with human rights, Channel 7 contacted Adams, fellow teacher advisor Eileen Sadof and Adams and Principal Tom Hall. They arranged to have

Budget Almost Finalized Layoffs Expected To Reach 117

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The city will likely lose 117 workers, most from the school, police and fire departments, during fiscal 1991 which begins July 1, Mayor James A. Sheets said Tuesday.

The layoffs represent nearly 6 percent of the city's 2,000 employee work force.

The school department is planning to lay off 52 people, including 40 teachers.

Acting Police Chief Paul Nestor said the 201-member force will be reduced to 194 through retirements. Five civilian jobs are also being cut, three through layoffs.

Fire Chief Paul O'Connell said his department will likely lose 21 men, including 15 to 18 firefighters. The chief is also sidelining two ladders trucks, one from Houghs Neck and the other from West Quincy.

Fourteen of the city's 38 departments will lose one or more employees, according to preliminary budget figures.

The budget, which is expected to be finalized sometime this week, will be presented to the City Council for its approval Monday, April 2.

The council can only cut from the budget; it cannot add. If it does cut, it does not have the power to restore a particular line item.

The budget is expected to be approximately $121 million.

Once submitted, the council has 45 days to act on it.

Most city officials are blaming Governor Michael Dukakis for the city's fiscal ills. They say he has mismanaged the state and therefore has had to resort to withholding local aid to help balance the state's budget.

Thus far this year, the city has lost $4.5 million in local aid.

Also contributing to the bleak fiscal outlook are rising fixed costs such as pensions, health insurance, workers' compensation and the Proposition 2 and a half property tax cap.

Sheets is firmly opposed to an override.

As a result, all major city departments will likely lose employees through layoffs or attrition. Workers will be laid off by July 1 at the latest when FY 1991 begins. Others will retire as the year goes on.

Because of rising fixed costs and reduced local aid, Sheets ordered a six percent cut in all departments "across-the-board." Officials, including the mayor, say public safety, education and other services will suffer as a result of the cuts.

Sheets said the reductions will have a "detrimental" effect on the quality of life here.

"You can't cut police and fire services and public education by the numbers we're talking about without affecting the quality of life."

However, the mayor is optimistic that Quincy will overcome the cutbacks.

"We're hopeful that all the departments will be able to be more creative and hopefully we'll get more production out of those people who remain.

"Although we're losing people, we're going to have some real effort and energy expended to make up for those losses. We're better off than most cities and towns."

"If we didn't have the sewer user fee, we'd be in much, much more difficulty. Yes, (the cuts) will affect the quality of life but the situation could be much, much worse."

Some departments will lose workers strictly through attrition. The Department of Public Works will lose 7 and a half employees, mostly highway workers, through attrition, said Commissioner David Colton.

The six percent cuts are also impacting the city's smaller departments.

For example, the building department will lose two assistant inspectors, leaving five to help Building Inspector Matt Mulvey. Of the five remaining assistants, one is out on compensation, Sheets noted.

Since the layoffs are based on level local aid funding by the state, the numbers could go up or down.

After Quincy's fixed costs are subtracted, the city is expecting a net of $14,180,000 in aid in June.

The number of layoffs could also change depending on how many employees retire. Officials are working on a retirement incentive program.

New Property Valuation Figures Certified By State

Real estate and personal property valuations for the city's fiscal year 1990 tax bills have been certified by the Commonwealth's Department of Revenue as full and fair according to the Commissioner's certification standards.

Since the city was last certified by the Commissioner as of Jan. 1, 1986, the city's assessments as of Jan. 1, 1989 now satisfy FY 90 requirements under state law. State law requires recertification every three years.

In 1987, Quincy began a city-wide total inspection, measurement and listing program of all real estate and personal property. New land values have been developed and all improvements repaired according to current replacement costs. Updated depreciation schedules have been put into effect to reflect present market values indicated by sales of real estate over the past three years.

Elmer (Mike) Fagerlund, chairman of the Board of Assessors, said the process will enable the city to set the FY 90 tax rates following a classification public hearing scheduled for Monday, March 19 at 7 p.m. in the City Council chamber.

At this time, the City Council may establish tax rates for residential and commercial/industrial property at different percentages which has been the custom since FY 1984.

Last year's tax rate was $12.65 per $1,000 for residential property and $24.71 per $1,000 for commercial, industrial and personal property.

It is expected that FY 90 tax bills will be mailed later this month. They will reflect new assessments and show the adjustment to the preliminary notice sent last October and the amount now due, Fagerlund said.

Tax rates will be set and announced after the classification hearing. New assessments are on display at City Hall and the Thomas Crane Public Library in Quincy Square.

The inspection, measurement and listing program cost $670,000 over the three years. Recertification and updating cost $270,000 and measuring and listing cost $400,000, Fagerlund said.

Quincy's 25,000 parcels were inspected by Real Estate Research Consultants, Inc., of Danvers.

Permit Granted For Live Concert At Wollaston Theatre

The License Board Tuesday granted a request from Gary Dally of Somerville Productions for a live concert permit to present a performance by the Second City Comedy Troupe at the Wollaston Theatre Friday, April 6 at 8 p.m.

Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey, acting chairman of the board, noted that he

"He did an excellent job," Mulvey said, "absolutely no trouble at all."

Mulvey noted that the theater needs repairs and said that some of the repairs are already underway. Until the repairs are completed, he said,

A police detail and a fire watch will also be on location, he said.

2 Ladder Trucks, 21 Firefighters Budget Casualties

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Because of budget restraints, the city must mothball two fire department ladder trucks and layoff 21 men as of July 1, Chief Paul O'Connell told city councilors at a Public Safety meeting Monday night.

Ladder 3, an 85-foot ladder located in West Quincy, and Tower 1, a 100-foot tower located at the Houghs Neck station, will be deactivated later this month. The 21 layoffs include between 15 and 18 firefighters and between three and six retirees.

Because of the cuts, Quincy will become more dependent on mutual assistance from surrounding towns, therefore increasing response time in some instances.

The city will keep three ladder trucks and 159 men on the department. The trucks will be located at Central Headquarters on Quincy Ave., and the Wollaston and North Quincy stations on Hancock St.

The chief said he studied his options very carefully before making his final decision. He decided to keep the three ladders "on the main drag" because that is where the most action is.

He told the councilors that he regrets the loss but he doesn't have another choice because of a lack of funding. "I wish I could run them all but I can't. I'm a gambler. I don't know where the next fire will be. I'm trying to provide the best service I can with what I have."

O'Connell, like all other department heads, were instructed to reduce their present budgets by six percent for FY 1991 which begins July 1. The FY 91 fire budget will be $9.8 million, down $600,000 from this fiscal year.

Thus far this year, the city has lost $4.5 million in local aid. The chief said lack of state funding is a real issue.

"I'm not going to take the rap for the governor or anybody else in the State House," he said.

The chief called the $9.8 million budget figure "a catalyst for change." He explained that a decrease in money means a decrease in manpower resulting in a loss of equipment.

For safety reasons, O'Connell will not man any equipment with less than three men. He noted that this manning level is below National Fire Protection Association standards.

Several councilors expressed their concern for the loss of the apparatus. Although they understand the chief's position, they said the reduction will compromise public safety.

A few councilors presented alternatives to the chief but he dismissed them.

Ward 4 Councilor Thomas Fabrizio asked the chief to reconsider the deactivation of the West Quincy ladder truck. Fabrizio, who has received about four phone calls a day from concerned constituents about the lost ladder, said West Quincy needs the truck.

He pointed out the area's close proximity to the Southeast Expressway and the Furnace Brook Parkway as well as the increase in residential development necessitates the truck.

"I think we're courting disaster if we pull this ladder truck."

In response, O'Connell said the ladders should remain strategically placed along the middle of the city.

Fabrizio also suggested transferring the deputy chief drivers to the sidelined apparatus. The chief said the drivers are needed because they help the deputy chief respond to a fire. He noted that a lack of drivers can cause accidents.

"Those drivers are more than drivers. They're aides. They're another set of eyes. They save more lives," the chief said.

Ward 1 Councilor Peter Kolson, who represents Houghs Neck, also expressed his concern. He asked the chief to consider manning the Houghs Neck ladder on an emergency basis. O'Connell said he will look at that.

Councilor-at-large Michael Cheney suggested transferring men, such as those in the training division, onto the ladders.

O'Connell disagreed. "When training goes down, injuries go up."

Cheney also asked the chief to reassign men from fire prevention to the sidelined equipment. He reasoned that the department's number one priority should be fighting fires.

O'Connell again disagreed. "The department's number one priority is preventing fire."

The chief shared the council's concern but said he has no other alternative because of a revenue shortage.

Project Bread Aids Local Shelters, Food Programs

Project Bread, an organization committed to advocacy against hunger, and one that gives grants to food pantries, feeding programs, and shelters such as the Quincy Community Action Organization, DOVE, Quincy Crisis Center, and the Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition, (Father Bill's Place) is seeking volunteers for the annual Walk for Hunger scheduled for May 6.

Help is needed in a variety of ways. Walkers are needed to get sponsors and walk the 20 miles on May 6, and sponsors are needed for each walker. In addition, Marshalls are needed for along the route. Prior to May 6, people are needed to phone last year's walkers on April 2, 3, 4, and 5th from several locations.

Hoping to show a strong coherent force, the Quincy agencies are planning to unite their efforts. Breakfast for all volunteers will be held at Father Bill's Place the morning of the walk, and this group is expected to travel to Boston and walk the 20 miles together.

Those interested in being part of the Quincy force, contact Quincy Community Action Organization, 479-0796, DOVE at 471-5087, Quincy Crisis Center at 471-7075, Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition at 770-3314 or Project Bread at 723-5000. Walkers can specify which agency they want to represent or just the community.

Quincy High Student Council Joins Foster Parents Plan

The Quincy High School Student Council has become a sponsor of a Guatemalan child through the Foster Parents Plan, an organization that matches needy, deserving children to sponsoring groups and individuals.

Quincy High's foster child is Hugo Escobar Monterroso, a 10-year-old who lives in San Augustin, Guatemala. Hugo lives with his father, two brothers, and two sisters in a two-room adobe house. His mother died in childbirth last year.

The QHS Student Council's

sponsorship will provide funds to improve the family's living conditions and to enable Hugo to continue his schooling. It is his father's dream that he become a bookkeeper.

According to Student Council Advisor Harry Carter, the Council has undertaken a number of fundraising activities to provide Hugo with financial support. Members of the Council are looking forward to corresponding with Hugo through cards and letters—in Spanish, of course.

A Steady Hand

When Jim Sheets announced his candidacy for mayor last year some of the so-called political experts quickly dismissed him as an also-ran.

His time had come and gone, they said. It was too late for him. Besides that, a ward councillor can't make it to the mayor's office in one jump. You have to become a city councillor at-large first. Etc.

When Jim Sheets fooled them and was elected, some of the same so-called political experts predicted his administration would be one "by consensus." That he wouldn't be a decisive mayor.

Well, he fooled them again.

Now in his third month as Quincy's chief executive, Sheets is projecting an early image of a take-charge guy facing the city's financial problems by taking the bull by the horns.

BURGIN

These are tough times to be a mayor. Probably the toughest since Thomas Burgin had to deal with the Depression years of the mid-1930s.

Sheets got the sewer user fee through the City Council, something that his predecessor Frank McCauley was unable to do.

He has ordered a six percent across-the-board cut in all municipal departments which will result in layoffs.

There's already an estimated 84, at least, coming by June in the School, Police and Fire Departments.

And most likely more are coming as other departments — Public Works, Park, Recreation, etc. are heard from on what a six percent cut is going to do to them.

Offering Two Scholarships

Two $150 scholarships for 1990 graduates who have attended the Charles A. Bernazzani School—formerly Furnace Brook School—are being offered by the Parent Teacher Council.

Applications are available at the Bernazzani School office. Deadline for applications is May 15.

Vision Teaser

Find at least six differences in details between panels.

Differences: 1. Urnaps are tied back; 2. Screenshot is moved; 3. Man is lower; 4. Chair is different; 5. Paper is longer; 6. Leg is moved Because of the budget cuts, Fire Chief Paul O'Connell says he will have to mothball two ladder trucks -- one of them in Sheets' backyard.

The latter is an 85-foot aerial assigned to the West Quincy station and the other, a 100-foot tower at the Houghs Neck station.

That's already enough fiscal woes to keep a mayor awake nights.

But there's more coming. Like property revaluation. Those figures are being finalized now and the second half tax bills will be based on them.

For many -- home owners and businessmen -- it will mean a bigger tax bill.

Right now City Hall observers think Sheets -- considering the problems -- is doing a good job. One familiar long-time figure, asked to grade Sheets' performance so far, gave him "an A."

But he wonders where Sheets will stand in the public's eye if the roof really caves in on the city.

"Will the people be understanding?" he asks. Will they blame him or will they realize things can happen that no mayor -- or anyone else for that matter -- can control and keep from happening.

"When people get hit where it hurts -- in the old ways -- they are not usually too understanding," he says.

Things will get worse before they get better and Sheets will do his best to steer the city through the financial storm.

One consolation for him: things can't get as bad as they were during Tom Burgin's Depression years tenure at City Hall.

There were some 10,000 people in Quincy on relief rolls and another 1,800 federal WPA and PWA projects.

"It was pathetic," Burgin once recalled.

He confided there were days he went home from City Hall feeling "sad and sick" because of the people's plight and not being able to help them like he wanted to.

Time finally did.

Blaming Sheets today for the city's financial problems and resulting repercussions would be as unfair as blaming Burgin back then for the Depression.

Time will turn things around again.

Meanwhile, Sheets' hand appears to be steady at the city's helm.

GOP Convention Not Exactly A Tea Party

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

After being delegate to the last two Republican state conventions representing Charlestown and Quincy respectively, I turned up at the World Trade Center on March 10 in two new roles. First, as a political commentator, and second, as campaign staff for Paul McCarthy, a Lynnfield businessman and sole Republican candidate for state secretary.

This had to be the largest gathering of Republicans in the history of South Boston (site of the trade center). Since 1982, I have used the state conventions as a place to meet all my Republican friends in a single sweep. Though I hung out with the Quincy delegation, I made it back to my old friends in Charlestown and East Boston.

This year's convention was my third straight and the mix of delegates was great to see.

From the oldest at age 90 to the youngest at a mere eighteen, it also covered a wide spectrum of folks and ideologies. From delegates like Ted Temple of Marlboro on the Right to Boston South Ender Mike Duffy holding down the Left, the party can no longer be described as either Yankee Brahmin or archconservative and the Democrats know this too.

All the major statewide offices up for grabs this year will have primary contests and the only hope for Republicans is that none of them resort to either AK-47s or surface-to-air missiles. The last thing Republicans need after Lakian in '82 and the Hyatt-Switzer duel in '86, is Republicans getting involved in a suicidal fire-fight. This party is light years from the year 2 and this should be the year for all Republican candidates.

A 'Thank You' From Clara Yeomans

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

How can I possibly thank all who were involved in and attended the lovely celebration on Sunday, March 4th, when we all thanked each other, over and over again, for the privilege of knowing each other, working together, for the great regard we have for each other, and for the satisfaction we all have for contributing our small share to improve the human condition on this precious planet of ours and in our City of Quincy.

Now in its fifth year, the Quincy Sun's "Citizen of the Year" designation is an honor more touching and important than a Nobel prize. I consider this an honor without parallel and will continue, without fanfare, helping where I can as will everybody who attended the reception and many, many more in our city.

As I wondered, how can I possibly thank all the kind people and good friends for all they have done for me through the years and certainly everyone involved in conferring upon me this very special honor, The Quincy Sun, the Bosworths, the members of the selection panel, Corinne Mitchell for nominating me, and also give deference to the 36 fine nominees each of whom has such fine qualifications—how better than with a letter to the editor of our own special newspaper—THE QUINCY SUN.

Thanks, thanks and thanks again, everyone!

Dance Studio Affected By Sale Of Montclair Men's Club

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I was reading the story on the front page of the Quincy Sun about the Montclair Men's Club and I wanted to write because you failed to note that a family business of three generations which has been in that building for over 35 years was also affected by the sale of that neighborhood building.

About 35 years ago, because of neighborhood complaints, my grandmother, Faith McLarnon, was forced to move her dancing school from the basement of her house on Belmont Street into the Montclair Men's Club building on Holbrook Road.

My grandmother, now 70 years old, rented that same space until she retired, when she handed the school over to my mother, Nanci Palmer, of Weymouth. In the years since then, my mother has been dedicated to teaching hundreds of children in the Quincy area about the grace, expression and joy of dance. Some of her students have gone on to dance in college and professionally, or have become teachers themselves.

For 10 years I have been teaching at the school, now called Let's Dance Studio. I am the third generation to be lucky enough to share my love of dance with the children, in the same location where my grandmother began teaching. As of January first, however, we were forced to re-locate. The move has been very sad for my family and for our students. My mother has been going to the Montclair Men's Club every day since she was eleven, and I began taking lessons there when I was only two years old. Some of my grandmother's students now bring their daughters to our school and have fond memories of the old building. My grandmother feels that everything will work out for the best, but she is always ready to try something new.

Having been in the Montclair Men's Club for over 35 years, we are now located in the Cavanaugh DAV on Newbury Ave. in Quincy. With the extremely high rents in the area, we were very lucky to be able to find a location so close to the old one. My mother wanted to stay as close to the old neighborhood as possible so that children who used to walk to class from the Montclair School would not have to go too far.

A few children will have to arrange for rides, and few may have to drop out, but we are picking up where we left off, carrying on the tradition that someday may be my daughter's.

Pasta With Crabmeat

(The Real Stuff)

My niece Anita told me of a great recipe for pasta with crabmeat (the real stuff, not the imitation) and with this delicate sauce poured over your favorite pasta, you'll be in heaven. Even the spaghetti will be happy!

It's easy to prepare and an all in one dish entree that needs almost nothing else except maybe a salad.

CRAB SPAGHETTI SUPREME

- 2 cans crabmeat (7½ oz) or
- 1 Lb. frozen or fresh equivalent
- 2 Tbsps olive oil
- ½ Cup butter or margerine
- 4 cloves garlic (minced)
- a bunch of scallions (or one onion chopped)
- 2 med. fresh tomatoes diced
- ½ cup chopped parsley (or dried equivalent)
- 2 Tbsps lemon juice (fresh or bottled)
- ½ tsp. Italian seasoning (the jar not dressing)
- ½ tsp. salt

1 Lb. thin spaghetti Parmesan cheese

Drain the crabmeat or if using other kind other than canned, slice in bite sized pieces. Heat oil, butter and garlic and saute for a few minutes. Add all other ingredients except spaghetti and parmesan cheese and cook for about eight to ten minutes. Boil and drain spaghetti and pour the crabmeat mixture over the with parmesan cheese on top...! If you can't find crabmeat, I have used lagostino instead.

Residential Street Sweeping Starts March 19

Mayor James Sheets announces that street sweepers are already in operation and will concentrate on main streets until Monday, March 19 when they will move into the neighborhoods.

The street sweeping is part of the administration's "Cleaner-Greener Quincy" program which will kick off Wednesday, March 21.

The neighborhood street sweeping schedule is:

- March 19-28, Monday and Friday rubbish pick-up areas: Houghs Neck, Germantown, Adams Shore, Merrymount, West Quincy, Southwest Quincy and Hospital Hill.

- March 28 to April 9, Tuesday and Thursday rubbish pick-up areas: North Quincy, Squantum, Wollaston Beach north of East Elm.

Quincy Point and South Quincy.

- April 9-12, Wednesday rubbish pick-up: Wollaston and Montclair.

Sheets is asking residents and businesses to help in two ways. First, they can try to keep cars off the street during these periods to allow more efficient operation of the sweepers.

They can also sweep their sidewalks before the machine sweeping.

Work is weather permitting so schedules are subject to change.

In addition, DPW crews will sweep traffic islands and median strips during the week of March 26. Motorists are asked to be extra cautious at intersections and divided roads.

The Cleaner-Greener Quincy program is a comprehensive cleanup and awareness program inviting the support, participation and assistance of all segments of the community.

The program will begin March 21 with city departments focusing on an all-out effort to clean, paint, repair and beautify the city.

The program will extend through April with emphasis placed on Saturday, April 7, 21 and 28 when volunteer organizations will participate and assist in their respective areas of the city.

Under the mayor's direction, the city will also continue the Adopt-an-Island program, recognize Earth Day on April 22, announce a program in conjunction with Arbor Day April 27 and pursue the concept of Adopt-a-Park program.

Fire Protection Topic For Houghs Neck Council

Fire safety and prevention will be the subject discussed at an open meeting of the Houghs Neck Community Center on Tuesday, March 20, at 7:30 p.m. at the Houghs Neck Community Center, 1193 Sea St.

Speakers will be Martin Henry, assistant Vice President of the National Fire Protection Association of Quincy and a Quincy resident, who will present a short video on fire protection and safety.

George Clarke of Quincy Public Works, a Houghs Neck resident, will explain water pressure breaks and resulting problems.

Fire Chief Paul O'Connell of the Quincy Fire Department will discuss fire safety and prevention, as well as fire fighting procedures and techniques. The program is not intended to include discussion of City or Fire Department capabilities and budget. It has been scheduled because of several recent home fires which caused extensive damage, according to Tom Timcoe, president of the Houghs Neck Community Council.

Crime Watch

By ROBERT HANNA
Crime Prevention Officer
Quincy Police Department

Personal Safety At Home

When Someone Knocks At Your Door:

- Don't open it unless you know your visitor.
- If a business person, service representative, or government official appears at your door, ask that identification and credentials be slipped under the door or through your mail slot. While they are waiting outside, call the employer to verify name and business. (Refuse to deal with anyone who won't comply with this request.)
- Someone may knock at your door and ask to use your telephone to make an emergency call. Never open the door. Take the message and make the call for them.
- In any event, if someone comes to your door who, for any reason, you do not trust or to whom you believe might be dangerous call the police immediately.

Returning Home:

- If you find your door ajar or if you hear sounds inside, don't go in. Go to the nearest telephone and call the police. If your home has been burglarized, don't touch anything until the police arrive.
- If you do walk into your home and find a burglar there, leave if you can. If the intruder is armed, sit down quietly and obey instructions. DO NOT resist or fight. Observe the intruder closely to get a description for the police. When the intruder leaves, CALL THE POLICE immediately.

Safety On The Telephone:

- If you receive frequent "wrong number" calls, hangup calls, late night calls from strangers, or other nuisance calls, call your representative at the telephone company. They will know the best course of action. Hang up if the call is obscene.
- If the call is a threatening one, call the police.
- Never allow yourself to be drawn into a conversation with an unknown caller, survey taker, or census taker in which you reveal your name, address, marital status, or anything to indicate that you are alone. Legitimate survey takers and census takers come to your door with their credentials.

Paper Recycling Program Has 83-Ton Week

The city's curbside paper recycling program experienced its best week ever Feb. 19-24 when 83 tons of paper were picked up by residents living in "A" parts of Quincy.

Local officials are optimistic that this pace can be maintained or increased which would save the city between $140,000 and $200,000 or more annually.

According to Department of Public Works Commissioner David Colton, "Eighty-three tons per week is a rate that would save us $140,000 off the city's trash disposal bill. However, we could easily recycle more than 100 tons per week and that would save us well over $200,000."

"I am optimistic we will eventually reach that level of participation."

Ward 3 Councilor Lawrence Chretien, chairman of the city's Recycling Committee, added, "Recycling 83 tons of paper in one week has other benefits. Experts say we just saved 1,411 trees from being cut down, 581,000 gallons of water and enough electricity to heat 80 homes for an entire winter."

"All in one short week. When it comes to protecting the environment, Quincy residents are doing the job," Chretien said.

Speculating on reasons for the record week, Colton and Chretien cited several possibilities, including:

- Publicized intentions of Mayor James Sheets to expand recycling to include glass, plastic, metal and leaf composting.

- Good weather during that week.

- School vacation week.

Before the record week, the recycling program was averaging 57 tons of paper per week. The program, which began last May, has collected 2,495 tons. Officials had set a goal of 4,000 tons.

For every ton collected, the city saves $32 on its trash bill. For the first 10 months of the program, the city has saved $79,840.

Residents are encouraged to call the Department of Public Works at 773-1380 for information about the recycling program. Calendars indicating dates for paper pick up are available.

People interested in volunteering their time to the committee should call Dan Kobrin at 471-1691.

3 Residents, SYC Member Honored For Saving Man's Life

Three Quincy residents and a member of a local yacht club were recently recognized with gubernatorial citations for saving the life of a Braintree man who nearly drowned during a sudden storm last summer.

Stanley Blowers of Braintree was rescued by Henry "Bud" Welch of the Squantum Yacht Club and Bonnie Marcel, Susanne Riley and Carol Flynn, all of Quincy, when a sudden squall hit the waters of Quincy and Hingham Bays in the afternoon Aug. 2.

The boaters were participating in Quincy Bay Race Week when the accident occurred.

For their rescue efforts, the four people received a signed citation from Gov. Michael Dukakis for their "courageous and heroic efforts which saved the life of a fellow citizen."

The four also received a citation from Mayor James A. Sheets. The citations were presented by Quincy Harbormaster Bernie Reisberg.

In addition, the foursome were given pewter plates from the Quincy Bay Race Week Association.

At the time of the accident, the Hustler Class 18-foot, cat rigged sloop, most of which sailed out of Squantum and Wollaston Yacht Clubs, had completed their race on the outside line inside Peddocks Island and Bumpkin Island off of Hull. Enroute to their moorings in Quincy Bay, a few were under sail while most were in tow.

Three boats were in the tow of Welch and his wife Kitty. After completing the race, they transferred to their 23-foot powerboat to tow their Hustler and two others. One boat was skippered by Norman Stanley of Quincy and the other by Bonnie Marcel of North Quincy.

The two were headed into Quincy Bay on an approximate line between Nut Island and Hangman's Island when six to eight-foot swells, heavy winds and driving rain struck with awesome fury.

Welch was towing his unmanned Hustler on a short line off his starboard stern and had the other two boats on a longer line off his post stern and had the other two boats on a longer line off his post stern with the Marcel boat in line of the Stanley boat.

Visibility fell to less than a boat length and the Welchs, unable to control their boat in the raging seas, were terribly concerned about the girls in the Marcel boat, its skipper, Susanne Riley of North Quincy, and Carol Flynn of Quincy.

Stanley and his crew, Stanley Blowers, were in serious trouble. Rain and waves had nearly filled their craft with water and they were bailing feverishly when a sudden gust coupled with a large swell topped the boat on its beam ends. Both were wearing bulky foul weather gear, but neither was wearing a personal flotation device or life preserver.

Norman was swept away and eventually was pulled from the water by the Coast Guard and transported to their facility. He was then sent to South Shore Hospital where he was treated and released.

Blowers was also swept away from the overturned boat, but though his consciousness was fading,

With troubles of their own, the young women noted Blowers plight and with great difficulty, pulled the six-foot man beside their bobbing craft now filled with water and on the verge of flipping.

Blowers' face was in the water and he appeared to have stopped breathing. Marcel, Riley and Flynn pulled Blowers into the Marcel Hustler, revived him, curtailed his shock and fought the wind, rain and swells to keep their boat afloat.

They headed into Squantum Yacht Club where Quincy Police, Fire and Commonwealth Ambulance waited to respond. Blowers was taken to Quincy Hospital and admitted in poor condition suffering from exposure and water in his lungs.

Pneumonia developed and he was hospitalized for nearly a week.

Welch did a remarkable job maintaining the tow and getting the boat with the girls and Blowers into Squantum Yacht Club, Reisberg said, noting that the one-hour storm was one of the most severe that he has encountered in more than 40 years of local boating.

The young women cannot explain how they were able to pull Blowers, who was soaked and exhausted, into their boat.

Many people in the local boating community heard of the girls' feat and have congratulated them and their families. Self-conscious about the attention they were receiving, the women were reluctant to answer questions about their remarkable deed. The rescue was not mentioned in the local news about Race Week.

The fact remains, if it weren't for these four heroes, Blowers would not be alive today, Reisberg said.

Sheets Proclaims March American Red Cross Month

Mayor James A. Sheets has proclaimed March as American Red Cross Month. Quincy and other communities within the Red Cross's South area are coming together to strengthen support of Red Cross programs and services.

The mayor has forwarded his official proclamation to the Red Cross office, located at 15 Front St., Weymouth.

For the past 127 years, the Red Cross movement has upheld and protected humanitarian rights, helping people in need throughout the world. The Red Cross offers whatever assistance it can to victims of disaster.

During the past several months, the Red Cross helped the victims of Hurricane Hugo, the California earthquake and similar disasters in Kentucky, the Gulf of Mexico and Alabama.

Locally, Red Cross assists hundreds of South Shore area citizens every year.

The International Red Cross principles are humanity, impartiality, neutrality, independence, voluntary service, unity and universality.

The Red Cross wants people in the community to recognize the importance of the Red Cross movement to humanity, and the evolution of the American Red Cross as part of an international organization.

To ensure support for Red Cross services in the South area, volunteers and staff have launched a four-pronged campaign:

- To thank people for supporting the Red Cross through its United Way gift.
- To inform them about Red Cross services.
- To recruit additional volunteers.
- To solicit new contribution members to the Red Cross family.

To carry out its worldwide services, the Red Cross depends upon both contributions and volunteers. More than 1.8 million men and women volunteer on a regular basis.

Nationally, volunteers outnumber paid staff by more than 80 to 1.

The South area prides itself on having more than 700 volunteers serving in a number of Red Cross programs.

Volunteers are not only needed during wartime and disasters, they make the entire spectrum of Red Cross services possible. The chapter is always in need of volunteers; there is no age limit.

The main qualifications are desire and ability to help others.

Each year, like many people throughout the nation, South area residents turn to Red Cross volunteers following natural disasters: for blood donations, classes in CPR and water safety, AIDS information and non-emergency medical transportation.

The Red Cross is always there and ready to respond.

Anyone interested in helping the Red Cross serve the community should phone Roz Becovsky, director of Volunteer Services, at 331-6999.

Quincy Field Permits Meeting March 21

The Park-Recreation Board and Park Department officials will conduct the annual managers and coaches meeting on the use of municipal ballfields for the 1990 season Wednesday, March 21.

All leagues must be represented at the meeting in order to assure a fair assessment of the permits that will be issued for the 1990 season.

The meeting will be held at the Richard J. Koch Family Park and Recreation Complex Meeting Room, 100 Southern Artery, Merrymount Park at 7:30 p.m.

Purpose of the meeting is to resolve any duplication of requests preceding the Monday, April 2 meeting when Park and Recreation Board members approve applications presented by baseball, softball, and youth soccer league teams.

Discussions will be held on the utilization of city fields by adult softball teams and the on going problems created for neighboring property owners by indiscriminate parking, drinking of alcoholic beverages, debris and the lack of compliance for the rules and regulations governing the use of public parks, playgrounds and beach areas.

Raymond Cattaneo, Executive Director of the Park, Forestry, and Cemetery Departments, noted the increasing interest in adult softball, youth soccer programs and the ever increasing number of girl's and women's leagues that have developed over the past five years.

On Full Scholarship Morrell Signs Letter Of Intent For Central Conn.

Quincy High football co-captain Tom Morrell recently signed a letter of intent to attend Central Connecticut State University on a full scholarship.

The signing took place in the Presidents Pride Room with his parents, teachers, teammates and coaches in attendance.

Central Connecticut assistant coach Matt Foster was present and expressed his pleasure at the signing. "Tom is capable of being an impact player for us as a freshman," he said.

Morrell was a first team Suburban League all-star and hopes to be a linebacker. However, he doesn't rule out his ability as an offensive guard, where he also started for Quincy last fall.

Quincy coach Jack Raymer feels Morrell made a fine decision. "A lot of schools were interested in Tom," Raymer said. "He has maintained a 3.1 academic average over four years. He chose a school with a strong business program and a football program on the verge of becoming a Division 2 power. He will be given every opportunity to play as a freshman and I feel he will have an outstanding career there."

Present at the signing were his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Morrell, who proudly watched as Tom continued the fine athletic tradition of the family. Tom's sister Cindy starred at New York University in basketball and twin sisters Gayle and Patti are outstanding basketball players at Plymouth State College.

Quincy Girls Jayvees Finish Season Strong

The Quincy High girls' junior varsity basketball team, under first-year coach Mary Holleran, won five of its last six games to finish up with a 9-7 record (8-5 in the Suburban League).

"These girls showed a lot of character," said Holleran, who formerly coached the freshman team. "Their last-second come-from-behind win over North Quincy was a real confidence builder. For the remainder of the season, they believed in themselves, executed perfectly and excelled in areas that troubled them during the first half of the season."

Holleran cited the importance of three varsity players, who helped contribute to the fine season, Jen D'Allesandro, who went up to start for the varsity; Kim Marsden and Holly McDonough all made their appearances felt in the brief time they played with the jayvees.

Juniors Ann Kane, Jen Verlicco and Kerri Calhoun played consistently well. Kane's rebounding, Verlicco's precision shooting and Calhoun's defensive pressure were vital elements to the team's success.

Two other starters who improved in every game were freshman Cristy Richmond and sophomore Tricia Vacca. Joan O'Connor, Maureen Cully, Chrissy Ross, Adrianna Bagu, Laurie Allen and Angie Cavalaro also contributed greatly in their respective roles.

With all the jayvees returning next year together with seven varsity veterans, things are looking up for the Quincy program.

Apollo In Ottawa Tournament

Laurel Apollo, a North Quincy High graduate now living in Scituate, is a member of the U.S. Women's Hockey Team, which will compete for the international championship in Ottawa beginning March 19.

Recently, she has been playing in the Women's A League at the Assabet Valley rink in West Concord and was one of the team's top players. She helped her team defeat the Assabet A squad.

Lauren, who has been playing hockey for 13 years, started as a figure skater but soon grew bored with it.

She took up hockey and got her first real exposure to it at the Skating Club of Boston. She played on a girls' team in Brighton after her family moved to Quincy. With no girls' hockey at North Quincy High, she played soccer and basketball and was outstanding in both sports. She also played hockey in the Quincy Youth Hockey program.

She attended a hockey camp in Hingham operated by former Boston Bruin and Northeastern hockey coach Fernie Flaman.

Lauren attended the University of New Hampshire where she blossomed into an excellent defenseman.

She played at UNH from 1982 to 1986. In her freshman and sophomore years, the Wildcats won two national titles, both against Providence College.

The U.S. Women's Team will go to Lake Placid to practice from March 15 to 18 before going to Ottawa for the tournament, in which it will face teams from Canada, Finland, Sweden, West Germany, Norway, Switzerland and Japan.

Unlike the 1987 team, this year's club won't have to worry about finances, as it is sanctioned by the American Hockey Association.

The team is coached by Northeastern's Don McLeod, who coached the Huskies for nine years, often against UNH and Apollo.

"We're going to be physical and I know I'll have no trouble getting Lauren to play that way," said McLeod. "That's the least of my worries with Lauren. I'll use her on the power play, too. I told her that she's the type of player I want on my team. She really wants this tournament."

"THANK YOU FOR YOUR HELP!"

Knowing my husband was close to death didn't make it any easier when the time came. Since we had pre-arranged the funeral, I knew it would be handled well, but you also served us in ways I didn't expect. The details you took care of lifted a huge burden for me and you put my family at ease, helping us work through a tough time. I think the help you give really sets you apart from other funeral homes.

D. Scott Deware

There are some people who make decisions easily. There are others who appear to do nothing but wring their hands and bite their fingernails when they are confronted with the necessity of making a decision.

Every day, each of us makes decisions that determine the direction in which our lives will move. No one, no matter how wise or how highly principled, can make the right decisions every time. To err is no disgrace. The disgrace lies in not learning from our mistakes, not recovering from our defeats, not picking ourselves up, brushing ourselves off and trying again.

Many of life's problems are insoluble. They just have to be lived with. And the problem of making decisions is certainly one of these...

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Do you have difficulties making decisions? Most people do. Some make decisions too quickly and others too slowly.

There are some people who make decisions easily. There are others who appear to do nothing but wring their hands and bite their fingernails when they are confronted with the necessity of making a decision.

Broadmeadows Students Continue Campaign To Free Prisoners

the students appear on the show. The students appeared and enthusiastically agreed to participate in the free Nafjie campaign.

Students in language arts and social studies classes wrote 358 letters to the Yugoslavian government, asking to free Nafjie.

In addition to the letter writing campaign, R.T.G. and Broadmeadows held a Chain Day at the school. Every student and faculty member created and wore a chain to symbolize the imprisonment of not only Nafjie, but other victims of human rights oppression in this country and throughout the world.

Actress Tina Yothers, who appeared on the hit television sitcom "Family Ties," was a special guest at the school-wide assembly.

Certainly during the past five months, there have been ups and downs, frustration and joy for the Broadmeadows students. They helped free one prisoner of conscience; now they are working for the other four to be released.

"The kids campaign for human rights is not over yet. Not in this case," Adams said.

In addition to listings of agency names, telephone numbers and contact persons, there is a brief description of available programs and services.

'Time Out' Joins Quincy Cable Lineup

"Time Out," a new cable television program, recently joined the spring Quincy Continental Cablevision schedule and will continue to air biweekly through the end of May.

Produced by the 11 members of an introduction to television production class at Eastern Nazarene College and shot on location at Spangenberg Hall, the program consists of a variety of music and interviews with a decidedly Christian format.

encourage viewers to take "time out" to relax and enjoy the half-hour of wholesome entertainment.

Guests for the first program included Kim Blaney, soprano soloists and music instructor; Rev. Gus Sealy, associate pastor at Second Church in Dorchester; and Dexter Scantlebury, baritone soloist and ENC student.

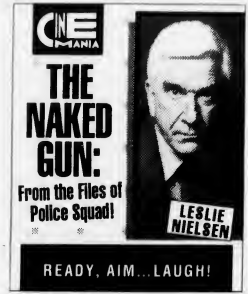

Future programs will feature High School "Festival of Life" participants from Maine to Pennsylvania to Virginia; the Madrigal Singers and A Cappella Choir from ENC; an award-winning barbershop quartet; and interesting interviews.

The program is produced and directed by Cliff Hersey, associate professor of Communications Arts at the college.

Used Car Sales License Held Up

By JANE ARENA

The License Board Tuesday placed on file a request from Robert Sabatini of Tri-State Recovery Systems, Inc., for a license to sell wholesale used cars at Glen's Towing, 550 Willard St.

Building Commissioner Matthias Mulvey, acting board chairman in the absence of John Gillis who is on vacation, told Sabatini that the site is zoned for residential use and that his request would require a special permit from the Zoning Board of Appeals.

Sabatini explained that he would store no more than 10 cars at the location where wholesalers could view them and then make bids on them. All bids and transactions would be handled at his office at 4 Maple St., Sabatini said.

Sabatini is currently using towing companies in Boston and Canton for his business, he said, but the Willard St. location would be the only one in Quincy.

He said no retail selling would be involved and there would be no need to put signs up.

Mulvey noted that neighbors in the Willard St. area are "very particular about what goes on there," and said that neighbors had been before the board on other occasions.

Sabatini told the board he had not yet spoken to Ward Councillor Tom Fabrizio about the request.

Mulvey told him that the Board of Appeals process could take a couple of months, and suggested that Sabatini go to the Building Department to find another location which is properly zoned for selling used cars.

2 Trucks, 21 Firefighters Budget Casualties

State aid to Quincy is dropping off while fixed costs such as MWRA sewer assessments and workmen's compensation are increasing drastically.

Even with the recently adopted sewer user fee, the city still must trim $6 million off next year's budget. The fee will raise about $9 million. Without the fee, Quincy faced a $15 million shortfall next year.

Cheney and Fabrizio said they do not support the six percent cut in public safety while Ward 3 Councillor

Lawrence Chretien said the schools should be spared from the cuts as well. They asked the mayor to reconsider his six percent "across the board" cuts.

Sheets said he has no alternative because school, police and fire departments represent 81 percent of Quincy's discretionary budget.

Basically, the city's budget will be approximately $121 million for FY 91, of which $55 million is fixed costs. Out of the remaining $66 million, $32.5 million or 49 percent is for schools while $21.1 million or 32 percent is police and fire; that leaves $12.4 million to fund the city's other departments.

Reducing the $12.4 by $6 million to cover the projected shortfall would leave $6.4 million to fund the city's non-fixed costs.

About 80 percent of the city's budget is to fund approximately 3,100 employees; the rest is for fixed costs.

"I think you have to have a standard by which you cut and I believe this standard is fair. And I intend to keep it," Sheets said Tuesday.

Vocational Education Week

Mayor James Sheets has proclaimed the week of March 12, 1990, as National Education Week in the City of Quincy.

The proclamation reads, in part:

"Whereas Vocational Education serves secondary, post-secondary school youths, as well as adults, in preparing them for occupations in Agriculture, Business and Office, Marketing and Distribution, Vocational Home Economics, Trades and Industries, Health Occupations, Industrial Arts, Technical Education, and through the efforts of vocational guidance and counselling by assisting individuals to reach their occupational goals.

Now, therefore, I James A. Sheets, Mayor of the City of

in our City, urging all citizens to visit their location Vocational Education Schools and become better acquainted with the services offered by these dedicated institutions to the extent that each citizen can benefit from these services."

THOMAS WALSH, president of the Quincy Education Association, was among the speakers who spoke out against the loss of 31 teachers. He asked the City Council to "be as fair as humanly possible in the cuts they must make."

THREE-YEAR-OLD Steve Smith of Quincy carries a sign expressing his feelings about the pending layoffs of 31 teachers during a rally Monday night outside Quincy City Hall.

TONI KABILIAN, co-president of the City-Wide PTO, told 300 ralliers Monday night "If we expect to produce presidents like (John Adams and John Quincy Adams) we need those teachers."

At City Hall Rally

300 Protest Teacher Layoffs

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Shouting "Save Our Schools" and carrying homemade signs bearing messages such as "Stop Teacher Layoffs" and "Bring Back Our Teacher," nearly 300 parents, students and other education advocates rallied outside City Hall Monday to protest the loss of 31 teachers due to layoffs.

The rally was held to remind Mayor James Sheets and the City Council that "increased class sizes and laying off 31 teachers is unacceptable to the citizens of Quincy," said Judith Brams, president of the Quincy Citizens for Quality Education.

The 31 teachers are casualties of the 1991 school budget which was reduced from $38 million this year to $36,764,650. The school department, like all of the other city departments, was cut by six percent of make up for a projected $6 million shortfall.

On Tuesday, Mayor James A. Sheets said that he shares the same education concerns with Quincy parents, students and teachers. However, he said he was forced to cut the 31 jobs because the school department represents nearly 50 percent of the discretionary budget.

"Basically, we cut six percent across the board. Obviously, the largest cuts come from the largest budgets," he said, noting the school department, fire and police budgets represent 81 percent of the budget which can be cut because they have the most personnel.

"We just have no place else to cut. That's why if there is more money in June, obviously because the school, fire and police departments are bearing the brunt of these cuts, that's where the greater share of the money will go to restore those cuts."

Although the speakers agreed the budget cuts cannot be blamed entirely on city officials, one speaker

Toni Kabilian, co-president of the City-Wide PTO, recalled campaign quotes such as "Education will be my top priority" and "The reputation of a community rests with its school system."

She then shouted "Let this City Council be put on notice tonight. We expect them to prove it." Her remarks elicited the loudest cheers and applause of the rally.

Kabilian, who has three children in the city's public schools, also said Quincy cannot afford to lose 31 teachers.

Gesturing to the United First Parish Church, she said "If we expect to produce presidents like the ones across the street, we need those teachers."

"Right now, we're known as the City of Presidents. Do we really want to be known as the city that cannot produce presidents?"

$500,000 Fire Set

By JANE ARENA

State and local officials are still investigating a suspected arson which caused $500,000 in damage at the Islamic Center of New England, 470 South St., Quincy Point.

After the initial investigation on Friday, Quincy Fire Chief Paul O'Connell said that the three-alarm fire was set.

The state Fire Marshal, the Quincy Fire Prevention Bureau and Quincy Police are investigating the motive for the fire which occurred just days into the Islamic holy month of Ramadan.

O'Connell said Tuesday that the investigation is now "a police matter."

Quincy Police detective Captain David Rowell, who is handling the police investigation, was unavailable for comment at press time Tuesday.

O'Connell said Friday the initial investigation at the scene showed two points of origin in the area of the lower stairwell. The fire spread quickly up the stairwell and into the second floor, he said.

The chief also said he suspects that a fire accelerant, such as gasoline, was probably used.

Officials Still Probe Islamic Center Blaze

"We feel we have evidence of a flammable accelerant. I don't know if it was gasoline," he said.

"Due to the points of origin and being able to eliminate accidental causes, we feel this fire was probably set by a person or persons who are unknown at this time," he said.

On Monday it was reported that FBI officials had warned the leaders of the Quincy mosque that West Coast mosques had been fire-bombed by rival Islamic groups. Mosque officials later said that they were merely asked whether they had experienced any trouble lately.

The FBI is not actively investigating the blaze.

"I feel it's very disturbing to the community, to society and to members of the Islamic faith that someone would set fire in a house of worship," O'Connell said.

Most of the damage to the mosque, which is the only Islamic worship center in New England, was confined to the building's interior. O'Connell said that the building's masonry structure prevented more serious damage.

The first alarm was sounded at 1:31 a.m. on Friday. The first men to arrive, under the direction of Deputy Chief Thomas Gorman, encountered heavy smoke and fire.

Forty one firefighters manning six engines, three aerial trucks and Rescue 1 responded to the scene and brought the fire under control within 45 minutes.

Sheets Proposes Islamic Classes To Be Held At Point-Webster

Mayor James Sheets was scheduled to ask the School Committee Wednesday night to allow the Islamic Center of New England to hold religious classes at the Point Webster Middle School.

The Center was damaged early last Friday by a suspicious fire which caused an estimated $500,000 in damage.

A representative from the Islamic Center asked the mayor for permission earlier this week. Since the building is a school, the school committee must approve the request.

According to Sheets, the Center has requested the use of six or seven rooms a few hours on two or three Sunday mornings.

In the past, the city has allowed religious groups to use municipal buildings.

After Sacred Heart Church burned in 1948, the parish was allowed to celebrate Mass at North Quincy High School.

Sheets Submits

$120,810,449 Budget

Mayor James Sheets submitted a budget of $120,810,449 for fiscal 1991 to the City Council Monday night.

Councillor Patricia Toland, chairman of the Finance Committee, said her committee will begin meeting with department chairmen before the next City Council meeting Tuesday, April 17.

The budget must be approved by the Council within 45 days which this year is May 17.

The council can cut from the budget but cannot add any money to it.

Consider Zoning Changes April 9

The Quincy City Council and Planning Board will discuss several proposed zoning changes at joint public hearings Monday, April 9 in the City Council Chamber.

At 7 p.m., the council and board will consider amending Assessor's Plan 4080 plots 7, 8, 12 and 19 and Assessor's Plan 4126 plots 15 and 17 from Industrial B to Planned Unit Development. The land is located off Ricciuri Dr., West Quincy.

At 7:15 p.m., the council and board will consider amending Assessor's Plan 4080 plots 7, 8, 12 and 19 and Assessor's Plan 4081 plots 2 and 10 from Industrial A to Planned Unit Development. The land fronts on Willard St. between numbers 171 and 221, on a portion of Robertson Terr., and on Bates Ave. between numbers 61 and 79.

Squantum Carnival Permit Denied

By JANE ARENA

After receiving several letters of opposition from Squantum area residents, citizens' organizations and from Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Nutley, the License Board Tuesday denied a request from Sam Pino to hold a benefit carnival for The Woodward School in the parking lot of the Dickinson property, 542 East Squantum St. April 12-15.

Nutley, in a letter of strong opposition, told the board that he, area residents, and businesses had not been notified or consulted by the applicants for the license.

Nutley noted several reasons to deny the license request, including the limited space at the location, the lack of sufficient parking, a fire hazard to the vacant wooden Dickinson School, which has already experienced one fire, and the potential for dangerous traffic and disruption in the area.

"I find this application to conduct a carnival on this limited size lot, bereft of parking facilities, and near and virtually on two high-speed roadways to be naive at best, and worse, unworkable, dangerous and contemptuous of the safety and welfare of the nearby communities and their residents.

The board also received letters of opposition from the Squantum Community Association, the Atlantic Neighborhood Club, and Charles M. Bubello, a resident of Marina Bay.

All those against the granting of the license pointed to the lack of space at the location, the lack of parking, a possible fire hazard made more extreme because emergency vehicles may not be able to get through the crowded area, and the dangers to small children attending the carnival.

Timothy Reidy, President of the Squantum Community Association, also noted that the timing of the four day carnival, which includes Easter Sunday, "seems most inappropriate."

Board Chairman John Gillis agreed that the carnival should not be held on Easter Sunday.

In his letter to the board, Bubello said that "while I believe the Woodward School fund raising effort is praise worthy, especially in light of the difficult times we are all in, other sites must be available to give the carnival visitors greater safety protection and traffic control than the proposed site."

Wollaston Business Assn. Clean-Up Sunday April 29

Wollaston Business Association will hold its third annual Clean-Up Sunday, April 29, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., to meet in the Wollaston Market parking lot.

A cook-out in the parking lot will follow.

Free T-shirts will be given to the first 100 volunteers.

For more information, call Lynne Houghton, 479-2600.

License Board

The Quincy License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting at City Hall:

- Granted a request from Carol Block of the Woodward School Parents Club, for a one day liquor license to hold a Las Vegas Nite at the school on April 7 from 7 p.m. to midnight.

- Continued for two weeks a hearing regarding the request from Conchetta M. Devine and Francis A. Leahy of Granite Auto Sales, Inc., for a class 2 Motor Sales license at 166 Washington St. to buy and sell used cars. The board continued the hearing because there was some question as to the location of the proposed business.

- Continued for two weeks a hearing on the request from Dave Montani Jr. of the Quincy Lodge of Elks to hold a carnival on the Elks Grounds on July 17 through July 21. The board continued the hearing to allow Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Nutley to give his input on the proposal.

City Formulates Plans To Detect Illegal Apartments

By JANE ARENA

After Jane Reikard, Rent Grievance Board Executive Secretary, voiced concern about illegal and unsafe apartments in the city last month, city officials are aiming to establish a more systematic coordination between city departments.

Building Commissioner Matthias Mulvey said Tuesday, officials from the Building, Health and Fire Departments have met with Reikard and are currently working to implement a system by which the three departments can better communicate about suspected illegal apartments.

Health Commissioner M. Jane Gallahue said a team inspection by the three departments is important to determine the total safety of the apartments in question.

Reikard had said that under the present system, one department is not allowed to notify the others when it learns about an illegal unit.

Gallahue said the department heads are in the process of establishing an inter-departmental form to request inspections by individual departments.

One of Reikard's main concerns, she said, is that when an illegal unit is discovered, it is the tenants who are made to suffer because often the unit is condemned and the tenant is forced into the street.

Mulvey said that department heads will endeavor to coordinate an agreement with the courts which would make landlords of illegal units responsible to pay for putting tenants up in hotels until they can find affordable housing.

Mulvey said they will be discussing the idea with Reikard soon.

"The city now has no money and no facility to house these people," Gallahue said, noting that shelters in the city are only available at night. She said that someone must be responsible for housing these people if they were ordered by the city to leave an illegal and unsafe apartment.

Quarterly Tax Bills Get Mixed Reviews

A plan to allow Quincy property owners to be billed quarterly instead of semi-annually was greeted with mixed reviews at Monday's City Council meeting.

Rabies Clinic For Dogs, Cats April 7

The annual Rabies Immunization Clinic for dogs and cats will be held Saturday, April 7 from 12 noon to 3 p.m. at the Public Works Garage, 55 Sea St., rain or shine.

The clinic is offered yearly at a minimal cost for pet owners to emphasize the importance of a rabies vaccination for all dogs and cats.

A fee of $5 for each animal vaccinated will be charged.

Dog licenses will also be issued at this time. Proof of a Proponents of the plan said the quarterly billing system could increase the city's revenue by approximately $680,000. However, Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Nutley doubted this gain because he said the cost to administer the system would come from taxpayers.

"The money to administer this won't come out of thin air. It will come out of the pockets of the people," said Nutley, who called the idea "a bag of worms."

Councillor Timothy Cahill said he too has problems with the plan.

However, one sponsor of the plan, Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien, said banks would "foot" most of the administration tabs because they pay the majority of mortgages and property bills.

Chretien suggested that the property bills could be "meshed" with the sewer bills which are being sent out four times a year.

Councillor Michael Cheney said he is "very neutral" since the system could cost some taxpayers money.

"The question is, how much will it cost the city to send out quarterly bills?" Cheney asked.

Besides Chretien, the plan was introduced by Councillors Patricia Toland, Charles Phelan and Thomas Fabrizio.

They learned about the quarterly billing at a Massachusetts Municipal Association held last weekend.

Auditor Robert Foy was asked to prepare an opinion on the plan at the next City Council meeting.

Tax Collector Dana Childs and the Board of Assessors will also be briefed on the proposal.

Introducing the 2-Step Adjustable Rate Mortgage at Quincy Savings Bank.

If you're a first-time home buyer or a professional who relocates frequently, chances are you'll sell your home within the next seven years. And if you do plan on being in your home for less than seven years, Quincy Savings has a new mortgage in step with your plans. Called the 2-Step Adjustable Rate Mortgage, it could save you thousands of dollars on your next mortgage.

How it works

For the first seven years, your 2-Step Adjustable Rate Mortgage has a below market fixed rate. After seven years, your interest rate will be adjusted to a fixed market rate that will be in effect for the remaining 23 years of the loan.

The 2-Step Adjustable Rate Mortgage at Quincy Savings gives you the lowest possible monthly mortgage payment. Plus it increases the amount of house you can afford. For example, if you're looking at homes in the $150,000 range, you could save more than $3000 over the next 7 years. (Or you could buy a home that costs $5000 more right now.)*

For more information, stop by your nearest Quincy Savings Bank. Or call (617) 471-3500 and ask about our new 2-Step Adjustable Rate Mortgage. It's the mortgage in step with the times.

Readers Forum We Need A Full Time Officer In Quincy Point

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

For 35 years Officer William Dracchio walked the beat in Quincy Point. Daily he crossed children safely at the most dangerous intersection in Quincy, Southern Artery and Washington St.

He was always there and saw to it that he was obeyed and the children got safely to and from school. Last November he retired and to date the Police Department has chosen not to replace him.

The same children that he crossed are still going to Daniel Webster School and to St. Joseph School each day and they are still returning home each afternoon. Sometimes there is a cruiser and sometimes there is not. Sometimes the officer gets out and crosses the children and sometimes the officer just sits in the car and watches.

Many pleas have been made to the Police Department, to the city councillors and to the mayor's office and still no permanent officer has been assigned to this part of the city.

Recently a kindergarten child was trying to cross on the way home at 2:30 and there was no officer around. The child came very close to being hit by a car.

Is that what it is going to take, must we have a tragedy before the need is seen and addressed? Are our children not worth more than cutting the budget. This I feel is one cut too many.

The safety and the lives of so many children deserve more than a haphazard assignment, or an occasional cruiser.

We need a full time officer in Quincy Point.

Paralysis Of Government Must Be Resolved

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The Massachusetts House and State Senate must resolve the paralysis of government that has set in over these past two years. While the general public has been affected by a crisis in confidence in their state leaders, most state legislators continue to promote their business as usual approach to the state's budget crisis sinking the Commonwealth in a sea of red ink.

Rather than face the facts, our representative up on Beacon Hill, outrageously ran for cover rather than face up to the $710 million budget gap for the current fiscal year ending June 30.

Boston's Mayor Raymond Flynn is right on the mark saying, "We refuse to sit idly and let the inaction at the State House destabilize local government."

The logjam on Beacon Hill has gone on long enough. The time is now for action and not more rhetoric. The Massachusetts "miracle" has turned into a fiscal mess. Where are our legislators trying to solve our financial problems? If new taxes are needed, then let the people that love and clear. If there's still out there (and I'm sure there is), then propose methods to curtail that waste. If folks are being hurt by cutbacks in needed human services, then show the necessity for those human services.

A state legislator is supposed to be a voice and a vote for his or her district, but we also elect them to use their own judgement and this is one of those times.

Their Finest Hour

Win Bettinson and Herb Fontaine who retired from WJDA last week after a combined 72 years there.

Only it wasn't a single hour.

It was a two-day period during the Blizzard of '78, a storm that buried the area under 27 inches of snow, lashed the coast, flooded streets and homes and smashed sea walls.

For the first day and night, WJDA was the only means of communications between local officials and the public.

The station stayed on the air for two nights after its normal sunrise-to-sunset broadcasting hours to bring vital information to snowed-in, or flooded-out listeners.

It sent out emergency telephone numbers and appeals for snowmobiles, four-wheel drive vehicles and other equipment desperately needed by Civil Defense to aid those in dire need.

Bettinson who last week closed out a 38-year career at WJDA and Fontaine, 35, were there those crucial nights helping to get that information out to the people.

So were James (Jay) Asher, station owner, and staffers Ken Fallon, Charles Ross, John Nicholson and Don Baird. Ross was on vacation but later made it in.

Asher somehow shoveled his car out of his driveway in South Weymouth and was able to drive to the station at 5 a.m. that Tuesday morning. Nicholson got in from North Weymouth and Fallon from Furnace Brook Parkway in Quincy — both walking and hitchhiking rides on snow plows.

Bettinson, who lives in Braintree Highlands arranged with Braintree police to get him to Capen's Bridge where Quincy police met them and relayed him to the station.

Fontaine, who lives in Merrymount, was already at the station. He always arrived in the wee morning hours. But this day, Quincy police, aware that the station would be needed in an emergency like the one that was sweeping in, drove him to work.

As for the others, Asher later recalled:

"They arrived like cavalry landing. "All different directions and methods."

WJDA went on the air as scheduled at 6:30 a.m. that Tuesday as the storm howled outside with Fontaine and Bettinson reading news bulletins and emergency announcements.

WJDA was on the air for two hours and 15 minutes beyond its authorized time that first night.

Federal Communications Commission regulations allowed it providing broadcasting was limited to emergency information and there were no commercials.

The station used an open telephone line like the one on the daily Party Line program. Officials who called in with information were put right on the air.

Recalled Asher:

"We just gave Win the name of the person on the phone, his title and where he was calling from and Win would take him right on the air."

When the broadcast was over that night, Asher, Fontaine, Bettinson and Fallon stayed at the station overnight, sleeping on couches and air mattresses.

The next morning, Nicholson returned with a couple dozen eggs and Asher scrambled up breakfast for the crew.

The emergency broadcasts continued during Wednesday and the station slowly returned to normal. It was a job well done — outstanding community service under the worst of conditions.

As well wishers arrived at WJDA last Friday to say farewell to Fontaine and Bettinson, the latter recalled the Blizzard of '78, and the WJDA team that helped get Quincy and the rest of the South Shore through it.

"I was never prouder of my association with WJDA than during the Blizzard of '78," he said.

And thousands of listeners during that storm were never more grateful for the vital information pouring out on 1300 on the radio dial during that paralyzing storm.

HERB FONTAINE, during his 35 years as news director at WJDA and as a panelist on Continental Cable TV's "Newsmakers" projected to some a Mike Wallace-like image.

Sometimes he appeared, say, a bit crusty, during an interview — especially if the subject was being evasive. But Fontaine is really a sentimentalist and a sofie inside.

He cried when his dog was killed by a car that also severely injured his wife, Barbara.

He also wept when he was recently honored with the "Good Scout Award" by the Camp Massasoit Association.

And on his last newscast at WJDA last Friday, he made it almost to the very end without even a hint of emotion.

But the last second or two did him in. He broke as he was signing off — for the last time after 35 years — and left the mike trying to fight back the tears.

FORMER GOVERNOR'S COUNCILLOR Joseph

Grossman will be 98 in July — a young 98. He was among those stopping by to say farewell to Herb Fontaine and Win Bettinson at WJDA last Friday.

And, he climbed the stairs to the second floor to do it.

And, to what does he attribute his longevity?

"Good behavior," he smiled.

He never smoked cigarettes but used to puff on cigars.

"Back then" (the 1930s-1940s) if you were a politician you smoked cigars," he recalled.

300 Protest Teacher Layoffs At City Hall

She and other speakers also expressed their concern for overcrowded classrooms.

"These kids can't sit in classrooms with over 30 kids. What we need is more teachers. We're reasonable."

"We know we can't have them but it makes no sense to lose the ones we have," Kabilian added.

Other speakers, such as Tom Walsh, president of the Quincy Education Association, and Councillor Patricia Toland, urged the rally goes to discuss their concern for education with legislators and the Governor's office.

Walsh also criticized proponents of Proposition 2 and a half and Barbara Anderson, chairman of Citizens for Limited Taxation. Her group has sponsored an initiative which will ask voters in November to approve a cut of $1 billion from the state budget.

"If Barbara Anderson succeeds in doing that, you won't be able to tell Boston from Beirut. We're going to be in very deep trouble," Walsh said.

The QEA president urged parents to vote against the initiative.

Continuing, Walsh said,

"We cannot lay the entire blame on anyone in Quincy. A very large amount of blame has to be laid on other people, particularly the people who backed Proposition 2 and a half."

"We were told it worked. It didn't work. It failed. It's failing us."

"It's going to fail your children. It will not work. You cannot cap income at two and a half percent when inflation is running at five percent. We're losing two and a half percent every year."

He also told the crowd to insist that "The City Council here in Quincy be as fair as humanly possible in the cuts they must make."

Anthony Agnitti, a Quincy businessman who employs Quincy High School students in a cooperative program, said education is "crucial" to a productive economy.

"In business, big and small, education is the crucial foundation of our future. We must help our youth today develop their educational skills today so that we have a strong future."

"If we do not support our educational system, we are heading for disaster."

Quincy's Yesterdays

World War I Vet Refuses Bonus

The 20th anniversary of America's entry into World War I passed and Francois Rene Sauliere of 22 Glynn Terrace, Quincy Center, was still turning down his veterans' bonus.

April 5-11
53 Years Ago

Sauliere, better known as Frank R. Sauliere, Quincy correspondent for a Boston newspaper, had been refusing the $1,590 ever since it was first offered many years ago.

"I don't think any man should collect a bonus for serving his country in time of war," he said.

"My father fought for France for five cents a day. My grandfather served in the Franco-Prussian War for nominal pay. I don't intend to stick Uncle Sam for my bit."

STREET WIDENING ENDORSED

Some 300 persons at a hearing gave overwhelming endorsement to widening Cottage Ave. and Foster St., Quincy Center, to make way for a 100-foot wide connector between Hancock and Washington Sts.

City Councillor Avery W. Gilkerson filed an order for landtaking.

Banner To Be Unfurled

The city's "Cleaner, Greener" effort will get more "visibility" later this week when a giant banner is unfurled over Hancock St. from City Hall to the United First Parish Church.

The green banner, purchased by Campanelli Industries, will read in white letters "A Cleaner, Greener Quincy. Show Your Pride in the City of Presidents."

The cleanup, which Mayor James Sheets said is "going very well," will begin in Wards 1 and 6 Saturday, April 7. Ward 1 residents should meet at 9 a.m. Saturday at Adams Shore Library while ward 6 residents will meet at the same time at the Sacred Heart School.

Meeting times and locations for the other four wards are:

- April 21—Ward 3, Wollaston School and Ward 4, Southwest Community Center, both at 9 a.m.

- April 28—Ward 2, Fore River Clubhouse and Ward 5, Beechwood Community Life Center, both at 9 a.m.

To assist with the clean-up, Bob Curry, owner of Curry Hardware, has donated 1,000 trash bags.

Some 80 local organizations are participating in the cleanup.

Fabrizio To Meet Constituents

Parents: Watch Out For The Kids!

It's tough being a parent today -- and it's tough being a kid.

Millions of young people are the victims of robbery and assault every year. Each year thousands of kids simply disappear, never to be found. Each year an estimated one million children are reported as victims of some form of abuse; 100,000 of these kids are sexually abused. However, many experts believe that many more children are the victims of sexual abuse, since too often this crime goes unreported.

Kids naturally trust in other people. The hard part for parents is to teach kids to balance trust with caution.

You must teach your kids to play it safe. Warn them to stay away from any stranger who:

- Tries to give them candy or money.
- Asks them to go somewhere or get into a car.
- Tries to follow them.
- Hangs around the playground.
- Tries to touch them.

Instruct your child to walk away if a stranger does one of these things, and tell parents, teachers, or a police officer right away. Children should know that no one, strangers or non-strangers, has the right to touch them or fondle them in any way that makes them feel unsafe.

Make sure you know where your children are going when they go out. Ask them for their friends' names and telephone numbers so you can reach them. Kids should know how to use the telephone. Have your child memorize his/her own phone number and an emergency number such as a relative or neighbors. Keep important numbers posted by each phone in the home.

Teach your children that there are certain people they can depend on and trust; parents, law enforcement officers, neighbors and teachers. Since children are especially trusting of the people who care for them regularly, make sure you check carefully the references of baby-sitters and day-care workers. Tragically, many children are abused by members of their own families. If you suspect that a child in your neighborhood has been the victim of abuse at home, don't be reluctant to report it.

Think of the child first and contact your local police right away.

Auto Repair Shop License Approved

The License Board Tuesday granted a request from Jeanne and D.W. Tarbox for a general automotive license for an auto repair shop at 85 Liberty St., off of Water St.

Tarbox told the board he plans to operate the garage from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekdays.

He said he has sufficient room to park six cars inside the garage and four others outside.

Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey noted there have been neighborhood concerns in the area in the past and said that the license would be subject to a team inspection. He said the business would have to be kept "neat as a pin outside."

Tarbox said cars would be at the shop only for about an hour while he removes the tires before turning them over to junk dealers or junk yards. He said that any cars there during the day would be gone by that evening.

He told the board that he expects to have about 20 tires there at any one time and that he plans to keep them piled inside before selling them.

Tarbox said that the Fire Department had visited the site about one week ago and explained fire regulations.

The board noted that Tarbox had been granted a towing license about two years ago and that the board has had no complaints about his business.

The board granted the license pending an inspection by the Building and Fire Departments on matters of zoning and city regulations.

Joseph Catalano Named WJDA News Director

Joseph A. Catalano of Dedham has been promoted to news director of WJDA, replacing veteran news director Herb Fontaine, who retired last Friday after 35 years of service.

As news director, Catalano will be responsible for gathering, writing and reporting news on the "Breakfast with WJDA" show with Program Director Roy Lind, beginning at 6 a.m. Monday through Friday.

He began his new duties Monday and found the pace "hectic and challenging." Realizing he has "big shoes to fill," Catalano said, "I hope people are acceptable to my style of journalism because everyone is a little different."

He is no stranger to the WJDA news format. During the past month, Catalano worked with Fontaine, which allowed him to "get a good feel" for the show's flow.

He has also been listening to WJDA for as long as he can remember. Still, he admitted, "The actual getting in and doing it is a little different."

Catalano graduated from Curry College in Milton in 1986 with a bachelor of arts degree in communications. He worked at WBZ-AM for two and a half years from 1987 to 1989 and before that, he was at WEZE, WATD AM-FM and WMLN-FM.

While at those stations, Catalano was an on-air announcer, news anchor and commercial production person. He has been at WJDA since September.

Station owner and president James D. Asher said he is pleased to offer the position to an individual from the area who is sensitive to local issues, and realizes the important role WJDA plays in keeping its listeners abreast of community developments.

Catalano said it is reassuring to have the station's support in his goal to present the pressing issues of Quincy and surrounding towns in a complete and understandable fashion. He also looks forward to working with local officials.

Located at 1300 on the AM dial, WJDA has been serving the South Shore since 1947.

Spring HOME IMPROVEMENT

Wallpapering Tips

When papering your walls, keep these helpful tips from Imperial guaranteed wallcoverings® in mind.

- When hanging a large scale pattern in a room that has a fireplace, center the first strip over the fireplace and hang to the right. Then go back and hang to the left. If you're going around the whole room, plan to end in an inconspicuous corner.

- Never "wrap" a whole strip around inside corners, without cutting and realigning. It may look okay at first, but in a few weeks, wrinkles and creases might appear.

- When using no-match, plain textured wallcoverings, reverse every other strip top to bottom for uniform color.

- Never use a seam roller on flocked wallcoverings. Gently tap the seams with the edge of a smoothing brush.

- Check the run numbers on your rolls before you start to make sure they're the same, as color may vary slightly from run to run.

- If you're not going to paper into the inside of an arch or frameless window or door, trip the wallcovering with your razor 1/4" from the outside edge. This will prevent fraying or pulling from the outside edge.

- Ceilings, like walls, are not always "true." So plan to end the ceiling wallcovering on the less critical side of the room, like above the entrance.

- When using the same pattern on the ceiling and walls, it can only be matched one way, so choose the direction most frequently looked at.

- To match the pattern, trim the ceiling wallcovering so there's 1/4" overlap on the sidewall. Match the first sidewall strip at the ceiling line, overlapping 2" as usual. Smooth the strip down. To trip the overlap, score it with a pencil at the joint. Pull the wallcovering back and cut on the scored line with scissors. Smooth it back down. It's matched!

- Where vinyl wallcoverings overlap in corners, at ceilings, etc., you'll probably need to use vinyl to vinyl adhesive to make them stick together. Ask your dealer.

Insulate to help reduce power demand and keep your house cool this summer

Electricity industry analysts predict that one third of the country will have insufficient power by 1993.

The reason: Demand is increasing and new energy sources are not being developed.

In fact, electricity use has increased 4.8 percent per year for the last two years. And in some areas, peak demand has been rising as much as 10 percent annually.

Areas affected include the Northeast, the Southeast and portions of the Midwest. The rapidly growing Pacific Northwest economy could spur brownouts in that area as well. Brownouts are a result of a small cutback in power—which forces equipment to work harder.

"To help reduce the likelihood of brownouts—and reduce air conditioning costs at the same time—homeowners should consider energy conservation measures, such as insulating," advises Frank Glover of Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp., a leading manufacturer of energy-efficient building materials.

"Three important areas to insulate," Mr. Glover says, "are the attic, basement and crawl space."

Unfinished attics

Most American homes need R-38 or 12 in. of fiber glass batt insulation in their attics, according to the U.S. Department of Energy (DOE).

"Installing insulation in your home is a simple and inexpensive do-it-yourself project," Mr. Glover adds. "And insulating your attic is one of the most cost-effective energy-saving projects. For example, if the DOE recommended level in your area is R-38 (and your attic already has 4 in. of fiber glass insulation), it would cost about $350 to insulate an average 1000 sq-ft. space with R-25 Attic Blanket® (or 8 in.) of fiber glass insulation."

Before you begin work, you'll need safety glasses, work gloves, a long-sleeved shirt, a breathing mask and a sharp knife.

Lay a piece of temporary flooring to kneel on while working, such as a plank or 1/2 in. piece of plywood. Leave the insulation in rolls until you're ready to use it.

Start laying fiber glass batt insulation at the outer edges of the attic, making sure not to block the flow of air from eave vents. Keep insulation a minimum of 3 in. from light fixtures, and use unfaced material in the space between a masonry chimney and wood framing.

Lay the long runs in first and use left-overs to fill up the smaller spaces later. Push the insulation under any wiring, and butt each section of insulation tightly up against the adjacent one for a complete thermal barrier.

THIS DO-IT-YOURSELFER is helping to conserve energy and lower his utility bills by completing an easy weekend project: insulating his attic.

If you are adding to existing insulation and the joist cavity is already filled, lay the new insulation perpendicular to existing insulation. If your joist cavity is only half full and the recommended insulation level in your area is R-38 or 12 in. of fiber glass batt insulation, fill up the cavity with R-11 or 3 1/2 in. of fiber glass batt insulation. Then lay a second layer of R-19 or 6 1/4 in. of fiber glass batt insulation perpendicular to the existing layer.

Basement walls

To insulate walls in a heated basement, build a framework of 2x4 studs, 16 or 24 in. on-center over the masonry walls. Wedge the insulation directly between the studs. If you are using a faced material, place the facing toward the warm-in-winter side. Finish by installing paneling or drywall.

When using unfaced material, be sure to install a separate vapor barrier over the insulation. Cut pieces of insulation to fit in the band joint between the top plate of the framework and the floor above.

Crawl spaces

To insulate masonry walls in heated crawl spaces, begin by measuring and cutting small pieces of unfaced insulation to fit snugly against band joists. Using long furring strips, nail vertical lengths of unfaced insulation batts to the sill and use enough insulation to cascade down the wall and extend two ft. along the ground into the crawl space. Faced material cannot be used here because the facing is flammable and should never be left exposed.

To complete the project, place a poly-ethylene film over the insulation and the entire floor area. Use bricks or rocks to hold the insulation in place on the ground.

Other energy saving steps

Other simple steps you can take to help reduce cooling costs include:

- Air conditioners: Monthly upkeep will maintain efficiency and help cut energy costs. Clean the internal coils with a damp rag or soft brush and then vacuum. Foam filters should be washed or replaced at least once a month. For high efficiency, air conditioners should be serviced once a year: motors lubricated, coils cleaned and filters changed.

- If possible, place the unit on the north side of the home or in the shade, and try to keep the thermostat set at a comfortable 78 degrees. Utility findings show that each degree the thermostat is lowered represents a 2 or 3 percent increase in cooling costs.

- Seal cracks: Caulk and weatherstrip doors and windows to reduce infiltration of hot air. Weatherstripping (available as felt strips, foam rubber and flexible vinyl) is easy to install. Doors between air conditioned and non-air conditioned spaces should be stripped on all sides, tops and bottoms. This includes entrance doors, attic doors and inside and outside basement doors, as well as window sashes.

For more information on the benefits of insulating, write to M.S.U. Meeks, Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp., Fiberglas Tower, Toledo, OH 43659, for a free copy of "A Homeowner's Guide To Insulation and Energy Savings."

First-Time Buyers Still Major Residential Market Force

First-time home buyers continued to be a major economic force in the U.S. housing market in 1989, according to statistics compiled by Century 21 Real Estate Corporation.

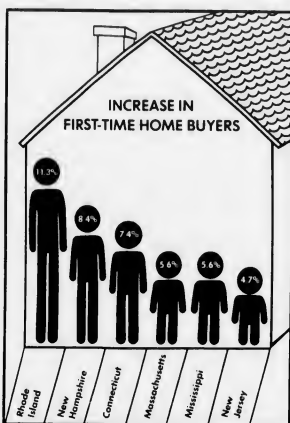

First-time buyers showed a higher profile in the Northeast and somewhat less visibility in states recording increased sales and price appreciation.

First-time buyers represented 38 percent of the more than 400,000 transactions recorded by the CENTURY 21® system in 1989. There has been no significant change in this percentage for the last five years.

As a rule, the percentage of first-time buyers decreased in stronger housing markets (as measured by sales activity and price appreciation), and the percentage of repeat buyers increased. This was certainly the case in Hawaii (prices up 15.5%, sales volume up 12.6%) and Washington (prices up 14.9% and sales up 18.6%), fueled by the red-hot Seattle market. The percentage of first-time buyers dropped 4.9 percent in Washington and 3.1 percent in Hawaii.

The percentage of first-time buyers in California dipped 2.1 percent between 1988 and 1989 as the average home price increased 10.9 percent. Sales activity was down four percent from 1988's superheated market but was still the highest in the nation. Illinois had the largest decrease of first-time buyers at 7.0 percent with an average price increase of 9.8 percent.

The less active housing markets in the Northeast and Mid-Atlantic states recorded significant increases in the percentage of first-time buyers. Rhode Island led all states with an 11.3 percent increase between 1988 and 1989. New Hampshire (8.4%), Connecticut (7.4%), Massachusetts (5.6%), Mississippi (5.6%) and New Jersey (4.7%) also recorded large increases in the percentage of first-time buyers. Also showing net increases over two percent were Kansas (3.0%), Maine (2.5%) and New York (2.1%).

STATES RECORDING THE LARGEST PERCENTAGE INCREASE IN FIRST-TIME BUYERS 1988-1989

City To Observe National Building Safety Week

The city of Quincy will join units of state and local government across America observing National Building Safety Week April 8-14, Matthias J. Mulvey, inspector of buildings, announced.

Observation of Building Safety Week started in 1980 to publicize the importance of construction codes and their administration by units of government. National Building Safety Week has also heightened recognition of the role professional code officials play in assuring the safe construction of buildings of various types and sizes.

"The importance of construction codes and their enforcement is often overlooked until some great fire or other construction-related tragedy occurs and shocks people's consciousness," Mulvey said.

Code administration in the city of Quincy is carried out by the Department of Building Inspections.

For example, last year the Department of Building Inspections reviewed building plans and inspected construction in the city of Quincy for 1,917 construction projects.

Major projects included seven (7) multi-family dwellings for a total of 272 dwelling units with an estimated value of over 10 million dollars; two (2) office buildings in the Crown Colony Office Park for an estimated value of over 11 million dollars; three (3) office buildings in other areas of the city with an estimated value of 12 million dollars, and a parking garage on Faxon Ave. with an estimated value of 5 million dollars. The total estimated construction value for all permits issued was $69,696,580.

National Building Safety Week is endorsed by such organizations as Building Officials and Code Administrators (BOCA), International, the Council of American Building Officials (CABO), the Massachusetts Building Commissioners and Inspectors Association (MBCIA) and the National Conference of States on Building Codes and Standards (NCSBCS).

Quincy is a member of BOCA International, which founded in 1915-is the nation's original professional association of construction code officials.

Mulvey said that the Quincy Building Department will conduct numerous activities in observance of National Building Safety Week, including inspection of the entire city for visible violations of the building code and the zoning by-laws.

Information will be available to the public concerning applicability of the building code and zoning by-laws, and the Building Department will be available to answer any questions concerning the building code and zoning by-laws.

North Eyes Repeat Of League Crown

The North Quincy baseball team, thanks to an amazing comeback, won the Suburban League championship last spring for the first time in 10 years and Coach Leo Donovan and the Raiders would like nothing better than to repeat this year, their last in the league.

Last season North got off to a slow start and had a 3-8 record. Then it proceeded to win its last nine games to finish with a 12-8 record, capture the league title outright and qualify for the Eastern Mass. Tournament. The Raiders lost to Natick in the first round.

This year Donovan has his three top pitchers from last season back. Erik DeBoer was one of the league's best with a 6-2 record (both losses due to errors), pitched 49 innings, struck out 68, walked 19 and had an earned-run-average of under 1.25.

Billy Warren, a southpaw, won two games, including a no-hitter, and Gary Rawdon won three games.

"This gives us a fine pitching nucleus to build around," Donovan said. "All three pitched Legion ball and should have fine seasons this year. I expect DeBoer to again be one of the best in the league." Behind this outstanding trio Scott Dunn will also do some pitching and will also play in the outfield. Dave Gamsby will pitch and play second base.

Handing these pitchers will be Jeff Calvert, a four-year veteran and one of the best catchers in the league. Backing him up will be Mark Kelleher, who also will play in the outfield.

Three infield positions will be handled by veterans, George Rozanitis at first, Tony Andertonis, one of the finest shortstops in the league last year, back at that spot, and Jim Bryan at third base. Taking over at second base will be Dave Gamsby, backed up by Wayne McCully.

Utility infielders are Steve Wass, Doug McLean, Ron Boudreau and Brian O'Malley.

Jimmy Glynn is the only returning outfielder. He will be joined by Rawdon, Kelleher, Jimmy Mahoney and Dunn.

"I think we will hit well and every starter has good potential at the plate," Donovan said. "I just hope we get off to a much faster start than last year. It would be expecting too much to have the team win its last nine games as it did last year."

Last year Andertonis had the most hits with 18, Rozanitis, then a sophomore, had 17, DeBoer had two home runs and Andertonis and Calvert had one each.

"We had an excellent turnout with a fine group of freshmen and sophomores," Donovan concluded.

He has Dave Perdios back as junior varsity coach and Jack Outerbridge returns as freshman coach.

The Raiders were scheduled to open the season Tuesday against Weymouth South today (Thursday) at 3:30 at Adams Field, will be at Medford Monday and host Peabody next Wednesday at 3:30. The first league game will be April 23 at Cambridge Rindge and Latin.

ST. JOSEPH'S School cheerleaders won the South Shore Parochial Schools League title and finished fourth in the state championships. First row, left to right, Capt. Christine Curran, mascot Caiti Brillo and Capt. Kara Bagen. Second row, Christine McDonnell, Capt. Amy Madden and Shannon McAdam. Third row, Olivia Chamberlain, Michelle Carlson, Nicole Kalafatas and Kathy Ford. Back row, Susan Deskins, Jaimi Driscoll and Abby Anastasi.

St. Joseph's Cheerleaders Win Parochial School Title

The St. Joseph's School cheerleaders recently won the South Shore Parochial Schools League title for the second straight year.

St. Joseph's School of Quincy Point joined the league only two years ago and the girls have become a force in the league, competing against schools twice as big. The event was held at East Braintree Junior High School.

Led by tri-captains Christine Curran, Kara Bagen and Amy Madden, all eighth graders, the 12-member squad combined a three-minute routine of traditional and crowd cheers, along with gymnastics, pyramids, partner stunts and dance. The team was comprised of only six returning varsity members.

St. Catherine's of Norwood was runner-up and St. Ann's of Wollaston took third place.

Just one week following the league competition, the girls advanced to the CYO state competition at Boston College High and finished fourth in the state. Team members were Curran, Bagen, Madden, Christine McDonnell, Michelle Carlson, Shannon McAdam, Abby Anastasi, Nicole Kalafatas, Jaime Driscoll, all eighth graders; seventh graders Susan Deskins, Kathy Ford and Olivia Chamberlain and sixth grader Dawn Kalafatas. Patti Myers and Anita Curran were the coaches and Caiti Brillo the mascot.

Things Looking Up For Quincy

By TOM SULLIVAN

As the Quincy baseball team prepared for its final season in the Suburban League, coach Bob Sylvia, hoping to rebound from a 1-17 season, greeted an inexperienced but enthusiastic squad.

The Presidents were scheduled to open the season Tuesday at Weymouth South and will host Weymouth North today (Thursday) at 3:30 at Adams Field. The team will be home to Malden Monday at 3:30 and the first league game will be at home against Brookline on April 25.

"We had a fine turnout which included an excellent crop of freshmen," said Sylvia. "The freshmen turnout makes the future look bright and things should be looking up in the next few years."

Although the Presidents won only one game last spring, they were in many of the games but lost close decisions.

The squad is led by veteran catcher Tom Balzano, who will handle several pitchers with strong arms but little experience. He will be one of the team's leading hitters.

Fred Regan, who had a good season in hockey, will be playing his first varsity season at first base. He played for the junior varsity and played Legion ball.

At second base will be freshman Rob Kane and Chad McMahon, who also will pitch.

Sophomore Pat Gallagher, with a little varsity experience, will be at shortstop and Rich Burns, also with a little experience, will be at third base.

Utility infielders are Steve Loud and Steve Crespi.

The outfielders will be Bob Crespi, John Fahey, Steve McGinnis and sophomore Mike Malvesti.

The pitchers all will be playing other positions. They are McMahon, Burns, McGinnis, Steve Crespi, Malvesti and Loud.

"They all have strong arms and, despite their inexperience, they could do all right," Sylvia said. "McMahon and Malvesti have had some experience. One problem we will have is that we don't have a southpaw."

Mike Draicchio is assisting Sylvia with the varsity and the new freshman coach is Armand Veneziani, a former Boston College player and Boston English head coach. He will have a fine squad to work with.

"George Peachey is one of our most important cogs and is our general manager," said Sylvia. "We all work for George, who did a fine job coaching the freshmen."

North Quincy's Kara Miller and sophomore Tricia Hughes were named to the Suburban League girls' soccer all-star team, coach Leo Donovan announced.

The North girls had a good season last fall in their final season in the league.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Some of the world's most talented people have never been paid a cent. They are called volunteers. They take time from their work, their leisure, their home-life to volunteer their talents and their energies. Volunteerism is the spotlight and let them know that it is valuable and important to us. This week is the time to make an effort to look around and see who is doing what to help out... Look at the nursing homes and hospitals and you'll see men and women finding time to visit with the residents and help the staff... Look at the schools and you'll see people who serve on committees, who donate materials, who help raise funds all for the love of doing... Look at the churches and you'll see people who give their time to sing in the choir, and work on committees... You'll see people who deeply care about their community and want to work to make it better, honor it and tell others about it.

When asked why they volunteer, the most popular reason heard will be, "Because I care, I want to help..." We ask that our readers join us in saluting the volunteers in our community... Let us show them that because they care, we care about them...

"THANK YOU FOR YOUR HELP!"

Knowing my husband was close to death didn't make it any easier when the time came. Since we had pre-arranged the funeral I knew it would be handled well, but you also served us in ways I didn't expect. The details you took care of lifted a huge burden from me and you put my family at ease, helping us work through a tough time. I think the help you give really sets you apart from other funeral homes.

Suggests Notification System

Reikard Warns Of Illegal Apartments

Concerned about illegal and unsafe apartments in Quincy, Rent Grievance Board Executive Secretary Jane Reikard has suggested a notification system as part of a three-pronged crackdown effort to Mayor James Sheets.

On Monday, Sheets said his review committee will address the issue this week. Among those on the committee are City Solicitor Stephen McGrath, Planning Director Richard Meade, Public Health Commissioner M. Jane Gallahue, Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey and Public Works Commissioner David Colton.

"We are going to look at that issue. What our response will be I'm not sure but we will be looking at it," the mayor said.

During her 14 years as executive secretary, Reikard said she has confronted approximately 150 illegal apartments in the city. During the last year, she said she has been notified of 11 apartments, seven in the last six months.

Because of hazards created by illegal apartments, Reikard said she is very concerned about the safety of tenants living in these units.

Furthermore, the tenants are the ones who "pay the price" for the illegal units once discovered, because the apartments are often condemned, forcing the occupant on to the street, she explained.

"The 'price' is not so much the monetary value but the action that follows by being given an edict by the Building Department to 'get out immediately' with nowhere to go and most times, no money to do it with."

"It raises havoc with the tenants' psyche as well as the frustration of looking for another place to live and not knowing where to start," Reikard stated in a letter to the mayor.

The illegal apartments are usually found in an attic or basement. Often these units do not have two means of egress, fire walls or fire door, smoke detectors or proper heating systems.

Reikard said one woman was living in a unit infested with roaches and rats. The unit also did not have enough windows.

Illegal apartments are often constructed by a landlord's friend who bypasses the building permit process, Reikard said. The landlord then rents the unit to an unsuspecting tenant.

Reikard said she learns of illegal apartments after a tenant reports a particular problem with their unit such as a water leak. She asks the tenant where the problem is and if the tenant says it's in the basement or attic, "I know at that point that the apartment is probably illegal and I start digging," she said.

She then informs four city department's about the illegal apartment:

The Assessor's Office for tax purposes; the Health Department for code violations; the Building Department for structural violations or two means of egress or for condemnation if violations warrant that; and fire inspection for smoke

New Tax Rates

Residential: $10.18 Commercial: $22.90

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

After more than two hours of discussion at a public hearing Monday night, the City Council voted 8-1 to adopt Mayor James A. Sheets' property tax classification for fiscal 1990.

With the council's vote, the residential tax rate is now $10.18 per $1,000 and the commercial, industrial and personal property (C.I.P.P.) rate is $22.90 per $1,000.

Both rates are based on 175 percent classification.

Compared to last year, both rates are down. However, the percentage of the tax levy made up by residential taxes is up slightly from last year while the C.I.P.P. portion is slightly down.

In FY 1989, residential made up 59 percent of the levy or $36,136,938. This year, residential will make up 60 percent or $39,633,555 of the total levy.

The FY 1990 C.I.P.P. portion will be 39 percent or $26,377,812. Last year, the C.I.P.P. portion was 40 percent or $24,287,975 of the total levy.

Last week, the city's new valuations were certified as full fair cash value by the state Department of Revenue.

The new values amount to more than $5 billion. The residential values alone increased $1 billion. The new values also include $4 million in new growth.

With the new valuations, the total tax levy for FY 1990 is $66,011,367,000. The tax levy for FY 1989 was $60,424,913,000.

Last year's rates were $12.65 for residential and $24.71 for C.I.P.P.

The 175 percent classification will keep the proportion of the tax levy essentially the same as last year. Sixty percent of the levy will be made up by residential taxes while 40 percent will be made up by C.I.P.P.

Tax bills are expected to be mailed out at the end of this month. They are due 30 days upon receipt.

Only Councillor-at-Large Timothy Cahill voted against the 175 percent classification. Cahill said he favored staying at last year's classification of 157 percent.

In casting the lone dissenting vote, Cahill said the 175 percent classification would hurt businesses in Quincy, many of which are struggling in the present soft state economy.

He also said the higher classification would send the wrong message to businessmen contemplating where to set up shop. Cahill said the 175 percent classification could force businessmen to locate in other locales with lower C.I.P.P. rates.

With 157 percent classification, the FY 1990 residential tax rates would have been $10.88 and the C.I.P.P. rate would have been $20.55.

With those rates, residential taxpayers would have made up 65 percent of the levy while C.I.P.P. rate payers would have made up 35 percent of the levy.

The other eight councillors basically agreed that the 175 percent classification is fair because it makes the residential-C.I.P.P. proportion nearly the same as last year.

Elmer (Mike) Fagerlund, chairman of the Board of Assessors, said few people complained about last year's rate and proportion.

At a public hearing held prior to the council meeting, about a dozen people from the business community urged councillors to support the 157

Kelly Named DPW Deputy Commissioner

Former Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly has been appointed the city's new deputy commissioner of Public Works by Mayor James A. Sheets.

Kelly, who is presently the project manager for the Quincy Housing Authority, has asked for a leave of absence. His appointment is effective pending approval by the Housing Authority. The authority was scheduled to discuss the appointment Tuesday evening.

Kelly, 57, of 143 Spring St., will succeed Robert Frederico who was appointed deputy commissioner by former Mayor Francis X. McCauley. Frederico will return to his previous job as Public Works superintendent.

The shifting in the Public Works Department began last year after former DPW Commissioner Paul Anderson stepped down. McCauley named former Deputy Commissioner David Colton to succeed Anderson and Frederico was named the new deputy commissioner.

As deputy commissioner, Kelly will also be superintendent of Public Buildings. He will earn a combined annual salary of $45,734.

In announcing the

appointment, Sheets noted Kelly's strong background in environmental affairs as well as community involvement. Besides his responsibilities as DPW deputy commissioner and public building superintendent, Kelly will be involved in environmental concerns and beautification issues facing the city.

"I think Leo Kelly will do an excellent job as deputy commissioner of Public Works. He'll have a number of responsibilities," Sheets said.

Besides his regular duties, Kelly will be responsible for managing the city's "Cleaner, Greener Quincy" effort once it begins later this spring. He will also be involved in the restoration of several salt marshes, including the Post Island marsh.

The mayor noted that Quincy has received $100,000 as a result of a lawsuit filed against the Metropolitan District Commission while McCauley was in office. The lawsuit led to the court-ordered Boston Harbor cleanup. Sheets said this money will be used to restore the salt marshes.

Kelly will also be in charge of the capping of the West Quincy landfill and possible future uses at the site, such as a municipal golf course.

"He will be assuming a very vital role in our effort to improve the quality of life in Quincy," the mayor said. "He's a people oriented person. He can relate to people and they can relate to him."

Among Kelly's other civic activities are: chairman of the Environmental Protection Agency Study of Quincy Bay and Quincy City Council Environmental Control Commission, mayor's representative of the MWRA's Advisory Board, chairman of the Blue Granite District Boy Scouts of America and other environmental boards and citizens' task forces.

318 Quincy Names On Unclaimed Money List

Some 318 Quincy residents and businesses are among the 33,000 individuals and businesses that are due more than $25 million from abandoned accounts.

Under the state's Unclaimed Money Law, bank accounts, insurance proceeds, payroll checks, stock certificates and the like that have been inactive for at least five years are deemed to be abandoned.

All such accounts must be reported to the treasury, which then attempts to notify the rightful owners or legal heirs. Last year, the state returned more than half of the $30 million in reported abandoned accounts. The accounts range from $50 to more than $10,000.

Low Bidder At $556,528 Quincy Center Traffic Improvement Contract Dorchester Firm Awarded

A Dorchester based construction company has been awarded the contract for the Quincy Center traffic improvement construction project.

Mario Susi Construction Company received the contract after making a bid for $556,528, which was nearly $100,000 lower than the next lowest bidder.

The highest bid received was $585,252 by Charles Capone Construction of Dedham. In all, 16 bids were received by the Quincy Planning Department.

City Planner Kevin Shea attributed the low bid to the slowdown in state construction projects. The sealed bids were opened last Friday at City Hall.

The project is designed to improve the traffic flow from Saville Ave. southbound on Hancock St. to just pass the United First Parish Unitarian Church. Three intersections around the church, including the intersection of Coddington, Washington and Temple Sts., will be updated with new traffic signals, landscaping and street markings.

In addition, the water line in the area will be replaced and the drainage system fixed, said Traffic Engineer David Kinnecom.

Shea said he expects work to begin during the late spring or summer. The project must be completed by Dec. 1, he said.

The project will be funded by the city's Community Development Block Grant Fund. Originally, the project was designed to include traffic improvements from the intersections of Dimmock and Hancock Sts. and Granite and Hancock Sts.

However, the state did not come forward with matching funds and the project had to be scaled down, Shea explained.

The City Council appropriated funding for the project

In all, 11 pedestrian crosswalks will be put in place; six in front of the church and five behind it. Some of the crosswalks will be connected by traffic islands and all will be equipped with special crossing lights for safety.

Christmas Island, which separates northbound and southbound traffic on Hancock St. from Granite St. to Temple St. will be expanded by as much as nine feet at the Temple St. end. This will allow two pedestrian crosswalks to be marked off, Kinnecom said.

The island in front of Presidents Place and City Hall will also connect two crosswalks. One crosswalk will extend from the sidewalk at McIntyre Mall to the island; the other crosswalk will extend from the island to the sidewalk in front of Presidents Place.

The traffic pattern around the United First Parish Church will stay the same. However, the new lights will be timed so that the traffic flow is controlled, thereby stopping the present merging and criss-crossing of motor vehicles.

More than 20 trees, including some maple trees, will be planted in the area. A flower bed with annuals will be set up on Christmas Island and the island in front of Presidents Place will also receive some new flowers and plantings.

Massachusetts Electric will replace the overhead street lights with brighter but energy efficient sodium vapor lights.

The project also includes updating the timing and operation of the "walk" "don't walk" traffic signals at the intersection of Hancock and Granite Sts.

The contract bid includes a $50,000 allowance for police detail.

Thomas Burke Named Council On Aging Director

Thomas A. Burke of 76 Alrick Road, has been appointed the new director of the Quincy Council on Aging by Mayor James Sheets.

Burke, 40, will receive an annual salary of $27,571. His appointment is effective March 29.

The position is funded by the federal government and includes coordinating programs for the elderly as well as managing the council's van transportation service and drop-in center.

Burke succeeds Thomas Koch who stepped down late last year to become Sheets' executive secretary.

A North Quincy native, Burke was chosen by the mayor from a list of three candidates. The candidates were selected after an interview process.

Interviews were conducted by City Planner Kevin Shea, Personnel Director Kathleen Fishman, Equal Opportunity Employer Janet Ellis and John Noonan, chairman of the Council on Aging Board. Sheets selected Burke for his strong management background and his involvement in the community.

Burke holds a B.B.A. in management and a B.S. in business administration from the University of Massachusetts at Amherst. He is president of the Quincy Citizens for Quality Education.

He said he is looking forward to continuing and expanding programs the Council offers to seniors.

"I'd like to continue the fine programs initiated by Thomas Koch and the Council on Aging. They've done a great job in the past.

I'd like to continue that tradition and expand on the programming," he said.

A resident of Alrick Road for 14 years, Burke is also involved in many other civic organizations. He is committee chairman for the Boy Scout Troop and Cub Scout Pack 32 of St. Mary's Church; an associate member of the Ward 4 Democratic Committee; and a member of the North Quincy High School Cheerleader's Parent Club, St. Mary's Home and School Association and Charles Bernazzani PTO.

Burke is also a Eucharist minister at St. Mary's Church.

He is married to the former Denise J. Morgan of North Quincy. They have seven children, all of whom attend school in Quincy.

A Bit Of A Stir

Not since former Councilor Jack Lydon stopped his annual St. Patrick's Day bash has there been such a gathering as the one Rep. Steve Tobin hosted the other night.

Over 400 turned out for the Tobin St. Patrick's version at Morrisette Legion Post. At $15 per.

The event brought out quite a few political figures, raised a few eyebrows and may have ended some speculation.

Among those attending: House Speaker George

TOBIN

SHEETS

Sheets and O'Connell caused a bit of a stir as they walked in together and later left together.

"Is O'Connell being appointed to something?" a few wondered. "Has Sheets taken him on as a consultant in these days of financial crisis?" No. Although they walked in together, they arrived in separate cars. And although they walked out together, they again left in separate cars.

But the pair, long-time good friends, are still that: good friends. And, if Sheets ever needed a helping hand, O'Connell would be there with it.

But right now, His Honor, is doing a pretty good job, by himself, thank you.

But Sheets' presence at the Tobin affair should put to rest speculation that he might run a candidate against Tobin -- or back one -- this fall.

Tobin was in the O'Connell mayoral camp last year. Some City Hall observers were predicting Sheets would be with another candidate in the state representative race as sort of political retaliation.

But Sheets apparently isn't built that way and has given no indication of entertaining any political revenge thoughts.

A good chunk of Tobin's state representative district is in West Quincy, Sheets' backyard, incidentally.

And Sheets is astute enough to know that now is no time for the mayor of Quincy to be feuding with Quincy's Beacon Hill delegation.

Now is the time to row together for the good of Quincy. And forget the politics.

SENATOR Paul Harold was elected the only new director of the Charitable Irish Society on St. Patrick's Day at the Old State House.

He attended the annual dinner that night at the Copley Plaza with John Hume who represents Northern Ireland in the British Parliament.

Harold also attended Senate president Bill Bulger's annual St. Patrick's Day breakfast in South Boston Sunday morning.

He later met with Hume to discuss the move to have Catholics hired in the private and public sectors in Northern Ireland.

Hume's son, Edin, incidentally works for the O'Connell Brothers in Quincy in a financial capacity.

QUINCY WAS CONSPICUOUSLY absent from the line of march in the St. Patrick's Day Parade in Southie Sunday.

Usually Quincy elected officials make a prominent appearance but were a "no show" this year. First time in something like 15 years.

LONG QUINCY representative reportedly was Squamton's John Walsh, past commander of the Nickerson Legion Post, who served as personal aide to the parade's chief marshal, Michael Linehan.

The parade, sponsored by the Allied War Veterans Council of South Boston, was dedicated to the memory of the 24 Americans who gave their lives during the Panama invasion.

THAT SCULPTURE in front of new City Hall has become a daredevil course for young skateboarders.

The abstract granite sculpture commemorates the drafting of the Massachusetts Constitution by John Adams, Samuel Adams and James Bowdoin in Adams' Quincy law office in 1780. It was placed there in 1980 on the bicentennial of the document.

There are three forms that are supposed to represent the two Adams' and Bowdoin and there are three sloping horizontal forms. The kids ride them and flip off.

A miscalculation and someone is going to be seriously injured.

'Massachusetts Massacre'

our money being spent?

There are 6,400 ticket agents* in the state of Massachusetts. There are 5,500 on-line machines owned by the state and rented out to the agent at $2 per day*. On a 30-day month the state collects $330,000 for the rental. That equals $3,960,000 per year! Remember, that is just the rental.

I was told of one agent that collects approximately $1,200 per night on just the daily number! We all know that some agents will collect less and others will collect much more. Generalizing on this

$1,200 figure and multiplying it by the 6,400 agents it equals $7,680,000 collected per night!

Again, we know full well that some agents will pay out more and others less. I use a general pay out for the agents of $1,000. Now, take $7,680,000 less $6,400,000 for a payout equals a take-in for the state of $1,280,000 per night. Now, $1,280,000 per night times a 30-day month equals $38,400,000. This plus $300,000 per month for machine rental equals $38,700,000 per month. This figure times 12 months equals $464,400,000!! Just on the daily numbers game.

What are the figures for Megabucks? What are the figures from Mass. Millions? What are the figures from the Instant Game tickets? What are the figures from the 5% tax taken from every bingo game in the state?

Residents of Massachusetts it is time for us to find out just where and how our money is being spent. It is time for us to rebel! No more taxes, no more cuts!!

BURGLARY PREVENTION TIPS -

A PUBLIC SERVICE FROM YOUR LOCAL INSURANCE AGENCY

Having the right kind of insurance protection gives you the peace of mind that your home and its contents are protected in the event of a covered loss.

However, there is much that the individual homeowner can do to further insure the safety of his most costly possessions.

1. When you're away, make your home appear "lived in." Invest in a timer that will turn house lights on and off at irregular intervals.
  2. Make certain every entrance way and window is securely locked.
  3. Ask newspaper and other service people to halt delivery of items until you return at a stated date.
  4. Ask neighbors to keep an "eye" on your house and report any suspicious occurrences to the police.
  5. Notify your local police that you will not be home and to pay special attention to your house when they make their regular rounds.
  6. Perhaps ask a neighbor to park his car in your driveway.
  7. Invest in a quality burglar alarm system.
- Unfortunately, and despite every precaution, house burglaries do occur and the only other protection you have is an adequate theft and property replacement policy.
- If you are considering protection get in touch with the insurance professionals at Riley & Rielly Insurance Agency, Inc. Please visit our office at 1050 Hancock Street in Quincy or give us a call at 471-8200.

detectors and other fire hazards such as a lack of fire walls, fire doors or extinguishers.

To crack down on illegal apartments, Reikard suggests better communication among the four departments. Presently, one department may not notify the other departments when it learns of an illegal unit.

For example, if someone reports an illegal apartment to the assessor's office, they immediately record it for tax purposes to start collecting taxes on that unit on the next tax bill. However, the assessor's may not inform the other departments about the unit; thus, safety and health violations may go undetected. The same is true for the other departments which happen to hear about an illegal apartment.

To crack down on the number of illegal units in Quincy, Reikard suggests:

Notification of the assessor's office, health and building department and fire inspection when an illegal apartment is reported.

-Notification of the assessor's office, health and building departments and fire inspection when an illegal apartment is reported.

-Requiring landlords to pay taxes back to the city from the time they had a tenant occupy that illegal unit. This is to remind landlords that they can't just put up illegal and unsafe apartments when they want to, she said.

-Requiring landlords to pay double for the permits and licenses they never pulled in the first place. This would also serve as a deterrent to adding illegal units and bring extra revenue to the city.

Presently, Reikard said the landlord "gets off almost 'scot-free'" when an illegal apartment is discovered. The landlord has to pay taxes on the unit on the next bill and pull permits and licenses only if and when the building department rules the unit can be made legal.

"No one is penalized except the tenant. Their problem is now. Sure, the landlord loses the rent for the time being or for the future, but they also gained that extra rent for the time the illegal apartment existed and should not have been there in the first place," Reikard said.

She is more disturbed by tenants being put out of their homes with nowhere to go, nowhere to put their belongings and no resources for moving.

"I usually end up begging the building department for a few extra days which can make for a very dangerous situation knowing the place is unsafe and could go up in smoke at any time," she added.

In some cases, there is relief for tenants if their case goes to court. If the judge rules that a tenant has been living in an illegal unit, the tenant will be awarded a certain number of month's rent, Reikard noted.

"(The tenants) are at least getting some rent money." Reikard admitted that the city probably cannot prevent all landlords from adding illegal apartments.

"But at least, with the adoption of the above suggestions and others you may receive, the landlords may stop and think twice before acting and, in most instances, they won't add the units at all until they are ready to comply with the law and the ordinances."

To inquire about an apartment's legality, call Reikard at 773-1380.

With a higher classification, they said many businesses would be forced to close.

They also said the higher classification would deter new businesses from locating in Quincy.

Maureen Rogers of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce noted that with either the 157 or 175 percent classification, Quincy would still have the highest C.I.P.P. rate among South Shore towns.

"We're amiable at staying at 157 percent," she said.

Eileen Cohen, executive director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, pointed out that during the past year, 12 businesses in Quincy Center closed resulting in 600 lost jobs.

One resident, Cliff Pampin, spoke in favor of the 175 percent classification. He said the 157 percent would result in a higher residential proportion of the levy and that would force some people to move out of the city or never locate here.

Chretien To Hold Neighborhood Meeting March 27

Ward 3 Councillor Larry Chretien will hold an informal public meeting Tuesday, March 27 at 7 p.m. in the second floor conference room of City Hall.

The purpose of the meeting is to give all Ward 3 residents an opportunity to ask questions and express their concerns about current issues. Residents living north of Beale Street and south of Holbrook Road are encouraged to attend.

Additional meetings will be held throughout the spring, each focusing on other neighborhoods within Ward 3.

The time and place of each meeting will be announced as they are scheduled.

In another matter Councillor Chretien announces that the traffic accident rate for the neighborhood bounded by Newport Avenue, Beale Street, Highland Avenue and Holbrook Road has fallen 44 percent since July 1989.

City Traffic Engineer David Kinneen attributes the drop in the number of accidents to the establishment of one-way streets and four-way stop signs in that area.

Future reductions are to be expected, Chretien noted, as a result of traffic signal modernization on Newport Avenue. The work, which should be completed by late spring, is expected to improve traffic flow.

Chretien said this should help prevent commuters from cutting through neighborhood streets.

Burgin Leaves City Political Ring

City Councillor Thomas S. Burgin announced that he would not run for reelection or for Mayor but that he might go for Governor's Council if Charles J. Gabriel (R-Hingham) decides to give up the seat.

March 22-28
33 Years Ago

The 54-year-old Burgin has served Quincy as a city councillor, state rep and mayor since 1924 when he was first elected as one of the youngest councillors in the city's history.

"Possibly, at some future time, should it be the desire of our citizens, there may be a further opportunity for added responsibilities in either our state and national governments," said Burgin.

Burgin was considered the only possible strong candidate against Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa, twice chosen by his Council colleagues but who would have to face the electorate when Plan A replaces Plan E on Jan. 1.

Gabriel was reported ready to abandon his post on the governor's council to run for the Congressional seat held by Cong. Donald W. Nicholson (R-Wareham).

10 PERCENT RAISE PROPOSED

Mayor Della Chiesa announced that the City Council reached agreement in closed session on a 10 percent raise for city employees, effective July 3, with no raise more than $500.

The Mayor said the increases for all but teachers, engineers and some city hospital workers, would bring the 1957 tax rate up to a little under $66 compared to $66.60 for the previous year.

Patrolman William H. O'Donnell, chairman of the wage increase committee, said the city policemen were dissatisfied with the proposed 10 percent hike and "some of the fellows are looking around now."

Low-Cal Stuffed Fish

Last week my brother John brought me a large fresh Cod fish split in half and boneless. I froze one half of it and stuffed the other and then folded the large piece and baked it. I used fresh spinach plus a few other ingredients for the stuffing which kept the fish nice and moist. Here is the recipe for the stuffing.

STUFFED COD FLORENTINE
1 bag of fresh spinach
1 cup seasoned bread crumbs
2 Tbsps or so of tomato sauce
2 Tbsps of grated cheese (any kind)
Salt and pepper to taste

Cook the spinach your own favorite way. I sauteed mine with a little oil and garlic. After that is cooked, add all the other ingredients and blend well. In a slightly greased roasting pan, lay the fish down longways. Then place the stuffing over the top and then fold the fish once.

Put a couple of toothpicks to hold the ends together and bake covered in a 350 degree oven for about 25 minutes and then about 10 minutes aor so uncovered. Let cool for a few minutes and then cut into slices. I served it with rice, but it will go with just about anything.

Quincy Community Action To Benefit From Walk For Hunger

More than 35,000 New Englanders will gather on the Boston Common Sunday, May 6 to step into a new decade of walking and caring for the hungry at Project Bread's 21st annual Walk for Hunger.

The Walk for Hunger is the largest annual walking event in the world and the largest, one-day fundraiser against local hunger in America.

The Walk supports more than 300 soup kitchens, food pantries and emergency shelter feeding programs in Eastern Massachusetts.

"The goal for the 1990 Walk for Hunger is to rally the entire community and launch a campaign to eliminate local hunger by the year 2000," said Shoshana Packiarz, executive director of Project Bread.

According to Mary Brelsford, director of Community Programs for Southwest Community Center in Quincy, which benefits from the walk, the numbers of hungry have multiplied.

"Sometimes we run out of food and have to turn away families with young children. Without the Walk for Hunger, we couldn't supply the needed food."

Data compiled by the Project Bread Hunger Hotline shows hunger affects at least 500,000 Massachusetts residents who live at or below the poverty line, including 200,000 children.

One in every five children and one in every two black children under the age of six are at risk of going to bed hungry each night.

Families with young children represent the fastest growing segment of the hungry, Packiarz said.

The Walk begins between 7 and 9 a.m. on the Boston Common by Charles Street and winds 20 miles through Boston, Brookline, Newton and Cambridge before returning to the Common. Water, first aid and portable toilets will be at each checkpoint and snack stop along the route.

Individual interested in walking or sponsoring a walker should contact Project Bread at 723-5000.

Parents Protest Bus Cuts

By JANE ARENA
Parents of Lincoln-Hancock School students want the School Committee to reconsider its decision to cut between four and six buses from the school system beginning next fall.
On Monday of this week the school's Parent-Teacher Council sent home with students a bulletin urging parents to attend the School Committee meeting scheduled for Wednesday night at 6:30 p.m. at Quincy High School.
"Let your opinion be known about busing, budget cuts and class size," the bulletin reads.
School Supt. Dr. Robert Ricci explained Tuesday that the School Committee had voted 4-3 Saturday to adopt a new school bus limit policy for next year, under which all students who live within three-quarters of a mile from school will walk rather than be bused to and from school.

Voting in favor of the bus limit policy were Mayor James A. Sheets, chairman of the School Committee, and members Frank Anselmo, Mary Collins and Ron Mariano. Committee Vice Chairman Frank Santoro and members Jane Powers and Steve Durkin voted against the policy.

Ricci said that Quincy has never had such a policy and that by implementing one the school system will save some $180,000.

The three-quarter mile limit will apply to morning session kindergarten children and students in grades 1-5. Afternoon session kindergartners will fall under a half-mile limit.

The Lincoln-Hancock School had no figures Tuesday as to how many of the school's 569 students would be effected by the bus cuts.
Ricci said that, city-wide, about 654, or approximately one half of the students currently being bused to schools, will be effected.

"It's going to cause some problems for those students who are effected," Ricci said, but added that it will also save money for education.

"The alternative is to cut more teachers," he said, "And our objective is to save as many teachers as possible... this is something we have to do... and this is something that other districts are doing."

Ricci said that in some cities and towns the school bus limit is as high as a mile and a quarter, meaning students would have to walk that distance to and from school.

He said that an undetermined number of students at the Sterling Middle School, in the former Quincy Point Middle School district of the city, will have to walk one and a quarter miles to and from school. He had no exact figures Tuesday.

Currently the city leases 22 buses from the Ryder Bus Company, many of which had recently failed state safety tests.

On Saturday the School Committee voted 6-1 to renew the Ryder contract for only eight buses and the city will replace the others with new city-owned school buses.

Ricci said that city-owned buses will be less expensive to operate and maintain than Ryder buses.

The Lincoln-Hancock School PTC is also concerned about teacher cuts. According to their first bulletin, sent out on Thursday of last week, "class sizes at Lincoln-Hancock will be approaching 30 or more per class in many grades."

According to Ricci, the average class sizes at the school for next year will be "down pretty low in the lower grades and will only reach an average of 27 students per class in fourth and fifth grades. He noted that school policy allows for between 26 and 28 students per class in fourth and fifth grades.

The average kindergarten class at the school will have 20 students next year, first grade will average 23, second grade, 19 and third grade, 24, Ricci said.

The School Committee had planned to set aside some time at Wednesday's meeting for an open forum for citizens to address their concerns.

Ricci said Tuesday that he expected the meeting would be well-attended.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

SUPPORT THE GIRL SCOUTS...

We have a soft spot in our heart for any program which works with and benefits children. Anything which will allow children to learn and grow and enjoy themselves is good and needs all the support we can give it... The latest, but by no means, the newest, project helping children in the annual drive to sell Girl Scout cookies. Each year the bulk of the funding for area councils of girl scout troops is derived from the sale of these delicious morsels. So, not only do you get cookies at a reasonable price, but your money goes to help support one of the most worthwhile and productive programs in the United States.

As has been stated, the members of the organization point with justifiable pride to their chief accomplishment; that of having transformed women's aspirations of yesterday into today's concrete realities. The impact of Girl Scouting on the lives of the present generation will be felt through the rest of the eighties and beyond.

So, when the Girl Scouts knock on your door, be generous. Remember, you are not just buying a box of cookies, you are contributing to the growth of girls throughout the United States ...

Roach Population Staggering...

But Elimination is Possible With New Control Measures

Imagine. If left untreated, the cockroach population in an average American city could soar to 247 trillion within just one year. That's what experts at the Raid Center for Insect Control predict if we do not use insecticide to control our roach problems.

"For every roach you see, there are hundreds hiding in the walls. In fact, we've been in many apartments across the nation that have 10,000 or 20,000 roaches in them. That number is not all that uncommon," said Dr. Keith Kennedy, Group Leader, Entomology Research, S.C. Johnson Wax Raid Center for Insect Control, a leading authority on household insects and insect management.

These experts also estimate cockroaches can carry up to 50 disease-causing viruses, allergens and bacteria. And, according to statistics released by the United States Department of Agriculture, roaches cause between $2-3 billion in damage each year.

To help control our nation's worst household pest, Raid Center scientists recommend the following tips:

- Vacuum regularly, wipe up all spills and wash dishes promptly. Scrub counter tops, under sinks, under and behind household appliances like the refrigerator and the dishwasher, along baseboards and any other hard-to-reach and/or damp areas where roaches tend to hide.
- Apply, systematically, new Raid Max Aerosol, Fogger, Roach Bait and Ant Bait. If applied every 3 months, even the most severe roach infestations can be controlled.

- Empty trash regularly and use disposable plastic liners in garbage containers.
- Be sure to remove stacks of old newspapers, clothing or debris, since roaches find these materials a comfortable place to rest and breed.

- Use a dehumidifier in rooms such as the basement, since humidity and darkness attract roaches.
- Reduce roach entry points in apartments by stuffing seal wool or other flexible, fire-proof materials into any open spaces around plumbing or heating pipes.

- Check windows and doors to make sure they fit properly when closed.
- Check grocery bags and cartons for roach egg cases before storing them in your home.
- Urge your neighbors to use the Raid Max system to avoid roaches entering your home through shared walls, ceilings or floors.

The First Step In Reducing Radon Risk

radon decay products leads to an increased risk of lung cancer.

Radon can be detected by specially designed radon detection equipment. There are two common types of short-term screening detectors; charcoal canisters and alpha track detectors. The EPA recommends that if a high level of radon is detected by either of these methods, long-term, professionally administered testing be conducted to determine the average concentration, and the methods necessary to reduce that concentration.

Radon is measured in "PicoCuries per liter" of air (pCi/l). The EPA recommends the following: For concentrations of less than 4 pCi/l, action is not necessarily required. For concentrations between 4 pCi/l and 20 pCi/l, action is recommended within several years. For concentrations between 20 pCi/l and 200 pCi/l, remedial measures are recommended within several months. For levels exceeding 200 pCi/l, immediate action is required. No matter what the level of radon detected, your first step in reducing your radon risk is sealing the cracks, joints, pipes, seams, and other areas where radon may be present. According to the EPA, these areas represent the radon entry routes responsible for 85-90% of the total gas present.

Geocel Corporation has developed a sealant specifically designed to seal against radon. Radon Shield Metallic Sealant has been formulated to protect homes by sealing cracks, joints, gaps and seams against the free passage of radon gas. Radon Shield is easy to use, has excellent flexibility and superior long lasting adhesion to dry or wet concrete, masonry, galvanized metal, wood, PVC or ABS pipe and other common building materials. As stated in the EPA document, "Radon Reduction Methods," (pub. OPA-87-010) "for buildings with marginal radon problems, sealing alone may be sufficient." Homes with high levels of radon would require additional radon reduction methods. However, no matter what additional methods are required, sealing is always a part of the total mitigation effort.

For a free brochure, write to Geocel Corporation, P.O. Box 398, Elkhardt, IN 46515. Geocel is a member of the American Radon Association.

Home Equity Loans Pay Off For Improvements At Tax Time

Since the Tax Reform Act of 1986, the nation has seen an explosion in the popularity of home equity loans. These loans are one of the fastest-growing sources of consumer credit, since the interest paid on them is usually fully deductible for people itemizing using Schedule A.

Like a second mortgage, home equity loans can be used to finance any number of things, including education, vehicles or credit card debt. A growing number of consumers who assume a home equity loan, however—approximately 42 percent—use them to finance home improvements.

While many homeowners use professional contractors to do their remodeling, do-it-yourself projects can also be financed with a home equity loan. Upgrading the insulation levels in your attic, for example, is a project you can easily do yourself in an afternoon. Or, on a larger scale, you can hire a professional insulation contractor to insulate your attic and hard-to-reach areas in your home like the side walls. In either case, using a quality product like CertainTeed Fiber Glass Insulation will help to guarantee that your home meets the new energy standards recommended by the Department of Energy which will keep your home more comfortable and cost-efficient year round.

The amount one can borrow under a home equity loan is calculated on a percentage (usually 75 to 80 percent) of the home's appraised value, minus the unpaid balance of the mortgage. Home equity loans allow the homeowner to take the money as it is needed by writing a check or using a credit card. In addition, this type of loan can be flexible and can run for long periods of time, or be open-ended.

Rates for home equity loans vary, although they are often set at two percentage points above the prime rate. Also, the repayment periods are generally shorter than first mortgages.

For a free booklet entitled "The New Tax Laws and the Energy Efficient Home," write to the CertainTeed Home Institute, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, PA 19482.

North Quincy Hopes High For Next Year

By TOM SULLIVAN

Dave Peters' first year as North Quincy hockey coach had its ups and downs, but the former Abp. Williams and Boston College player was pleased at the way the Raiders were competitive throughout the season.

North got off to a great start, winning its first five games against Greater Boston League opponents, but the Raiders went only 3-9-2 the rest of the way and finished its final Suburban League season with an overall 8-9-2 mark.

Peters is looking forward to next season, North's first in the Old Colony League, with an excellent nucleus which will include 12 returnees from this year's varsity as well as the entire junior varsity squad.

"I was disappointed that we missed the tournament this year, but I was pleased with our 5-2 record against Greater Boston League teams," Peters said. "We are going to miss a lot of goals with the graduation of Sal Manganaro (45 points), Joe Fasano (38 points) and Brian Zimmerman, and will be losing our top defenseman, Jim McCarthy and Armando Mancini. We will have to play a different type of game and get more people into the games."

Leading the returnees will be Mike DesRoche, Mike Christopherson and Chris McCallum, all experienced forwards, and Matt Swierk and Duane Keegan, experienced defensemen.

Both varsity goalies will be back, junior Pat O'Donoghue and freshman Sean Connelly. "Pat did an excellent job this year and Sean showed a lot of potential," Peters said. "He played two full games and saw action in three others."

Other varsity returnees will be forwards Bill Lydon, Mike O'Brien, Sean Hannon, Steve O'Brien and Matt Reilly and defenseman Mark Zych.

"The junior varsity finished just under .500 and coaches Peter DiBona and Peter Furtado did a fine job," Peters said. "We will have several good looking jayvees coming up."

The Raider coach expects big things especially from Sean Vermette, Aidan O'Donoghue, Alan Murray, and John Jarnis.

ALTHOUGH failing to make the Eastern Mass. Tournament, the North Quincy boys' basketball team finished strong with impressive wins over B.C. High and Boston Latin to finish at 10-10. Front, left to right, Dave Cawthorne, Dan McLain, Desmond Bellot, Jeff Calvert, Steve Kavol and Heung Kao. Back, Sean Donovan, Brian Curran, Eric DeBoer, Billy Warren, Brian O'Malley and Angelo Kyranis.

St. Ann's, St. John's To Play For Title

St. Ann's A basketball team of Wollaston avenged last year's loss to Quincy Point Congregational in the finals by taking a 30-17 win in a Samson Division semifinal game in the South Shore YMCA Church League.

St. Ann's took an early lead behind the fast breaking of Brian Doyle and John Sullivan, Quincy Point's Rickey DeCristofaro kept his team close with his free-throw shooting and several coast-to-coast hoops. St. Ann's led 16-12 at halftime and 20-16 going into the final quarter.

Chris Gregoli heled St. Ann's pull away with six fourth-quarter points. Adam Goodrich and Jim Sullivan had key baskets. Keying the defense were Matt Melchin and Brad Hajrizaj. DeCristofaro led all scorers with 13 points. Gregoli and Doyle had 10 each and Sullivan six.

St. John's ended a two-year drought by defeating Our Lady of Good Counsel, 22-19. Tough defense by Steve Maze and Matt McLoughlin keyed a 7-0 St. John's run and erased a two-point fourth quarter deficit.

Jason Crossman hit the winning basket while Scottie Quinn's basket helped ice the win. Playing strong defense for St. John's were Mike Keenan and Sean Wilkowsky. Playing well for Our Lady were Mark Miller and Scott Staiti.

Raiderettes Lose Opener

ENC Students To Perform

Moliere's 'Imaginary Invalid'

Moliere's "The Imaginary Invalid" (a.k.a. "The Hypochondriac") will be performed on the stage of Eastern Nazarene College's Cove Fine Arts Center beginning March 29.

Director Jeffrey D. Frame, an ENC communication arts professor, has recaptured the original style and spirit with which Moliere's play was originally performed in 1673 by reproducing the "look" of mid-seventeenth century France. From beneath the elegance and flourish of the French neoclassic ornamentation, however, the "commedia dell'arte" (or Italian farce) influence so prominent in Moliere's comedies erupts into a wildly caricatured and action-filled spectacle of laughter.

One of Moliere's frequent attacks upon the quacks and pretending physicians of his day, "The Imaginary Invalid" sharply ridicules those who claim to do something they are not. The consequences of hypocrisy, a recurring theme among mid-seventeenth century playwrights, lies at the heart of this delightfully romping farce and bites even more deeply into our contemporary society's inability to separate "the mask from the face."

Through numerous pretenses, disguises, and bluffs, the malingering father, the lovesick daughter, the calculating stepmother, the handsome young lover, the well-meaning brother, the mischievous maid, and the various diploma-flaunting medicinal quacks all set the stage for one of Moliere's most brilliant burlesques of deceitfulness.

Performances will be held Thursday, March 29 at 7 p.m.; Friday, March 30 at 10 a.m. and 7 p.m.; and Saturday, March 31 at 7 p.m. Admission is $3.

For tickets or other information, write "The Imaginary Invalid" Eastern Nazarene College, 23 E. Elm Ave., Quincy, Mass. 02170, or call the ENC Box Office at (617)773-6350.

In conjunction with Mayor James Sheets' "Cleaner, Greener Quincy" project, Ward 1 will sponsor its cleanup Saturday, April 1, weather permitting.

Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson said the cleanup will focus on cleaning problem areas and "areas that are eyesores in the community that are not addressed on a regular basis."

All interested parties and all volunteers are urged to join in this effort. Boy and Girl Scout troops, civic groups and civic-minded residents are asked to participate.

Gloves, bags, trucks, and pickups will be provided by the city for the day. Kolson will provide refreshments.

Additional information and details will be announced shortly.

Kolson can be contacted by leaving a message at the City Council office, 773-1380, ext. 341.

"An early response would be appreciated so that we can start to organize what should be a great day for Ward 1 and a great kick-off for a Cleaner and Greener Quincy," Kolson said.

"I look forward to helping and participating in any way I possibly can to help achieve this goal," he added.

Water Leak Detection Discovers 1,539,000 Gallon Daily Loss

A $119,000 leak detection survey by the MWRA on 240 miles of water main in Quincy has detected 58 leaks, causing an estimated daily loss of 1,539,000 gallons of water.

The recent detection survey will save the city $287,000 next year, according to Department of Public Works Commissioner David Colton. "In addition to fiscal benefits, it's gratifying to know that we are doing our part to promote water conservation," Colton said.

MWRA executive director Paul Levy said the Authority is very pleased with the proactive approach Quincy has taken toward water conservation.

"Over the past several years, Quincy has conducted its own municipal leak detection surveys, initiated several public education efforts and responded quickly to repair the leaks discovered in the MWRA's study.

"By June of this year, we will have inspected over 6,000 miles of municipal water pipes in 46 water service communities. We encourage all of our water use communities to follow Quincy's example," he said.

The program is divided into two levels; leak detection and repair in MWRA pipes and aqueducts and leak detection and repair of pipes in MWRA communities. The MWRA recently completed surveying and repairing its own water distribution pipes.

Because leakage problems in MWRA communities tend to vary depending on the age and condition of the local system, the proposed approach to the leak detection survey also varies.

For communities with more than a 10 percent unaccounted for water loss, the MWRA offers "water audits". This practice involves sectioning off portions of the system to measure the flow of water more accurately.

For communities with less than a 10 percent unaccounted for water loss, the MWRA conducts leak detection with either an aquascope or electronic sensors, which are placed within the system.

The leak detection survey conducted in Quincy consisted of a preliminary general listening survey conducted above the mains, on fire hydrants, and valves throughout the distribution system.

To pinpoint the leaks, a detailed location survey was conducted on those areas of the distribution system which showed a potential for leakage, using specific electronic amplifiers capable of detecting the smallest amount of leakage possible.

Advisory Council Recommends Ricci Contract Be Renewed

The contract of School Supt. Robert Ricci was recommended for renewal by businessmen and women who serve on the Advisory Council at Quincy Vocational-Technical School.

The committee passed a unanimous resolution which had been forwarded to the School Committee after a recent meeting.

The committee also recommended the publicizing of Dr. Ricci's accomplishments and leadership capabilities. Members stressed his insight into the need for expanded technical education for all city students and support for educational accomplishments of the Vocational-Technical School.

The Advisory Council is comprised of men and women from a variety of fields and occupations who meet regularly and advise school administrators about changing trends in business and industry.

QHS-Vo-Tech In Blood Drive

Quincy High School and Quincy Vocational-Technical

High School recently participated in a blood drive, setting a record for the highest participation in the history of both schools.

Raymond Eldridge, a teacher at the Vocational School, served as the blood drive coordinator. He attributes the healthy participation rate to a growing awareness among students about the need for blood, as well as school spirit and a need for school seniors to bond as a class.

- Shoulder pain, pain down arms, numbness in hands
- Pain between shoulders, difficult breathing, abdominal pains
- Lower back pain, hip pain, pain down leg.

SOUTH BAY CHIROPRACTIC is offering spinal check-ups and postural analysis for early detection of back problems.

TIME magazine says 75 million Americans have backache, and with each passing year, this astronomical figure grows by 7,000,000.

Backache has become a catastrophic issue with the insurance companies and with our national economy. It is one of the top claims for disability. In addition to this, arthritis and rheumatic complaints affect 77 percent of our adult population, and every year millions sustain severe neck injuries from automobile collisions.

With the use of a few simple painless tests we will be able to determine the condition of the spine. Early detection of back problems is the best prevention for future back ailments.

City Hall Rally To Protest Teacher Layoffs, Class Sizes

The Quincy Citizens for Quality Education (QCQE) will sponsor a rally Monday, April 2 outside City Hall to protest increased class sizes and the laying off of 31 teachers.

QCQE members will meet at 6 p.m. at the Quincy Method Center and march to City Hall at 6:30 p.m.

According to QCQE President Judith Brams, the rally is to remind Mayor

James Sheets and city councillors that "increased class sizes and laying off 31 teachers is unacceptable to the citizens of Quincy."

Faced with a cut of $2 million in FY 1991 over this fiscal year, Dr. Robert Ricci has proposed laying off 31 teachers. He, along with other department heads, were ordered to reduce their budgets by six percent by Mayor James Sheets.

The city faces a $15 million deficit in FY 91. The newly approved sewer user fee will raise $9 million of that figure, with the rest of the shortfall to be made up by six percent cuts in all city departments.

The QCQE was formed last September to generate greater support for public education and to promote excellence in education.

Speaking at the City Hall rally will be Toni Kabilian, co-president of the Citywide Parents Council; Tom Walsh, president of the Quincy Education Association and Councilor-at-Large Patricia Toland, a former school committee member.

A rain date will be announced if necessary.

"We urge all of the citizens of Quincy to join us on Monday, April 2 and send a message that we cannot short change our students or ourselves," Brams said.

3 MDC Gates To Open Sunday

The gates at the three MDC reservations in Quincy will open Sunday, April 1 for daytime recreation but it is unknown whether they will stay open because of the state budget crisis.

According to MDC spokesperson Leanne Del Vecchio, the gates at Caddy Park along Wollaston Beach, the Quincy Quarries Historic Site and the Blue Hills Reservation will open Sunday.

A decision on whether they will stay open after the new fiscal year begins July 1 will be made after the MDC's FY 1991 budget is approved, she said.

Like last year, the gates leading into the Blue Hills reservation will be locked from 8 p.m. until dawn. The gates at Caddy Park and Moswetuset Hummock will be locked from dusk to dawn.

Due to limited staffing, there will be minimal maintenance at the reservations with no public programming at some sites and limited public programming at other sites.

Del Vecchio said there will be no programming at Wollaston Beach or at the Quincy Quarries site. She said there are plans for some programs at the Blue Hills Reservation.

Despite the cutbacks, she said she hopes residents take advantage of the open sites and assist the MDC in maintaining the areas.

"The public is welcome in. There is minimal staffing and minimal maintenance. We're really looking for the public to give us a hand in notifying any problems or taking any trash with them."

Kindergarten Registration April 3

Kindergarten registration for the 1990-91 school year will be held Tuesday, April 3 from 9 to 11:30 a.m. and 12:30 to 2:30 p.m. at every public elementary school in Quincy, announces Eugene W. Creedon, director of Elementary and Middle School Education for Quincy Public Schools.

The registration is for all children who will be five years old in the 1990 calendar year.

Parents must present a birth certificate at the time of registration and evidence of immunization for D.P.T., polio, measles, mumps and rubella to comply with State Law, Chapter 590.

New Department of Public Health regulations require children to present evidence of having been previously screened for lead poisoning as a condition for entry into kindergarten.

Children who will be six years old on or before Dec. 31, 1990 and who have not attended public kindergarten may be registered for grade one April 3.

Parents of children living in Lincoln-Hancock, Point-Webster and Snug Harbor School districts may receive information at Kindergarten registration concerning opportunities for preschool early childhood education.

Tax Bills In Mail By Friday

Property tax bills for the second half of FY 1990 will be mailed on or before Friday, March 30 and will be due without interest Tuesday, May 1, announced Tax Collector Dana Childs.

Payments received in the collector's office after May 1 will be assessed a late charge of 14 percent back to April 1, 1990.

Child reminds taxpayers that a payment is considered late if received after May 1 regardless of the postmark

Taxpayers who do not receive a bill by Friday, April 6 should contact the collector's office at 773-1380 Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Promotion, Cleanup, Beautification Goals Sheets Puts Accent On Downtown

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Mayor James Sheets is organizing a new Downtown Committee whose "mission" will be to cleanup and beautify as well as promote, restore and spruce up the historic district.

On Tuesday, Sheets announced the new endeavor and named Councilor-at-Large Timothy Cahill committee chairman.

The overall objective of the committee, which includes three other city councilors, businessmen and private citizens, is to determine the downtown's commercial-retail character.

The committee will also determine how any new residential development will fit into the new commercial-retail character as the 21st century approaches. In addition, the group will consider changing the downtown traffic pattern.

Immediately, Sheets said the committee will begin cleaning up and promoting downtown.

The cleanup and beautification effort calls for collecting litter, removing debris and graffiti and replanting downtown. The mayor noted that Alquist Flower Shop at Penn's Hill is donating 3,600 flowers. Campanelli Industries of Braintree, one of the developers of Presidents Place, has also agreed to donate flowers.

In addition, new sod and flower beds will be planted at various traffic islands throughout the downtown. They include, Liberty Island at the intersection of Elm and Hancock Sts., the Robert Burns statue area, Christmas Island on Hancock Street, McIntyre Mall and Freedom Park which runs along Burgin Parkway from Dimmock Street to the Adams Mansion.

"One of our objectives is to maintain these areas and keep them clean. We can't promote the downtown unless it's clean and beautiful."

"That's what we intend to do immediately," Sheets said.

With the city financially strapped, the mayor said he will use city departments and combine money already budgeted for cleanup work with private funds.

"Whatever money I can get

through the City Council, I'll use. If that's not possible, I'll go to the private sector."

The mayor did not estimate the cost of the cleanup but said, "It looks like we'll be able to do everything in house."

Citizens should be able to notice major improvements by mid-May, he added.

After the clean-up is completed, Sheets said his newly appointed Deputy of Public Works, Leo Kelly, will be responsible for making sure the area remains clean.

He noted Kelly will oversee cleanup personnel in the city's forestry, park and public works departments.

"I expect (Kelly) to make sure the area is kept clean, the flowers properly watered and the grass properly cut."

Kelly will also be responsible for keeping the city's four MBTA stations as well as the Quincy Center, Wollaston and North Quincy business districts clean.

In addition, Sheets said the city will produce a professional film to be used for promotional purposes. He said the city will use the $10,000 it received when former Mayor Francis X. McCauley was awarded the Financial Leadership Award by the U.S. Conference of Mayors this past January.

Sheets said the film would be the "centerpiece" of a city promotional campaign. The film would showcase Downtown Quincy's uniqueness and advantages as a home to potential public and private corporations.

Calling Quincy the "Hub of the South Shore," the mayor said Quincy is unique since it has the MBTA, Burgin Parkway, an excellent school

QYC Seeks Liquor License Porch Extension

By JANE ARENA

The License Board has placed on file a request from Frank Bertoni of the Quincy Yacht Club for an extension of the club's liquor license to include an outdoor porch.

The board noted that the proposal must be advertised, that abutters must be notified of the request and that exact dimensions must be noted on the architect's plans for the extension.

Bertoni told the board the club, the oldest on the east coast, has no air conditioning and said patrons typically take drinks outside to the porch. The practice is illegal without a license extension.

The board noted that the state Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission (ABCC) has cited the club for this action in the past.

Acting Police Chief Captain Paul Nestor said he is concerned that bartenders will have no control over patrons if they are drinking on the outside porch. He said they do have control when patrons are drinking inside the bar.

Bertoni said overall control will be better with the license extension because if the club's liquor license is extended, patrons will be less likely to take their own alcohol outside to drink.

Captain Nestor said he is also concerned because patrons may be able to leave the club property with alcohol.

Bertoni said he will meet with Building Commissioner Matthias Mulvey concerning the plans and dimensions of the club.

Organizations and associations participating in the city's Cleaner-Greener program will meet tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. in the second floor conference room of new City Hall.

According to Mayor James Sheets, more than 80 agencies and organizations will be participating in the program. He said it is probably the most extensive clean-up program in the city's history.

This will be the final meeting in preparation for the clean-up to take place in each of the city's six wards. Clean-up dates for each of the six wards have been set.

Wards 1 and 6 will clean up

Saturday, April 7; Wards 3 and 4 will clean up Saturday, April 21 and Wards 2 and 5 will clean up Saturday, April 28.

Meeting time for all wards is 9 a.m. at these locations:

- Ward 1, Adams Shore Library; Ward 2, Fore River Clubhouse; Ward 3, Wollaston School; Ward 4, Southwest Community Center; Ward 5, Beechwood Community Life Center, and Ward 6, Sacred Heart School.

Knotty Pine Liquor License Transfer Approved

By JANE ARENA

The License Board Tuesday granted a request from Kanelia Katsoulis for the transfer of the common victualer-all alcoholic license as currently held by the Knotty Pine Restaurant, 520-530 Washington St., to Dimitri's Restaurant, at the same location.

Atty. Thomas Williams told the board that Katsoulis, who for 10 years has run Eddie's Diner on a lease basis, purchased the former Knotty Pine Restaurant and plans to manage the establishment with her husband, who will work as the cook. She told the board that she will continue to run the diner for at least another year.

She has never operated an establishment with a liquor license, she told the board, but plans to take courses on the service of alcohol and have her staff do the same.

Williams emphasized that his client wants to run a "family restaurant" and a "first class eating establishment."

Quincy Liquor Inspector Sgt. Richard Laracy had some objection to calling the establishment Dimitri's 'Pub' and Restaurant, Williams said, but Katsoulis had no objection to taking the word 'Pub' out of the name. She wants a restaurant, Williams said.

Katsoulis requested operational hours of 11 a.m. to 1 a.m. Ward Two Councillor Ted DeCristofaro said he would prefer a closing hour of midnight. Katsoulis had no objection, she said, because she had planned to close earlier so that she could get back to the diner by 1 a.m.

Board Chairman John Gillis recommended starting with a later closing hour and moving it back to midnight later because it would be easier for her to do so.

The board also granted a weekend opening of 7 a.m. so that brunch could be included on the menu.

Both Gillis and DeCristofaro said they are pleased that the Knotty Pine will be a family restaurant.

"We're happy and we certainly wish you the best," DeCristofaro said.

"Quincy Point deserves something like this," Gillis added.

The board granted the license pending a team inspection by the Health, Building and Fire Departments.

'The Good Old Days'

Today's City Council meetings are pretty tame compared to the "good old days" when mayors used to get involved in the sessions and resulting sparks often flew.

Before New City Hall was built during Joseph LaRaia's administration in 1976-77 the mayor's office was on the second floor of old City Hall just off the City Council chamber.

The office is now occupied by the present City Council president, Ted DeCristofaro.

When it was the mayor's office he was often there when the council was in session. And, if a councillor had a question on an order His Honor would be invited to come in and explain it and he was happy to oblige.

Often he hung around for a good part of the meeting. One memorable night in April, 1960, Mayor Amelio

DELLA CHIESA

Closing the school was in the best interest of economy, and the city Della Chiesa said.

Della Chiesa was a penny pinching mayor even more tight-fisted than Francis McCauley who would become mayor 30 years later and squeeze pennies pretty tightly, too.

The fact that the council might block the abandonment of the Coddington School and the matter of street betterment abatements that came up earlier in the council meeting rankled Della Chiesa who held onto the city's money like he did his own.

The stage was set for a heated exchange between Della Chiesa and Shea.

The council earlier had deleted two streets from a list of streets on which betterments had been assessed following acceptance and construction.

One of the streets was Wendell Ave. where Eastern Nazarene College owns land and the other Island Ave. where the Great Hill School stood.

Della Chiesa noted that a homeowner on Wendell Ave. would also escape the betterment charge.

"You are giving away $700 of my money and your money and I don't like it," Della Chiesa said.

Shea had also sought to get an abatement for a Ratchford St. property owner on the grounds that he did not benefit from the construction of that street because he couldn't use the street due to the location of the dwelling.

Della Chiesa commented that such abatements were the work of "the give-away boys". It triggered a verbal shootout.

Shea took issue with the reference and asked Della Chiesa if he considered him (Shea) as one of the "give-away boys".

"I would call you the king of the give-away boys," Della Chiesa replied. "You can't say, no. We would have a $200 tax rate if we had nine councillors like you."

Shea countered that he only sought consideration for a few needy people. He was not a give-away boy.

"We would never have any street work done in the city if you didn't have a councillor like me," Shea retorted.

He almost put his fist through his council desk to emphasize his feelings.

Councillor Carl Anderson who had a long-time running feud with City Manager William Deegan in the 1950s and to this day remembers it well, seized the opportunity to note:

"Santa Claus is a mere piker compared to the give-away boys of the Plan Era.

Later that night Shea shook hands with Della Chiesa and said, "No hard feelings."

Three years later -- in 1963 -- the pair would tangle again, this time in a hot mayoral race won by Della Chiesa by an 8,000 vote margin.

But the pair patched things up again and remained friends until Della Chiesa's death.

Nowadays it is very rare for a mayor to appear at a City Council meeting. His executive secretary represents him.

And, with cable television covering the meetings live, there really is no need for the mayor to be there.

James Sheets, for example, can watch the proceedings at home in his living room and if he wants to get his feelings to the council, all he has to do is call Tom Koch on the telephone and have them relayed.

But those council meetings of the "good old days" would make better viewing. You never knew what was going to happen next.

HOW YOU CAN GET "BURNED" IF YOU DON'T HAVE EXTENDED COVERAGE

Fire and lightning are not the only perils that can severely damage your property. What about smoke damage? Explosion, windstorm, hail, riots and civil disturbances? Yes, even aircraft and vehicle damage are possible.

An Extended Coverage Endorsement from Riley & Rielly Insurance Agency, Inc. will protect you - and provide coverage from these hazards. But there's even more heartening news. This excess coverage can also be structured to include your household possessions, and even the landscaping on your property.

A word of caution, however. Inflation has driven up replacement costs of houses and their contents. That's why it's vitally important to insure up to your home's full value.

Insurance protects you against loss. But only you can make certain that the protection you buy is as complete as possible.

Bettinson, Fontaine Say Farewell Two Longtime Familiar Voices Signing Off At WJDA

By ROBERT BOSWORTH
After this weekend, WJDA won't be quite the same.

Two of the Quincy station's well-known personalities are retiring.

Veteran News Director Herb Fontaine will broadcast his last news report Friday and long-time Program Director Win Bettinson will sign-off Sunday.

Combined, the two have nearly 92 years of radio experience.

Bettinson began his career as an announcer at WHEB in Portsmouth, N.H., April 1, 1940. His final broadcast on WJDA Sunday will mark his 50th anniversary in radio.

While at WHEB, Bettinson became the station's program manager. In 1949, he joined WLYN in Lynn. Three years later, he came aboard WJDA and has been there ever since.

Fontaine began his career at WCOU in Lewiston, Maine in 1948. Seven and a half years later, he joined WJDA. He has been the station's news director for nearly 35 years.

Both men will fondly remember their on-air days in Quincy. They say they'll remember some moments and the countless friends they made.

Asked what moment stands out in his career, Fontaine quickly recalls the December, 1977 helicopter crash in West Quincy which claimed the lives of WEEI reporter Henry (Chip) Whitmore and pilot Richard Bank.

The helicopter crashed through the roof and second floor of the 24-apartment building on Station St., injuring four occupants and routing an estimated 40 or 50 others.

Whitmore, incidentally, had been employed by WESX in Salem, WJDA's sister station, before going to work for WEEI.

On that fateful Dec. 27th morning, Fontaine was listening to a police radio when he received word that a traffic helicopter had gone down near Station St.

"It was at 7:30 and 30 seconds when I first heard the news," he recalls precisely.

"I quickly typed out some notes and gave them to Roy (Lind) to read over the air. I imagine we were the first station to break the news."

The station's coverage became famous that day, as dozens of radio and television stations from all over the country called looking for information. The station also got a call from an Australian newspaper reporter later that day.

"That was quite a day. It will always stand out in my mind," Fontaine says.

The veteran newsmen also recalls meeting many public officials and candidates, including former President Jimmy Carter and his wife, Roselyn.

For Bettinson, his early days at WHEB stand out, primarily because those were the days of World War II. He recalls hearing a rumor about a U.S. invasion one day in June, 1944. The rumor turned into D-Day, June 6, 1944, the day when thousands of U.S. troops stormed the beach at Normandy. That invasion signaled the last phase of the war in Europe.

Another time he won't forget was the day when four ships were commissioned and launched at the Portsmouth Naval Yard.

In 1952, Bettinson was hired at WJDA as a salesman by founder James D. Asher. Within a short time, he found himself back on the air.

"They found out I was a better announcer than salesman," Bettinson says with a laugh. He later became the station's program director.

In December, 1982, Bettinson semi-retired. Since then, he has broadcast two shows, "Church of the Wildwood," and "Songs of Faith," both on Sunday mornings.

He'll air his final "Church of the Wildwood" show at 7:30 a.m. and "Songs of Faith" at 8:30 a.m. this Sunday.

Bettinson is unsure whether the shows, which have had a strong following, will continue after he retires.

Looking back at his radio days in Quincy, Bettinson recalls the many years of "Party Line", which first aired about 20 years ago. In some ways, the program, which allows people to call in and discuss subjects of local interest, was the forerunner of today's radio talk show.

"Jerry Williams was just beginning. No one else was doing any talk programs," Bettinson says.

A former Braintree town meeting member, Bettinson also covered many meetings

Quincy's Yesterdays Pyramid Club Falls Apart

One of the largest Pyramid Clubs on the South Shore collapsed after eight members had received payoffs ranging from $8 to $248 but no one got the full amount promised of $2,048.

"The club just ran away from us," said Mrs. Mary Patterson, proprietor of Bobbie's Beauty Shop, 24 Cottage Ave., Quincy Center, one of the club's leaders.

March 29-April 4

41 Years Ago

"We suddenly realized that only one out of 2,000 members could be paid and we thought that the best thing to do was to stop it immediately.

"We figured even if every single person in Quincy joined the club we could only pay off 40 people."

Mrs. Patterson said that the $947 remaining in the club's treasury would be donated to the Quincy Community Chest.

CONDEMNED BOOKS SOUGHT

The New England News Co. sent a letter to Quincy newspaper proprietors asking return of all copies of 20 crime comic magazines and paperback reprints condemned by the Quincy Literary Review Board.

The proscribed paperbacks included five novels by author Donald Henderson Clark described by the Board as "sexy and passionate with blunt and crude descriptions of sexual acts."

Crime comics, said the Board, were blueprints for juvenile delinquency — "all crime but comic in name only."

SCHOOL ADDITIONS PLANNED

School Committee member A. Wendel Clark asked the City Council to expedite funds so that architects could be hired for nearly $250,000 in planned additions to the Wollaston and Atherton Hough Schools.

In the planning stage was a four-room addition to the Hough School at $20,000 a room, and addition of an auditorium at Wollaston School so the old one could be converted into classrooms at a cost of $150,000.

School Supt. Dr. Paul Gossard estimated the elementary school enrollment would jump from 6,500 to 9,500 in the next few years.

How Acupuncture Can Help You

By DANIEL S. KARP

Healing through acupuncture has been handed down over thousands of years in China.

It offers a technique for treating many illnesses by using a few thin, almost hair-like needles. With these, the practitioner is able to regulate the energy of the human body, according to the rules of traditional Chinese medicine.

This theory teaches that all living bodies have a kind of field of energy which is channeled through pathways called meridians. Distributed along this network are the controlling energy centers, the acupuncture points, of which more than 800 are now known.

It is at these points that the skilled practitioner tries to influence the energy flow. Modern techniques are not limited to acupuncture needles but may consist of needle-less electrical stimulation, heat, ultrasound, and other high-frequency modalities as well as manual stimulation therapy.

Acupuncture and Western medicine have the same goal; to help the patient. They do not compete but complement each other. Paracelsus, the 14th century physician, said, "The doctor has only one duty and that is to cure. If he succeeds it will not be important which method he used." More recently, the World Health Organization has concluded that "acupuncture must be taken seriously as a clinical procedure of considerable value."

Patients are often surprised when problems with insomnia, headaches, abdominal pain, back pain or other physical complaints clear up at the same time they are treated for other disorders. This is a fringe benefit. Acupuncture normalizes the body's vasomotor reflex system which, in turn, influences the blood vessels, constricting those that are abnormally dilated and dilating those that are normally constricted.

Workout Club Expands On First Anniversary

The Workout Club in Hingham is celebrating its first year anniversary by expanding its facilities.

The family type health club, which has an up-beat, pleasant atmosphere, now has enough freeweights, nautilus and cardiovascular equipment to satisfy even the most dedicated weightlifting enthusiast.

However, the expanded facilities doesn't mean expanded rates. It costs nothing to join. A person can still walk in and pay just $5 to use the equipment and/or attend any one of the fifty aerobic or exercise classes. The classes are taught by certified instructors, and all levels are taught, ranging from stretch and tone, to low impact, to 1 and 1/2 hour advanced classes.

The club has been very successful in its first year. "People really seem to like the idea of not having to make an expensive, long-term commitment", co-owner David Grabus points out. "It makes a lot of sense to pay for something only when you use it. After all, people don't buy a year's membership at the movies, or for that matter buy enough gasoline all at one time to run your car for a year."

The frequent customer of the Workout Club who wants to save money can. Longer term discount passes, such as 10 visit passes and unlimited use passes for one or more months are available.

Mothers and kids get special attention at the Workout Club. Babysitting for toddlers and children's exercise classes coincide with aerobic classes every morning at 9 to 11:30 a.m., and late afternoons at 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. "The kids really like it here", said Daryl Grabus, the club's co-owner and creator. "We found if you keep the kids safe and happy, the moms get a chance to unwind and have an hour or so just for themselves, without feeling guilty."

The Workout Club is located on Route 3A in the Anchor Plaza behind the Talbott Sales Store in Hingham. Commuters will appreciate the early opening of 6 a.m. The club is always co-ed and maintains impeccably clean showers and lockers for both men and women.

FACTS FROM THE NATIONAL FITNESS LEADERS ASSOCIATION AND ALLSTATE LIFE A PREMIER SOURCE FOR HEALTH AND WELLNESS INFORMATION Motivation For Fitness

By Thomas R. Collingwood, Ph.D.
Institute For Aerobics Research

Sometimes, taking little steps can lead to major strides towards a healthier lifestyle.

The first step towards better health is regular exercise. Motivation is important for a fitness program. Without it, one would drop out. There's a simple five step program that can help you develop the motivation you need for fitness:

1. Define the fitness problem. People are more motivated to exercise if they know why they're doing it. It may be to lose fat because you are overweight or to reduce coronary risk. Write down the problem.

2. Define the fitness goal—exactly what you want to achieve with a fitness program. For example, the goal may be to lose 15 pounds. Whatever it is, it must be written down.

3. Define cues and rewards to specify the little things that help keep you on track. Defining cues means to create little reminders that would help you stick with exercise, like bringing gym clothes to work or putting up a fitness poster. Defining a reward is to define something you like which you can give yourself if you accomplish a program—a T-shirt, a night out on the town.

4. Define a commitment. This should be a written contract with yourself, including the cues you will use to help you, the rewards and the punishments you will give yourself if you don't sustain it.

5. Keep track—constantly monitor your progress. An example is an exercise log where you keep track on a daily basis what you do or what you don't.

What About That Pain in the Neck?

We've all heard the expression, "You give me a pain in the neck," meaning that stress can affect us in a painful way, especially if there is weakness in one's neck.

The neck is the most delicate part of the spine and the most easily injured. It is comprised of seven separate bones that are loosely connected together by ligaments and muscles. The structure of the neck allows for great mobility but also predisposes it to injury. Poor posture, occupation, falling asleep in a chair or on the couch, car accidents, falls, twists and strain take their toll on the neck (cervical spine).

The part of the nervous system housed within the bones of the neck is an extension of the brain. Displacements or misalignments of the neck bones may cause pressure on the adjacent spinal nerves commonly referred to as "pinched nerves."

Some of the symptoms seen most often with pinched nerves in the neck are: headache, sinusitis, dizziness, neck pain, shoulder pain, and arm, numbness, and/or tingling into the arm, hand or fingers.

One should always consult a chiropractor after a motor vehicle accident, fall or strain even if you do not think you are hurt. If you have any questions or would like to make an appointment, please call Dr. Mark Jaehnig, a lifelong Quincy resident, at Quincy Chiropractic Office, 440 Hancock Street, North Quincy - 773-4400.

220 Students To Take Part In Leadership Conference At Vo-Tech

An expected 220 high school youth leaders will participate in the third annual South Shore Leadership Conference Wednesday, April 4 at Quincy Vocational-Technical High School.

The conference, entitled "Count Me In," will focus on issues of prejudice education and conflict resolution in schools and communities.

It is being sponsored by the Northeastern Region of the National Conference of Christians and Jews in cooperation with teachers and administrators from 20 high schools.

They are: Quincy, North Quincy, Quincy Vo-Tech, Abington, Boston School for the Deaf, Braintree, Cohasset, Fontbonne Academy, Hanover, Hingham, Marshfield, Milton Academy, Randolph, Rockland, Scituate, Stoughton, Thayer Academy, Weymouth North, Weymouth South and Weymouth Vo-Tech.

The experience will help students to begin to explore their relationships to one another and to define what leadership is in an ethnically, racially, religiously and socio-economically diverse society.

The conference will be facilitated by high school and college students from the NCCJ Youth Council. The council is comprised of students from diverse racial, ethnic and socio-economic backgrounds who work with NCCJ in developing educational programs in intergroup relations for Greater Boston teens.

Participants will be sophomore and junior student leaders representing a variety of social groups and factions within their schools.

While examining the intergroup conflicts that exist in their schools and communities, students will begin recognizing ways to institute change.

The conference focuses on youth empowerment and enabling youth to share their leadership ideas. Through discussions and a series of experimental activities, students will have the opportunity to define prejudice and conflict and to begin to involve themselves in making a difference in their own communities.

During one session, youths who have experienced direct prejudice and intolerance in their lives will share their "stories" with other youth so that they may hear first-hand some of the intolerances which exist in our world.

Another session will bring together a panel of community professionals who will address issues of the legal aspects of human rights for citizens.

The last session brings students from each city or town together to exchange concrete strategies in which they may achieve changes within their own schools.

Crime Watch

By ROBERT HANNA
Crime Prevention Officer
Quincy Police Department

What Is Suspicious?

No police department can function effectively without the concerned assistance of responsible citizens. The police are depending on you to call and tell us whenever you observe suspicious persons or activity.

Anytime that something seems even slightly "out of place" for the area, or during the time of day, it should be deemed suspicious.

The most obvious things to watch for and report include:

- The stranger entering your neighbor's home when it is unoccupied may be a burglar.
- The scream heard anywhere may mean a robbery or rape in progress.
- Offers of merchandise at ridiculously low prices can mean stolen property.
- The sound of breaking glass could be an accident, housebreak or vandalism.
- Anyone removing accessories, license plates or gasoline from a car should be reported.
- The person that loiters around schools, parks, secluded areas or in the neighborhood could be a sex offender.
- Persons around a neighborhood who do not live there could be burglars.
- Youngsters hanging around a neighborhood when they should be in school could be looking for homes to break into.

REMEMBER: When you call the Quincy Police to report something suspicious you do not have to identify yourself. We will act on every report as if we knew who the caller was.

When reporting suspicious persons please try to give us a description of the person, approximate age, height, weight, color of clothing. If a vehicle is involved try to get a number plate, color of vehicle, type of vehicle (two door, four door, sporty car), and the direction of travel. All of this information will help the responding officers service your call quicker.

Vo-Tech School To Take Part In Recycling

Quincy Vocational Technical School has been earmarked for the next phase in the citywide recycling program.

Michael Wheelwright, principal planner for the Department of Public Works, says a pilot program of collecting high grade paper will provide the necessary statistics to determine if recycling paper is financially worthwhile to the city.

As envisioned, the pilot program will involve teachers and students at Quincy Voc-Tech (Center for Technical Education) and Quincy High School. The program will also link an organization at local high schools called "Students for Environmental Action."

If the program is as successful as Wheelwright predicts, the city will seek bidders to purchase and collect paper for recycling. Beginning immediately, collection hampers will be placed in school offices, classrooms and other key areas for disposal of used paper.

Filled hampers will be left on the loading dock at the Center for Technical Education (QVTS) and collected by Jet-a-way Disposal of Boston. Royal Bolling, Jr., the firm's representative, said Jet-a-way will advise on the value of expanding the paper recycling to all schools and sectors of city government.

"After three or four months, we will have a good indication, based on the paper collected, to determine if the program should be expanded or disbanded," Bolling told city and school officials.

Ramadan Muslim Fast At Islamic Center

The Muslim fast for the month of Ramadan, holiest month of the Islamic lunar calendar, began Tuesday, observed in Quincy at the Fasting is one of the five pillars of Islam and is observed during the hours from dawn to sunset, with restrictions lifted after dark.

Fasting teaches self-restraint and self-discipline, according to Imam Talal Eid, Religious Director in Quincy.

"Fasting is required year after year so that a person renews his strength of will and ultimately learns to make this will power an integral part of everyday life," he states.

At the end of the month of Ramadan, the Holiday (Eid Al-Fitr) will be celebrated. At this time, there will be the payment of alms (Zakat) to the poor, an obligation of every Muslim upon completing the fast.

Night prayers are held every day at the Islamic Center. Inquiries about the Fasting and Prayer time table are welcome.

Spring HOME IMPROVEMENT

Springing out of the winter doldrums, home gets a breath of fresh air

Before giving your home a major overhaul, consider these helpful tips

The rite of spring cleaning is probably as old as spring itself. After a long, hard winter, the first warm breeze of the year casts our surroundings in a fresh light, and stirs our instincts to rejuvenate and improve our nests, to plant and make new starts. The familiar environment we usually take for granted, its dust and dirt, suddenly become as intolerable as the thick wool sweaters we hibernated in all winter.

If you are considering redecorating one or all of the rooms in your house, it's helpful to make some mental notes before making any purchases or hiring contractors.

Remember that every room has a focal point. In the living room, it may be the fireplace. In another, visitors might be drawn to the window. Always identify the strong visual elements in a room and be sure to complement them—with mirrors or matching or contrasting colors, for example—rather than crowd them or detract from their effects.

Often minor, inexpensive decorations can revitalize a room you thought needed a major overhaul. Here are some inexpensive, yet versatile decorating elements to consider:

Lighting

Not all light bulbs need to be soft white, which, contrary to their name are rather harsh. Yellow or golden light is not as blinding and uses less wattage. Golden light even makes a nice substitute for candlelight since it provides a similar warm glow.

Rooms that are meant for relaxation rather than work should not have overhead or fluorescent lighting. Both tire the eyes. Track lights are a nice addition to any room, especially the living room, where the lights can be pointed in different directions to illuminate artwork, photographs, or a bouquet of fresh flowers.

Borders and trompe l'oeil

Decorative borders that run along the top of the walls can be pasted on in a short time. They come in a variety of motifs such as Ionic columns, floral patterns and trompe l'oeil, and are an inexpensive way to add character to a room.

Free brochures offered on home improvements

New this year are the following brochures from leading manufacturers:

- Home improvement videos. "Better Homes and Gardens" offers nine videos on a variety of topics including Room Arranging Do's and Don'ts and Solving Landscape Problems. Box 11430, Des Moines, IA 50336-1430; (800) 678-2699.

- Fancy decks and porches. The Weyerhaeuser LifeWood line of pressure-treated outdoor millwork products allows you to add your creativity to designs for outdoor projects. Call (800) 548-5767.

- Saunas. You now can install Finnish saunas yourself in your home and garden. Finnleo Saunas, P.O. Box 610, Cokato, MN 55321; (800) 346-6536.

Fabrics, glass, and mirrors

If all new furniture is out of the question financially, recovering or simply covering tables and armchairs with a fabric that matches carpeting and drapes might do the trick.

Wooden tables become elegant when covered with a fitted piece of glass. Glass shelves are a light, airy, unobtrusive addition. And, why not get more use out of your crystal bowls by filling each with potpourri and leaving them permanently throughout the house?

If one room or your entire apartment is just too small or too dark, mirrored tiles can be a solution. They come in a variety of sizes and colors and can cover as much or as little wall space as desired. Or, to make a room seem double its actual size, place a standing mirror in a corner from floor to ceiling.

A sense of style

It is often said that the most fashionably dressed women with the most developed sense of style are never the wealthiest. Because they cannot permit themselves to buy every trendy article of clothing that catches their eye, they shop painstakingly for the perfect sweater or shoe that will see them through several seasons. The same principle applies to home decorating: It's the artistic eye of the resident, not the wallet, that makes for a beautiful home. SH905491

EASY-CARE vinyl siding from CertainTeed Corporation is a good investment that can increase your home's beauty and value.

ALL-PURPOSE MEASURING TOOL

The ubiquitous "power return rule" has become the most popular measuring device for virtually every kind of home improvement and do-it-yourself home project, according to the experts at Stanley Tools.

The blade of a "power return rule" automatically returns into the case when released by the user. Rules of this type—used to measure lengths up to 30 feet—have a convenient locking control or brake cam device that secures the blade's position for more accurate measuring.

Dickinson Development Celebrates 10th Anniversary

Dickinson Development, a Quincy-based firm specializing in development, brokerage, management and asset consulting, recently celebrated its 10th anniversary in real estate, reaching a milestone of more than one million square feet of commercial and industrial space.

The company was launched in 1980 with the development of a 75,000-square foot shopping center in Stoughton. Since then, it has developed office parks, shopping centers and industrial buildings in New England and Florida.

Dickinson's two most recent projects include Sharon Commerce Center, a 400,000-square foot business park in Sharon, and Citadel III at Lee Vista Center, a 142,000-square foot six-story office building adjacent to Orlando (Florida) International Airport.

Primarily a developer and manager of office buildings, Dickinson expanded into marketing during the 1980s by forming the brokerage divisions of Bay Realty Group in Massachusetts and Paramount Realty, Inc. in Florida. With this extension, the company can offer prospective clients and tenants a variety of services "under one roof," supported by a knowledge of the real estate market. Both divisions have a combined inventory of property in excess of one million square feet.

Founder of Dickinson Development and President of Bay Realty Group and Paramount Realty, Inc., is Mark Dickinson. A 1969 graduate of Amherst College, he began his real estate career as a broker.

Dickinson joined the Grossman Companies in 1974 and worked in leasing and management. He eventually became director of development, and left to form Dickinson Development in February, 1980.

"The 1980s were a great time to start a real estate development and services company. There was demand for virtually all commercial products and until last year, plenty of capital to finance it," Dickinson said.

"We've done well because we were never driven by tax-orientated decisions and tried to be responsive to market demands, not capital availability."

Continuing, he said, "The present real estate recession requires companies to be flexible and look for more creative opportunities. We're trying to position ourselves with institutions to consult on their asset management needs.

"We are also working on build-to-suit and free development opportunities. We are watching our costs and studying our markets very carefully so we'll be prepared for development opportunities when they arise."

"The rules have changed and the 90s pose some interesting challenges to the development industry. We are equipped to meet those challenges," Dickinson said.

Dickinson's retail ventures include shopping centers, build-to-suits and ground leases that have included major retailers such as McDonald's, Dunkin' Donuts, Osco Drug and Shaws', DeMoulas' and Rich's.

The company is also involved in rehabilitation and re-use projects. They have acquired underutilized buildings which were successfully renovated for re-

Ask Support For Old Deeds Excise Bill

The Norfolk County Advisory Board and the Norfolk County Commissioners are urging county legislators to support a House bill which would divert the old deeds excise to the general fund of each town where a state-taxed property is sold.

Annually, local aid of some $42 million statewide could be guaranteed by taking the monthly stream of old deeds excise from the state treasury and diverting it directly to the treasury of any town where the conveyed property is located.

For Norfolk County towns, such a diversion would have meant some $6 million to the 28 municipalities in calendar year 1988. Even with a declining real estate market, the distribution in calendar year 1989 would have approached $4.8 million.

If the legislation had been in place during 1988, Quincy would have received $730,521.

County officials expressed hope that county legislators would support the proposal since it would guarantee a stream of local aid both independent of the state's appropriating process and beyond the reach of executive impoundment.

Members of the Norfolk

County Commission are James J. Collins, chairman; and David C. Ahearn and Mary P. Collins.

Serving on the county's Advisory Board are Chairman James G. Mullen Jr., Vice Chairman John Youngglass and Secretary David Eldridge.

The Sweetser Family: L.R., Wendy, Kate, Gregg, Susan, Captain (the dog) and Cat.

ALL'S WELL THAT ENDS WELL! Reflecting back on what at the time was a series of traumatic emotional ups and downs, it all seems a comedy now. When something is right and everyone perseveres, good things will happen in spite of the road blocks. It all started on a Sunday afternoon when I previewed a home for customers I had been showing property to for months. Although they were interested in only one location, the description of this home sounded perfect and indeed, it was! But, this turned out to be a "hot" house. A home everyone loved and had to have. Susan was on her way to New York with Kate and Wendy. Gregg had to make a decision about whether or not to submit an offer without Susan. He did, but there was a second offer presented at the same time and when Gregg had to consider how to respond to a counter offer by the Seller, he did not feel that he could be objective because Sue had not seen the house. He decided that he would have to take a chance and wait for her to return, but the other offer met the counter. Susan and Gregg "lost" their dream home. Gregg asked that they be called in the event that the sale did not go through and the listing broker of the property was most understanding and made arrangements for Susan to view her "dream home" upon her return. Now, however, it was so far out of reach.

A series of events occurred and the house came back on the market. This, on the evening before a long planned 4:00 A.M., July 2 departure for Wisconsin for a family reunion on July 4. Through a series of telephone calls from every rest area from Massachusetts to Wisconsin, ship-to-shore calls to the Vineyard where Susan and Gregg were sailing, the assistance of a great back up staff at the office, an offer, counter offer, home and pest inspection were arranged for, all successfully.

Since that happy ending (beginning, if you will), Susan and Gregg have added a beautiful master suite. From that master suite the views are overwhelming and from that very same master suite such goings on on the morning of October 26... Gregg entered a contest. The prize, Joe and Andy of WROR would broadcast their morning radio program from the location requested by the winning contestant. Gregg won and the home and master bedroom became a broadcast studio!

Students Against Racism Conference on Ch. 3

Quincy Community Television will broadcast the first "Student Alliance Against Racism and Prejudice" conference Monday, April 2 at 8 p.m. on Channel 3.

The conference, to be held today (Thursday) at North Quincy High School, brings together representatives from 15 area high schools involved in the Student Alliance Program.

The program is sponsored by the Norfolk County District Attorney's Office in response to a growing number of civil rights violations in many communities south of Boston.

Conference is intended to bring students, teachers, school administrators and concerned members of the community together for the purpose of sharing ideas and programs designed at reducing prejudice.

Guest speakers will highlight the need for community involvement in this important group of young people from war-torn countries, will make an inspirational presentation for the development of understanding of racial and cultural diversity.

9 Area High School Seniors To Attend Palmer Institute

Nine area high school seniors will have a chance to view state government first hand this week at the 11th annual Palmer Institute conducted by Sen. Paul Harold at the State House.

Participating students include:

Brian Glennon, North Quincy High School; Chadbourne Gillette, Thayer Academy; Mark Norman, Archbishop Williams High School; Christen Clarke, Quincy High School; Michael Morrissey, Braintree High School; Doreen Burrell, Holbrook High School;

Donna Delorey, Quincy Vocational-Technical School; Derek Jensen, Avon High School; and Anne Malquist, Woodwode School for Girls.

The Institute was named for Joseph Palmer, the first senator from the Norfolk District. It includes seminars for the students on state government, the role of the media in government, the legislative process, lobbying and meetings with various state officials.

Students attend public hearings, sit in on informal sessions of both the House and the Senate, and attend a luncheon with Lawrence DiCara, an attorney and a former Boston City Councilor.

"The program is intended to provide the young people with an opportunity to learn about the political process and also to advance their awareness of government," Harold said.

Students are selected for the program based on their interest in government by their teachers. The three-day seminar is under the direction of Ann Knafelz, administrative aide to Senator Harold.

Quincy, North Now Officially In Old Colony League

By TOM SULLIVAN

After months of haggling, Quincy and North Quincy are officially members of the realigned Old Colony League effective this fall.

Athletic coordinator Martin Finnegan is working on next year's Old Colony League now that the realignment of leagues all over the state is now a reality. "It took some time to get things settled, but everything has been ironed out and our move from the Suburban League to the Old Colony League, a part of the new Pilgrim Conference is official," said Finnegan. "Arranging schedules when you move into a new league is a really chore and the other athletic directors and I have been working our heads off to get the schedules finalized."

Although Quincy and North Quincy will still be among the smallest schools in the Old Colony League, they will be in with schools nearly the same in enrollment.

North Quincy is the smallest school with a total enrollment of 1225, while Quincy is fifth with 1378, helped by the Vo-Tech School.

Plymouth is the largest school at 2067, followed by Silver Lake, 1747; Barnstable, 1436; Taunton, 1425; Quincy and Vo Tech, Falmouth, 1337; Weymouth North, 1326; Bridgewater-Raynham, 1293, and North Quincy.

With nine schools in the league, Quincy and North will have two outside games in football and four in the other sports.

"We hope to schedule such schools as Weymouth South and Marshfield, which will move from the Old Colony to the South Shore League," Finnegan said.

The South Shore League will comprise Marshfield, Whitman-Hanson, Dennis-Yarmouth, Randolph, Hingham, Weymouth South, Middleboro, Duxbury and Scituate.

The new Cranberry League will have Rockland, Sandwich, Carver, Hanover, East Bridgewater, Norton, Norwell, Cohasset, Abington and Hull.

The major stumbling block in the realignments was leaving the three "giant" schools, Brockton, Duffee and New Bedford, without league affiliations with the move from the Suburban League and other leagues into new circuits.

Brockton was left as the only Suburban League team with the move of Quincy and North Quincy into the Old Colony, Cambridge Rindge and Latin into the Greater Boston League and Brookline and Newton North into the Bay State.

Most of the realigned leagues agreed to give the Big Three games to fill out their schedules while the GBL holding out. When Cambridge and Waltham agreed to do so, the realignments were set.

The Pilgrim Conference, Bay State Conference, Catholic Conference and Greater Boston League will face the Big Three in most sports to fill out their schedules.

"We won't be facing Brockton in football, but will play some of its teams in other sports and at one time or another will be playing Duffee and New Bedford, probably in football as well as other sports," Finnegan said.

"We are all for this. The main thing is being in the Old Colony League will give our teams a much better chance of winning league championships. It is true North Quincy won the Suburban League title last spring and the Quincy and North girls' volleyball teams have won league titles. But, on the whole, it has been very difficult for our teams to capture league titles."

Finnegan had been trying for three years to join the Old Colony League and it wasn't until January of 1989 that he finally received the necessary votes.

Finnegan said that the Quincy-North Quincy Thanksgiving football game will not be affected and that most of the other Thanksgiving rivalries will be unaffected.

Weymouth officials were disturbed about Weymouth North staying in the Old Colony League and Weymouth South moving into the South Shore League.

"Everyone is not happy about the results, but that was to be expected," Finnegan said. "After two years the leagues will be reevaluated and more changes may be coming then."

"Another factor in Quincy and North Quincy's move was the traveling. 'It will be much easier going to the Cape and places like Plymouth, Silver Lake and Taunton than going through Boston to the North Shore and up Route 128.'"

A Review

'Grease' Fast Moving And A Lot Of Fun

The Quincy Center Dinner Theatre
"GREASE"
Directed by George Stevens
Now Playing at 1170 Hancock St.
March 30, 31, April 1 and 7.

By JANE ARENA

Director George Stevens confided just before the opening performance of "Grease" that it was difficult to choose the 22-member cast from the 150 hopefuls who came to initial auditions.

There were 45 call-backs. There were 45 call-backs, he said, and it was a tough job deciding who got which part. But boy, what a terrific job it was! The casting was absolutely perfect all around.

Jim Sullivan was especially ideal as the nerdy Eugene Florsczyk, with his squeaky voice, geeky laugh, and a body like a human elastic. This is intended in the nicest possible way, but he must have been a shoo-in for the part the second he was seen.

Ellen Brams played the part of English teacher Miss Lynch to perfection, almost like the Church Lady on Saturday Night Live.

Lisa Rue's role as tough girl Rizzo was punctuated with a stock pile of crass gestures and menacing looks, and Jennifer Fisk was excellent in the part of the gum-snapping, hair-twirling teeny-bopper queen, Frency.

Even smaller roles like John Macero's greasy D.J. Vince Fontaine and Karen Looney's trampy Cha Cha DiGregorio were flawless. And Robert Bezubka played the Teen Angel like a lounge lizard from a Vegas night club in the sky.

There was a lot of professional talent in this cast and it was evident throughout the production.

"Grease" is fast-moving

THREE CAST MEMBERS of The Quincy Dinner Theatre's production of "Grease," are, from left: Alison Spiriti of Everett in the role of Patty; Sondra Nannery of Canton as Sandy Dumbrowski, and Jim Sullivan as the nerdy Eugene. The show plays at 1170 Hancock St., March 30, 31 and April 1 and 7. For ticket information and reservations, call Darling Productions at 843-5862.

and funny and the Quincy Dinner Theatre's production went off without a hitch on opening night. The songs were performed with energy and enthusiasm (most notably "Greased Lightnin'" by Darren Rozumak as Kenickie and his chorus of the Burger Palace Boys), and the choreography and back-up doo-wops got bursts of applause every time.

Other highlights include the song "We Go Together" performed by the Pink Ladies and Burger Palace Boys together, "Magic Changes," with the lead done by Brian Kleppe as the borderline goody-goody character of Doody, and "Mooning," hysterically sung by Christopher Dauphnee as Roger and Alicia Litwin as Jan.

But what continually makes this production work is the absolute concentration of each and every cast member on stage, whether they're in the spotlight or not. Everyone was exactly in character and the entire company just looks good on stage.

An awful lot of hard work went into The Quincy Dinner Theatre's "Grease," and from start to finish it's an enjoyable romp back in time.

Doo-wop Doo-wop, indeed!

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

What is stress? Today we hear a great deal about the stresses we have in our lives, in our daily work, in our daily home life ... "Stress" means different things to different people. Everybody has it; everybody talks about it, yet few people know how to deal with it successfully. It seems there is nothing we can do to make ourselves immune to stress.

We are all subject to knocks and jolts, to heartaches and disappointment. They can have a pile-up effect that doctors call stress. It has been said that life is like a river ... it flows ... sometimes encountering rocks, sticks, eddies and whirlpools ... it flows. It moves.

There is something we can all do to lessen the difficulties or unhappiness we are encountering. We can "drop-out" for a few minutes a day. We can empty and unburden ourselves through prayer to Him ... Yes, we can counteract stress with moments of absolute peace. Moments like this restore us and charge us with energy for what lies ahead. They give us an inner perspective ... Prayer can and does work. These "drop out" moments can nurture us and fill us with the fullness of God and help us along the way ...

WEEK OF: March 29, BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK
You are a natural leader, but your larger-than-life personality occasionally overwhelms. A more spontaneous approach can lead to improved personal relationships; a willingness to be an occasional follower can lead to the acquiring of especially useful knowledge. Much of 1990 may be dedicated to expanding your understanding of the financial world.

AQUARIUS - January 21 - February 19
Week's highlight is a festive activity. Creativity is also a focal point, as you excel in crafts and similar projects. A family powwow should not be delayed; you may be appointed chairperson.

PISCES - February 20 - March 20
Outdoor activities are in the week's picture. You may also be called upon to demonstrate some of your skills. Practicing conservation and other environmentally wise policies provides a great example.

ARIES - March 21 - April 20
An original idea may pay off - to your own surprise. Good period for shopping for a spring wardrobe, but you may wish to bring along a consultant. Unhappy friend responds to your positive approach.

TAURUS - April 21 - May 22
Being observant is the key in landing a delightful assignment. If planning a trip, choose your companion with unusual care. Budgeting tasks should not be delayed.

GEMINI - May 23 - June 21
You may be assuming a less than traditional role, either at home or at work. Romance and cultural events blend nicely. Spring cleaning becomes a surprisingly rewarding activity.

CANCER - June 22 - July 22
Misunderstandings are cleared after an extended period. A recent investment of time may at last pay dividends. Generally a favorable week for experimenting with a new image; just avoid extremes.

LEO - July 23 - August 22
New projects are off to a swift start. Romance proceeds favorably. In both areas, however, attend to details and don't merely coast along. Platonic friendship is immensely satisfying.

VIRGO - August 23 - September 22
Intuition is strong, but don't rely on it exclusively; indeed, in money matters especially, practical considerations are crucial. A more casual approach to entertaining can prove most satisfying.

LIBRA - September 23 - October 22
The week may include some tedious tasks and repetitious chores, but the end result is worth the effort. More excitement exists in the community with the arrival of a VIP.

SCORPIO - October 23 - November 21
Week is favorable for developing skills; your energy level is high. An offbeat announcement may arrive around the weekend. An influential contact is willing to back your ideas.

SAGITTARIUS - November 22 - December 22
Creative spirit soars - and you enjoy the creativity simply for its own sake. You may be assuming the role of understudy - taking a public-speaking assignment at the very last minute.

CAPRICORN - December 23 - January 20
Romance requires a more determined approach, a renewed sense of commitment. Demanding friend or relative may have to be told to become a little more independent. Small financial bonanza may arrive.

BORN THIS WEEK
March 29th, singer Pearl Bailey; 30th, actor Warren Beatty; 31st, actress Shirley Jones; April 1st, actress Debbie Reynolds; 2nd, actor Jack Webb; 3rd, actress Doris Day; 4th, actor Gregory Peck.

garage as well as good restaurants, retail businesses, a hospital and historic significance.

"I think all of those factors are going to be promoted. We have a good city. We have a lot to offer."

As for restructuring, Sheets said the city must act on the site of the former Kincaid Building which burned to the ground several years ago. The fire left a large hole at the end of Hancock Street across from Colman's Sporting Goods.

Not owned by the city, the mayor said the committee will consider any mechanism, including eminent domain, to ensure something is done with the site.

Other restructuring might include replacing street lights with more decorative fixtures and laying down brick sidewalks to highlight Quincy's history.

To help the committee achieve its objectives,

Planning Director Richard Meade will begin applying for federal funds.

Other councillors appointed to the committee are Councillors-at-Large Patricia Toland and Michael Cheney as well as Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien.

Toland will chair a sub-committee on beautification while Cheney will chair a sub-committee on the feasibility of a cultural center.

The mayor has begun asking businessmen and private citizens to serve on the committee.

Representing Sheets will be his Administrative Assistant, Bernice Mader.

With the committee soon to be in place, Sheets said now is the time to act.

"I think we have the people to do it. I think it's time. We've had so many reports and studies. I think it's time to act."

Bettinson, Fontaine Signing Off At WJDA

for WJDA.

For Fontaine, some of the awards he has won for his reporting are close to his heart.

He notes the UPI Public Service Award he received for his half-hour program, "Drug Menace of 1959". The program dealt with interviews with drug addicts, law enforcement officials and public health officials.

Several years ago, Fontaine was honored by the Quincy City Council. A bronze plaque commemorating his professionalism and fairness hangs above the press desk in the Council Chambers. He covered the City Council and six Quincy mayors during his career, dating back to the Amelio Della Chiesa administration.

More recently, the Randolph and Weymouth Board of Selectmen have recognized Fontaine's accurate reporting with handsome wooden plaques.

Even though they will no longer be behind a mike after this weekend, Fontaine and Bettinson say they will remain active in the community.

For Bettinson, he will stay active in a number of charitable organizations, notably the Quincy Kiwanis Club.

As for Fontaine, he hopes to do some part-time radio work. He also plans on finishing the season on Newsmakers. Fontaine has been a panelist on the Quincy Community Television news program since it began about 10 years ago.

With their radio days winding down, both men have mixed emotions about retiring.

"In a way, I guess I'll miss it. It's nice knowing you don't have to get this (program) ready every day," Bettinson said.

Fontaine added, "Oh sure, I'll miss it. After 35 years, I've enjoyed my work."

Continental Presents $12,934 Check To City

Continental Cablevision has delivered a check for $12,934, representing the local cable operator's franchise fee to the city, to Mayor James A. Sheets.

The franchise fee represents a 50-cent payment for each of Continental's 25,868 cable customers as of Dec. 31, 1989.

In presenting the check,

Stephen J. Farquhar said the number of basic-service customers in the city had jumped by 1,322 during 1989, bringing the number of households served by cable in Quincy over the 70 percent mark.

Noting the decline in new housing units in Quincy over the last year, Farquhar said, "We believe our steady customer growth in Quincy is testimony to Continental's attractive program offerings, affordable rates and strong commitment to quality customer service."

In his annual report to the mayor on cable operations during 1989, Farquhar pointed to Continental's efforts in providing convenient office and telephone staffing hours including weekends, as well as its prompt response on service calls.

Because of Continental's ongoing preventive maintenance program, Farquhar noted the Quincy cable system recently was certified as having met strict new technical standards on cable signal leakage, months before the July 1990 deadline set by the Federal Communications Commission.

Last year, Continental's programming expanded the scope of its community television offerings, Farquhar said. The system also added to its channel lineup the classic films and sports coverage offered by Turner Network Television (TNT) and a second channel of "pay only for what you watch" movies and special events.

"We thank the City of Quincy and all its residents for the opportunity to provide cable television service during 1989, and we'll strive to even better serve our customers and the community in 1990 and the years to come," Farquhar said.

Recycling Progress Reported By Chretien

Recent developments in the city's curbside paper recycling program indicate further progress is being made, according to Ward 3 Lawrence Chretien, chairman of the Recycling Committee.

First, 77 tons of paper were recycled the week from Monday, March 26 to Friday, March 30. Chretien said the total is the most paper recycled during a "B" week since the program began last May.

Earlier in March, the "A" week set its own record by recycling 83 tons in one week.

Secondly, a paper drop-off center has been established for residents behind the Department of Public Works building at 55 Sea St.

The large container is now available at the location 24 hours a day. A second container for glass will soon be added, Chretien said.

Thirdly, recycling with city-owned buildings has begun. Office and computer paper is being collected at the Quincy Vocational-Technical School. Eventually, the program will be expanded to include all municipal buildings, including City Hall.

Lastly, the Recycling Committee is reviewing options for expanding the curbside program to include glass, plastic and other items.

Chretien said the committee will make recommendations to Mayor James Sheets who will make decisions concerning recycling's future in Quincy.

Cheney Proposes Building Office Open One Night

Councillor Michael Cheney has asked Mayor James Sheets to consider opening the Building Inspector's office one night a week during the spring and summer months in order to make the department more accessible for residents.

Cheney has proposed the department be open Thursdays from 5:30 to 9:30 p.m. for residents to allow them to seek advice regarding property improvements and to obtain building permits.

In a letter dated April 10, Cheney explained most Quincy residents work during the day and are unable to visit the Building Inspector's office during regular business hours.

He noted that the city currently issues building permits Monday through Friday from 8:30 to 10 a.m. only.

According to Cheney, Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey and his assistant inspectors "agree that this is not only possible but sorely needed to better serve the residents."

"I am of the opinion that city departments should be more accessible to the citizens. We can best serve them by offering more flexible hours," he added.

QCBPA 'Clean Sweep' In Downtown April 27

The Quincy Center Business and Professional Association (QCBPA) will sponsor a "Clean Sweep" of the downtown Quincy area from 8 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. Saturday, April 27.

"Clean Sweep" represents a concerted effort on the part of the QCBPA to help clean up the Quincy Center area for the benefit of shoppers, residents and business people.

The co-chairmen are Tony Agnitti of Agnitti Insurance and Santa Fareri of Center Stage Restaurant.

"The QCBPA is taking an active role in the revival of the downtown Quincy area," Fareri said. "We hope 'Clean Sweep' will represent our commitment to helping Quincy help itself."

Activities will begin at 8 a.m. with coffee and doughnuts at Quincy Fair, where the QCBPA will make a formal presentation to Mayor James Sheets in recognition of his 'Cleaner-Greener Quincy' campaign. Following the presentation, the organization will take to the streets of Quincy Center, cleaning windows, sweeping and collecting rubbish.

Those interested in volunteering or becoming a patron, are asked to contact Agnitti, 770-0123, or Fareri, 479-8655. Rain date is April 28.

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The Board of Assessors defended the recently completed property revaluation process and told dissatisfied taxpayers to file an abatement if they believe their assessments are too high.

Assessor Chairman Elmer (Mike) Fagerlund and fellow board members James Papile and Marion Fantuccio said Real Estate Research Consultants, Inc. of Danvers acted "very diligently, fairly and properly" in listing and measuring the city's 27,000 parcels.

The assessors defended the process which has come under fire before 125 disgruntled taxpayers at a meeting of the City Council Finance Committee Monday night.

The meeting, which lasted one hour and 45 minutes, was highlighted by collective moans and groans from taxpayers and a testy exchange between Councillor Michael Cheney and Fagerlund.

In the end, the assessors said taxpayers who believe their property has been overly assessed should file an abatement by May 1. They also said the problem of over assessments can best be addressed on a case by case basis. The board decides if a property has been over assessed.

An estimated 1,000 property owners have filed for abatements already, according to Fagerlund.

The meeting focused on how the revaluation process was conducted and whether the assessments which increased dramatically could be justified.

Real estate and personal property valuations for fiscal 1990 were recently certified by the state's Department of Revenue as full and fair cash value as of Jan. 1, 1989. Assessors explained the assessments were derived from sales accumulated the previous year (1988) as mandated by state law.

Assessments are allowed to come within 10 percent of selling prices. Values are determined by comparing a similar home or business in a comparable neighborhood which was recently sold.

Fagerlund, overseeing his fourth revaluation as chairman, said the depressed real estate market has caused the furor among some property owners.

During the real estate boom of two years ago, there were "virtually no complaints" when assessments nearly doubled, he noted.

But that explanation didn't set well with most taxpayers in attendance. The council asked the assessors to check to see whether the high assessments can be reduced to coincide with a soft real estate market.

During the past three years, lists went to every parcel in the city according to the assessors. The lister then asked a resident or business owner to sign a card verifying he or she had gained access.

If access was not gained, a letter was sent to the property owner explaining a lister had visited the parcel, Fagerlund explained. He was interrupted by some taxpayers who said they had not received a letter.

Nearly every taxpayer present raised his or her hand to show that they did not receive a letter.

However, Fagerlund insisted every property owner was sent a letter. He also said the listers visited every parcel and that the state checked their work.

"I know they were here. They spent weeks here."

In all, Fagerlund estimated that 20 percent of city property owners did not sign a card.

A testy exchange between Fagerlund and Cheney then followed. For a few moments, the two argued over whether the company conducted the revaluation properly.

Cheney said a lister asked his wife to sign a revaluation card without identifying himself. Fagerlund disputed this claim, saying each worker is identified by badge which he or she is required to wear.

Fagerlund then referred to a published report which said Cheney called the process "sloppy." Committee Chairman Patricia Toland then gavelled the meeting to order and asked them to stop because they were getting "personal."

Sheets Wants Flexibility In Setting Assessments

Mayor James Sheets, who thinks some of the property valuations in Quincy are too high, will ask the state to consider giving municipalities more flexibility in setting assessments.

Sheets was set to send a letter objecting to the new values to the Department of Corporation and Taxation on Wednesday. The values, which have caused an uproar among several hundred Quincy taxpayers, were recently certified by the state as full and fair cash market value.

The mayor also said he would ask the department to consider any options that would allow municipalities like Quincy a more flexible approach in setting assessments.

The mayor said the flexibility would allow the city "to pick the years that we're going to change the valuation."

Asked how difficult it would be to enact such a change, Sheets replied, "That would be tough, it may even be impossible but it's worth looking into."

"A lot of people on fixed incomes are being hurt by (higher assessments)," he added.

One reason Sheets supports a more flexible state assessing law is because property values fluctuate with real estate market conditions. He says it is unfair for residents to pay high assessments in a soft real estate market because the assessments do not accurately reflect a home's value. He believes there should be a provision which allows assessments to drop when the economy and real estate market is sluggish.

"I think the assessments are high and I think that when the revaluation was done, the economy was strong and the real estate market was strong and the values that people are getting now reflect that."

"But the economy has gotten softer. It's a buyer's market."

For example, Sheets said he received a call from an owner of a four-family unit whose assessment rose to over $300,000.

The owner of a similar four-family dwelling next door has listed the property at $260,000. It's been on the market six months because the owner has been unable to sell it.

O'Connell Spearheads Fund To Benefit 5 Local Charities

Through an effort spearheaded by Quincy Businessman Peter F. O'Connell, a "City of Presidents Fund Foundation" has been established which will benefit five local charities. O'Connell, who is chairman of the foundation, announced the new fund at a press conference Monday in the office of Mayor James Sheets.

The foundation is designed to bring together a diverse group of people to raise and distribute monies to selected Quincy charities. By doing so in an organized effort, it is hoped the foundation can produce a certain unity among Quincy residents.

Money for the foundation will be raised from an annual fundraiser. This year, the fundraiser will be an authentic Hawaiian Luau held in August at Marina Bay.

A date for the luau, complete with an Hawaiian Fashion Show and Dance Review and other associated activities, will be announced in the near future.

A 12-member committee met in March and selected five charities for this year's fundraising efforts.

They are: Quincy Schools Athletic Contribution Committee, Quincy Visiting Nurse Association/Hospice, Brothers and Sisters Table, Father Bill's Place and Quincy After School Day Care, Inc.

"I think it's very important to let the people of the city of Quincy know this is a very important fund for the five charities. As a city, we're going to pull together for these very important charities," O'Connell said.

The Committee hopes to sell 4,000 tickets at $25 each to the luau and another 100 tickets at $100 apiece to a mini-luau to be held at Amelia's the night before.

If both events sell out, $110,000 would be raised. Subtract $45,000 for expenses and the net gain would be $65,000 to the five charities for $13,000 each.

O'Connell and Sheets, both of whom are serving as luau co-hosts, are optimistic the events will sell out.

"I think we should have no problem selling 4,000 tickets. It should be a lot of fun and a good value for the money," O'Connell said, adding he hopes it can become an annual event.

Last summer, O'Connell held a luau at Marina Bay as a fundraiser for his mayoral campaign. About 1,800 friends and supporters attended.

Sheets, who defeated O'Connell in the race for mayor, "apologized" for not attending last year's luau.

As the press conference chuckled, the mayor added, "But I'm sure it was very successful."

The mayor, who will also serve as honorary chairman of the committee, thanked O'Connell for leading the foundation drive. He said his assistance is especially welcomed since the city no longer has the resources to aid Quincy charities because of the fiscal crisis.

On behalf of the city, Sheets also thanked O'Connell for his humanity and sensitivity, traits which he said O'Connell was born with.

"Success hasn't spoiled Peter O'Connell," the mayor added.

Luau Chairperson Robert Galligan explained the five charities were selected because they are diverse, all Quincy-based and they service the entire community.

There are plans to award a free round trip for two to Hawaii including hotel accommodations, siteseeing and other extras, at the luau.

George Murphy, owner of Prime Travel at Marina Bay, said the Committee is trying to secure a major airline and hotel chain to help sponsor the trip.

Other Committee members are:

Anthony Agnitti, Judy Brame, Thomas Kiley, Roger Kineavy, Fr. William McCarthy, Mrs. Sheila McIntyre, Richard C. Pierce, Timothy Reidy and David Spillane.

Neighbors Complain About Salvage Firm

By JANE ARENA

The License Board Tuesday continued for two weeks a hearing regarding neighbors complaints about Ernie's Salvage, 16-22 Isabella St., South Quincy, owned and operated by Ernest Bettuchy.

Neighbors say that the business, operating under a non-conforming use in the district zoned Residence B, has expanded beyond its intended use and they came to the board asking that the license to operate the business be revoked.

Catherine Hall of 82 Albertina St., a direct abutter of the business, told the board that she is concerned about excessive noise from banging and cutting metal at the site. She said she is also concerned about heavy traffic, sometimes beginning as early as 7:30 a.m., of trucks delivering and unloading junk metal on the premises. She further stated that she has been spoken to rudely by customers of the salvage yard.

Hall gave the board a letter of complaint with the signatures of eleven abutters who were unable to attend the meeting. In the letter, Hall states that trucks coming to do business with Bettuchy come and go at excessive speeds. She told the board she is afraid to let her two young children play in the yard.

Bettuchy has been in business at the present location since 1978, having moved there from Branch St. In 1978 the License Board granted him a junk license which allowed him to store metals for his business.

However, neighbors in the area have been complaining to both the police and the Building Department for years because of excessive noise and traffic.

The matter was brought to the Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) in 1981 and a decision was made to grant a zoning variance provided that Bettuchy install fencing and shrubbery on the site, that he demolish an existing shed there, and that he erect a new shed with the approval of the Building Department which was to be used to park no more than two trucks. The conditions stipulated that the trucks had to be parked inside at all times.

According to Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey, the shed was demolished only "recently" and the building which was erected was done so with no building inspections either called for or made. He also said the trucks are not parked inside because the building is used for storage.

The matter was again brought before the ZBA in February of this year and the board issued a decision which stated that Bettuchy had expanded beyond his allowable rights at the site. The board said in February that a granting of an additional variance, which would allow him to bang, cut and separate metal at the site, would be "detrimental to the public good."

Mulvey told the board that the matter was scheduled to go to the Quincy District Court on Wednesday of this week. Mulvey, who is noted as the complainant in the case, is seeking criminal charges because "no inspections of the construction have been called for or made (and) the building is being occupied without a Certificate of Occupancy."

Board Chairman John Gillis asked Hall "Do you want to put a man out of business who has been in business for 40 years?"

Abutters contended that they only wanted the business to be run differently.

Hall told Gillis that she felt he is biased in the matter because he has known Bettuchy for many years. She indicated that Gillis should not sit on the board for the matter.

"I am the Chairman of this Board," Gillis said, adding that there are five members on the board and that any decision reached would be a fair one with all parties concerned.

Gillis also said that the decision and the order of conditions issued by the Zoning Board of Appeals was done so without prior notification to the License Board. He said that the License Board should have been consulted because the ZBA should have known what licenses were issued to Bettuchy.

"The Board of Appeals made a legal error," Gillis said.

Mulvey disagreed, explaining that the ZBA was not informed that Bettuchy was storing metals on the premises.

The board decided to continue the hearing for a period of two weeks. Police Chief Paul Nestor said the Police Department will monitor the business and the area during that period. The board will also wait to see the outcome of the court case.

Neighbors expressed concern that Bettuchy would simply quiet things down during the two weeks he is to be monitored. Nestor said that he understands the concerns, but added that "we've got to start somewhere."

Causes $30,000 Damage

Worker Burned In DPW Van Fire

William Darrow, a maintenance worker employed by the City of Quincy Department of Public Works, was burned Tuesday morning when the van he was working on caught fire, at the DPW maintenance garage, 55 Sea St. The single alarm fire occurred at 11:07 a.m.

Darrow was treated and released from Quincy Hospital.

According to Quincy Fire Chief Paul O'Connell, "several" maintenance workers were working on the van at the time of the blaze.

"They were working on the gas tank of a van which had been raised up and supported by a mechanical lift," O'Connell said. "They were draining gas from the tank when ignition occurred."

O'Connell had no information on the exact cause of the ignition.

The heat from the blaze was so intense that the siren on top of the late model Dodge Ram van was melted. The van was a total loss, O'Connell said.

Two engines, two ladder trucks and the rescue company were at the scene for approximately 30 minutes, O'Connell said.

"The fire was quickly brought under control," he said.

Damage was estimated at approximately $30,000, the Chief said. In addition to the van there was also some loss to the mechanical lift and heavy smoke damage to the maintenance garage, he said.

A LATE MODEL Dodge Ram van was burned after a fire ignited Tuesday morning in the Department of Public Works' Highway Garage. William Darrow, a DPW employee, received minor burns and was treated and released. Local authorities have not determined what ignited the fire which occurred when gas was being drained from the van's fuel tank. The heat from the fire melted the roof siren.

Sink Or Float?

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
Benjamin Franklin once wrote in his Poor Richard's Almanac, "Beware of little expenses: A small leak will sink a great ship."

Over the past few years, state and local governments have been adding little expenses, here and there, to the small business community.
Now the great ship of small retail business is sinking fast in Quincy.

The cry of the political establishment about business is that business can pass it on to its customers. As small businesses increase prices to survive, little expenses are added on to the residents, here and there, and now the great ship of residential income is sinking fast in Quincy.

Don't you think it is time

we wake up, before we drown?
Do you do most of your shopping in Quincy, or somewhere else? If you shop elsewhere, is it because the prices are lower, or because the stores you want are not in Quincy?

If it is, then only you, the consumer and voter, can do something about it. Let your elected officials know that you don't like what is happening, and that it is costing you more to live here.
Believe it or not, it's true!
Small business is the backbone of the American economy. If you watch it sink and do nothing to help it, your sinking is imminent also.
Once small business dies, the economy dies with it.

In the last two years alone, over 20 small businesses have closed their doors for good in our city, and more are going to do the same this year. Sink or float? That my friends, is the question that I pass on to you.

Joe Kennedy, Where Are You?

Former Quincy shipyard workers still hope to bring the "Made in Quincy" label back to the shipbuilding industry.

Maybe if they had someone like Joseph P. Kennedy with them, that possibility might become a sure reality.

Kennedy was an organizer and a mover. And, he knew something about ships and shipbuilders. In particular, the Quincy Shipyard.

He also knew something about banking. In fact, he was a financial whiz. He might have kept some of today's foundering banks on an even keel if he were around today.

Kennedy was assistant general manager at the then Bethlehem Steel Shipyard during World War I.

He went to the ship in 1917 after Bethlehem Steel President Charles Schwab wooed him away from banking circles.

Kennedy was only 29 and a few years out of Harvard.
Schwab got him to leave the Columbia Trust Company in Boston after Kennedy had led a successful battle to keep that bank from merging with another.

Prior to going to Columbia Trust, Kennedy had been a Massachusetts bank examiner.

While at the shipyard, where his job included the delivery of destroyers, Kennedy met another young man destined to take his place in history: Franklin Delano Roosevelt, then assistant secretary of the Navy.

Later, Roosevelt would appoint Kennedy chairman of the Maritime Board, first chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission and U.S. ambassador to the Court of St. James in London.

Kennedy was an avid golfer and while at the shipyard he played golf with, among others, the late Dr. William Hurley, father of Paul Hurley Sr., Quincy Center insurance agency owner.

When Kennedy left the shipyard to try his hand at making movies in Hollywood, he took a number of shipyard associates with him including Edward Moore, a trusted sidekick, and political confidant.

Joe and Rose Kennedy and their family summered in a large Nantasket Ave. house in the Point Allerton section of Hull overlooking the bay for something like 30 years before moving to the compound in Hyannisport.

The Hull house was owned by Rose Kennedy's father, former Boston Mayor and Congressman John (Honey)

KENNEDY

Fitzgerald.

Across the street was a smaller house which was used like a summer "playhouse" by the Kennedy children. All of the Kennedy children -- with the exception of Ted, the youngest -- spent their summers there.

Other youngsters summering or living in the area, played with the Kennedy children. None ever dreamed that there was a future president playing hide and seek with them.

The Quincy Shipyard was founded in 1884 as the Fore River Engine Co. by Thomas Watson, the man who received that historic first phone call "Mr. Watson, come here!" from Alexander Graham Bell.

The world's only seven masted schooner, the Thomas W. Lawson, was built there in 1902 but foundered during a storm five years later off the Cornwall Coast of Great Britain.

Bethlehem Steel took the yard over in 1914 and went on to build some of the most famous fighting ships of World War II including the USS Massachusetts, USS Quincy, USS Boston, USS Lexington and later, huge luxury liners.

They used to call the Quincy shipyard Uncle Sam's Navy right arm.

It had some good years under General Dynamics including the Apollo ships that helped track man to the moon.

And then -- gone!

Whether the former workers can put together a deal to use part of the old shipyard for shipbuilding again, remains to be seen. A go-getter like Joe Kennedy might do it.

It's a shame when you think of the shipyard's gloried past and what is to be its ignominious future as a sludge facility.

From great ships to stinking sludge.
It almost makes you cry.

THERE WILL BE a fundraiser Tuesday, April 24 from 6 to 8 p.m. at the Quincy Neighborhood Club to benefit the John F. Kennedy Memorial Statue Fund.

According to Senator Paul Harold, the fundraiser will be the only one for the statue on the South Shore.

JFK

The "larger-than-life" walking statue of the 33rd President will be dedicated on his birthday, May 29, outside the State House in Boston. Kennedy would have been 73 this year.

The statue is being built with private donations, not with taxpayer's money, Harold noted. A member of the Memorial Committee is scheduled to attend the fundraiser.

Tickets are $15 each and can be obtained at the door or by calling Harold's office at 722-1494.

Harold and Brintree Selectman Joseph Sullivan are members of the local statue committee.

OBSERVATION via the Quincy Kiwanis Club newsletter (and from wherever they got it): "A real patriot is the fellow who gets a parking ticket and rejoices that the system works."

Taxpayers Groan At Assessments

Cheney concluded by saying, "I think we should go back and review (the process) and perhaps do it again."

Fagerlund said the three-year process cost $675,000. The option was not mentioned again.

Ward 1 Councilor Peter Kolson faulted the Danvers-based valuation company for not knowing Quincy's topography.

He noted one property on Rock Island Rd., Houghs Neck which frequently has water in the basement but whose assessment shot up to $190,000.

Referring to a small parcel which jumped in value from $100 to $19,000, Kolson said, "(The owners) couldn't even put a dog house on it."

As for the company, the councilor said, "I don't seriously believe these people had an understanding of the size, shape and texture of what Quincy is all about."

"I just don't think so," he added, drawing loud applause from the filled Council Chamber.

Fantuccio pointed out that the same company conducted revaluations in 1987.

"They are very familiar with the city," she said.

Public Safety 'Erosion' Hit By Fire Chief's Assn.

The Fire Chief's Association of Massachusetts, Inc., has issued a statement saying it is "deeply concerned with the erosion of public safety across the Commonwealth."

Retired Fire Chief Raymond Sorenson of Stoneham, the association's secretary-treasurer, said the "erosion" is a result of inadequate state local aid. Further aid cuts will put public safety "in serious question," he added.

As a result of the reduced aid, "Communities have had to make deep cuts into their public safety budgets," Sorenson said.

The retired chief noted that throughout the state, fire stations are closing, ladder and engine companies are being eliminated and public safety operating budgets are being "decimated to dangerous levels."

In Quincy, 21 firefighters will likely be laid off and two engine companies will be lost before the start of FY 1991 July 1.

Other communities face equally if not more devastating cuts.

Framingham has cut $600,000 from the public safety budget, ensuring the loss of 37 men, the fire department ambulance service as well as station and an engine and ladder company.

Springfield had laid off 77 firefighters and is considering

Sorenson also noted that Watertown has imposed a hiring freeze of firefighters.

The fiscal crisis has also forced smaller communities to reduce their fire fighting ability, the chief said. Smaller communities like Hingham closed a station and eliminated eight firefighters while Marshfield and Winchester are losing four firefighters and Ashland three firefighters.

Today's firefighter must also receive more training, thereby compounding the problem of tight budgets.

"The responsibilities of any community fire department in the state have doubled and tripled in the last decade with huge residential developments and shopping centers springing up everywhere," Sorenson noted.

In addition, federal laws now require hazardous material training of all fire departments. The Massachusetts Fire Academy has the courses all in place but many communities cannot afford to send the men to the classes.

"Fire departments in this state are usually held in high esteem by the citizens that they serve. The departments are very efficient, responsive and adequate for their needs."

"If local aid to the communities is withheld as proposed, the public safety of this Commonwealth will be in serious question," Sorenson added.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Teacher's Pay Hike 'Secret' Causes Furor

Rev. Joseph D. Parkman of the School Committee charged that Supt. Dr. Paul Gossard "let the cat out of the bag" when he told teachers about the Committee's proposed 5 percent salary adjustment plan.

Parkman said the increased plan was tentatively adopted at an executive work session of the board and was to have been a Committee secret until the next regular public meeting.

He was getting tremendous pressure from teachers who want more money, Parkman said, adding he may propose a motion that would bar the superintendent from future executive sessions of the board.

Gossard said he had assumed that teachers were to be kept informed on progress of wage discussions. Keeping teachers in the dark on the subject, he said, was poor policy.

WE'VE GOT THE SUN.

Not of the original model of course. Ours can't do an eclipse or hold planets in orbit. But there's one thing our sun can do: give you a beautiful, bronzed, even tan. And, unlike the prototype, it can do that on many days, snowy days, cloudy days, any kind of days. It can even do it at night. And our sun isn't 93,000,000 miles away. It's right here in town. So you can get it to quick. So if you're looking for rays, look to us. We've got the sun. And it's always out.

Recreation Dept. Ceramic Display In Sun Window

The Quincy Recreation Department annual ceramic display is in the window of The Quincy Sun, 1372 Hancock St., Quincy Sq.

The creative works of 34 youngsters age 8 through middle school will be on view until April 21.

Each item displayed has been selected from among pieces that have been completed by participants in the 20 week instructional program supervised by the Quincy Recreation Department.

Recreation Director Barry Welch said:

"The Quincy Sun has always been supportive of our efforts to showcase the creative talents of our participants. The highly visible window at The Sun allows for many residents to enjoy the fine workmanship of each youngster. The participants are eager to have projects selected and are justifiably proud of their accomplishments. Often times the creative development of our participants is overshadowed by our own highly visible athletic programs. We appreciate The Quincy Sun's commitment towards recognizing and honoring the hard work of these youngsters."

This year's participants represent all sections of the city.

Participants with projects on display from the Dawes Memorial Site are: Bethany Donovan, Tara Sansona, Collen Hillis, Greg Cook, Elizabeth D'Arcangelo, Kara Timbone, Sara Kane, Katie Kodgis, Marcia Hern, Joseph Hern, Elizabeth Lynch, Sheila Lynch, Katherine Bailey, Katie Eler, Daniel Cabral, Kathleen Kelleher, Danielle Murphy, Danielle Rinella, Deanna Rinella, Thomas Sanink, and Kathleen Swanton.

You might say the school colors for 40 Quincy High School students and two of their teachers are blue, white and a touch of crimson.

The students and teachers are enrolled at Harvard University's Extension School as James Russell Lowell scholars. The program, which began three years ago, allows high school students and teachers to enroll in Harvard courses at reduced tuition.

Students enroll for the experience and knowledge while teachers attend for personal and professional enrichment.

Quincy High by far has the most representatives in the program this semester, accounting for nearly 40 percent of the scholars throughout the state.

Charles McLaughlin, head of the school's Heritage Program, and John Sullivan of the Quincy Vo-Tech

Science Department, say the program is unique since it allows students to experience a college learning environment while still attending high school.

In fact, both men say the number one reason for the program is not to allow high school students to get a head start in earning college credits. Rather, they feel the exposure to lecture halls, blue-book examinations and top-notch professors is invaluable to students who want to continue their education after high school.

Dr. Christopher Queen, administrator of the Lowell Scholarship program, agrees. "Many high schools offer college-level courses, but few can offer the classroom experience of the Extension School, with its diverse students and renowned faculty."

The program is available to anyone but the Lowell scholarships allow high school students to attend at reduced cost. Scholars can now enroll in science, math or humanities courses which normally cost $400 to $500 for as little as $15 to $90.

Furthermore, students who pass a course receive Harvard credits which could apply to an undergraduate degree program if they enroll in a college after graduating from high school. One Quincy High School student has earned 15 college credits, equal to one semester, already.

Quincy High School's involvement is also unique since students and teachers attend the courses together. McLaughlin and most of the 40 students are currently enrolled in an "Animal Behavior" course while Sullivan and the other students are taking physics classes.

What makes it even more special is that the students and the teachers go to Harvard together. They take the MBTA from Quincy Center to the Ivy League school each Thursday afternoon after high school has ended for the day.

At one moment, the teachers are instructing the students at Quincy High. A short subway trip later, the teachers and students are college classmates.

Moreover, the togetherness does not end after class. They sometimes go out for dinner and they often study together once they're back at Quincy High. The teachers set up study sessions where they and the students can discuss the college course as well as study skills and how to prepare for an examination.

McLaughlin says it is this experience which has increased the program's popularity at Quincy High School. Three years ago, about 12 QHS students were enrolled; last year, 25 participated and this year there are 40.

"The program is an opportunity to learn and have fun outside of the regular school setting," McLaughlin says. "Our groups go in early on the 'T' and have supper together in Harvard Square."

"And they bring back the excitement of Harvard Extension, which makes others want to apply."

Remarkably, two-thirds of the Quincy High students enrolled are freshmen. Furthermore, no student receives special treatment, nor do they want any.

"The kids are very competitive. They don't want their grades to be watered-down. Whatever they get, they get," McLaughlin said, adding each student receives a transcript of their academic record.

There are only about 100 openings for Lowell scholars. Quincy High has been able to send more than the typical eight or nine students from a particular high school because many schools throughout the state do not send any.

As long as a student is nominated by a high school administrator, he or she has a chance to attend the program. Quincy High has simply taken advantage of this opportunity to the fullest.

And for that, Quincy High School deserves an "A."

It Can Help To Be Square

Professionals and avid do-it-yourselfers alike use "squares" to perform complicated calculations and to ensure the correct determination of various angles.

According to the experts at Stanley Tools, a carpenter square—a flat piece of steel or aluminum cut into an "L" shape with graduated markings—is ideal for determining the length of any matter for any given roof pitch, for figuring the volume of a board, finding the circumference and center of a circle, calculating proportions, and laying out ellipses, miter and hopper joints.

Glazed vs. unglazed: the ceramic tile showdown

☉To most of us, a tile is a tile, but the fact is, there are many differences among ceramic tiles, especially when it comes to glazed and unglazed types.

Glazed tile starts as a clay base, then a thin layer of glaze or "glass" is melted on top. Glazed tile does have some drawbacks that you need to consider. The glass can create a slippery surface when it becomes wet and can scratch and wear through when exposed to prolonged scrubbing or traffic.

So what's a better tile option? Now there's a new type of low maintenance, waterproof, unglazed ceramic tile floor covering that not only eliminates the drawbacks associated with glazed tile but also gives you the freedom of both indoor and outdoor use.

Often at a lower cost and with a full spectrum of color choices from violet to rose, peach to blue, and beige to traditional brick colors, Metropolitan Ceramics unglazed ceramic tile matches durability with beauty to improve the appearance of any wall or floor surface, indoors or out, in any climate.

All Metropolitan Ceramics products are specially manufactured to be completely waterproof. Industry tests show them to be vitreous (less than three percent absorption), an attribute nearly unheard of in the world of unglazed tile, until now.

The tiles' extremely low absorption properties contribute to a stain resistant, freezeproof surface that can withstand years of rain, snow and ice, as well as spills from ketchup, fruit juice, mustard and more. It's also resistant to mud, sand and tracked-in road salt. And Metropolitan Ceramics products need no waxes, polishes or waterproofing sealers—they can be cleaned with just mild soap and water.

These new unglazed ceramic tiles won't show wear like glazed tile. They're specially made to ensure solid color throughout the full one-half inch thickness of each tile, enabling them to stand up to heavy foot traffic year after year.

The unglazed tile's natural long-wearing surface and slip-resistant properties make it the perfect solution for outdoor areas such as patios, pool areas, steps, privacy walls, walkways, breezeways, driveways and more.

Indoors, it offers just as much—adding beautiful colors and designs to any room or area you can think of, such as entryways, kitchens, bathrooms, bedrooms, counter tops, spas, wet bars, family rooms, fireplace hearths, behind and below wood burning stoves, solarium or mud room floors, walls and more. Indoors or out, it's easy to apply to most existing surfaces, including properly leveled and patched concrete or well-supported, level plywood subfloors.

For do-it-yourselfers, literature with step-by-step tile installation instructions and detailed drawings is offered wherever Metropolitan ceramic products are sold. You'll find all the basics as well as helpful "old pro tips."

This unglazed tile is offered with several unique extras such as "relieved" or beveled edges, which allow even first time do-it-yourselfers to achieve professional looking results.

World's first all gas downdraft range easy to install

The company that developed the industry's first gas downdraft cooktop in 1981, and the world's first gas self clean wall oven in 1986, has now developed the first all gas downdraft range.

Taking up only 30 inches of space, the free-standing range from Modern Maid offers total flexibility for preparing a meal. On its range top, interchangeable cartridges enable the homeowner to prepare foods on a gas grille, griddle, rotisserie, or burners. All are dishwasher cleanable.

Or the cook can bake or broil in its master-sized 3.73 cubic foot gas self-clean oven. Beneath the large oven cavity is a full width 10 inch deep storage drawer.

Uncomplicated Parts

Of particular good news to the remodeling homeowner is the ease of installation of this gas downdraft range. It is designed so that the mechanism, including the blower, is self-contained within the unit. Nothing has to be mounted on the floor.

All that has to be done to install the range is to attach its adapter collar, and slide the unit in place against the external ducting. The special collapsible gasket assures a secure connection between the range and the external venting duct.

Hundreds In Savings

Best of all, homeowners have the choice of venting the range through the rear wall, down through the floor, or out the left-hand side.

New England's Slower Home Market Provides Prime Buying Opportunity

A temporary slowdown in several New England housing markets has created a prime chance to buy a home before activity regains momentum, according to the National Association of Realtors.

"People looking to buy or trade up should consider making their move before the tide turns," said NAR President Norman D. Flynn. "On the heels of every downswing in real estate is an upswing."

Overall, New England's home sales are in a leveling off period that was inevitable, considering the market surges that occurred in major urban areas throughout the region from the mid- to late-1980's, according to Flynn.

Mirroring a pattern throughout the Northeast, the slowdown in New England is having the biggest impact in high-cost markets. It is less evident in smaller, lower-cost areas bypassed by the housing boom of the past decade.

Flynn discounted reports predicting a major New England housing recession.

"A slower pace of sales is not synonymous with recession," he said. "No market moves at the same speed forever."

Doomsday forecasters are overlooking how far home prices have risen in several New England markets over the past few years, Flynn noted. For instance, the median price of an existing single-family home in Boston rose from $100,000 in 1984 to $182,800 in 1989, an increase of 82.8 percent. In Hartford, the median price jumped 83.0 percent, from $87,400 to $159,900 during the same period, and in Providence, R.I., the median price soared 118.3 percent, from $59,600 to $130,200.

In addition, other New England metropolitan areas with relatively high median home prices last year included New Haven, Ct., at $163,500; Worcester, Mass., at $141,500; and Springfield, Mass., at $127,100. NAR does not have historical price data for those markets.

In general, homeowners in the high-cost New England markets who have owned their homes for the past three to six years have experienced rapid appreciation on their investment. The returns are higher when based on the portion of the buyer's own money used for the purchase amount, and considering the continuous tax benefits a homeowner receives, Flynn said.

"The combined advantages of the return on the down payment, plus the deductibility of mortgage interest, add up to an extremely positive investment," he added.

Large increases in residential construction in some high-cost areas over the past years have resulted in a housing supply that currently exceeds demand. In addition to reports on the oversupply, losses on real estate loans posted by several New England financial institutions are further exacerbating housing recession rumors, Flynn noted.

"Poorly-judged real estate ventures by banks or savings and loans do not spell trouble for the entire New England housing market," he said. "For a whole region to suffer a housing market recession, the region's entire economy must collapse. This is not the case in New England," Flynn pointed out that New England's economy is not driven by a sole resource, such as oil.

The previous housing market boom in New England's major urban areas was fueled, in part, by thriving manufacturing sectors that started declining at the end of the 1980s. The cities' ability to make their economies more service-oriented, and less reliant on highly vulnerable manufacturing, will play a key part in triggering the next housing market expansion, Flynn said.

For instance, Boston is steadily building up its employment in the finance, insurance and real estate industries, as well as in business services, to counter declines in its computer and military-related industries.

The positive impact that economic diversification has on the housing industry could be hampered by a major housing affordability problem in the high-cost areas. Rapid surges in home prices accompanying the previous housing boom has left homeownership inaccessible for many entry-level buyers. "It's a buyer's market, if a buyer can afford the market," Flynn said.

According to NAR statistics for the fourth quarter of 1989, a family earning the median income of $45,664 for Boston had 73.2 percent of the income — far less than enough — needed to qualify for a home priced at $183,600, the fourth quarter median price for existing single-family homes in Boston.

Overcoming obstacles to affordability can require using alternatives to standard home financing methods, Flynn noted. Options in which interest is growing include employer-assisted housing, equity sharing, seller financing and lease-purchase options.

Examples of employer-assisted housing programs — a few of which are now available in some New England cities — are group mortgage origination plans that reduce closing and loan application costs; and group mortgage insurance programs, which provide full insurance at no cost to the borrower. Other employer plans include mortgage buydowns, in upfront payments or spread over several years. "Employers are realizing that providing housing assistance is far better than losing employees who cannot afford to live near their jobs," Flynn said.

In-migration in the smaller New England cities is proving beneficial to the local economies, since the new residents tend to be well-educated, skilled and willing to invest in their communities, Flynn noted.

The broad mix of local housing markets within New England is, on a smaller scale, like the wide range of markets across the nation, he said. "At any time, some markets are hotter than others. In slow periods, a smart seller will set a reasonable price and do everything possible to make his property stand out. A smart buyer knows a good opportunity when he sees it," Flynn said.

The National Association of Realtors, the nation's largest trade association, is the voice for real estate, representing more than 800,000 members involved in all aspects of the real estate industry.

THE QUINCY AND South Shore Board of Realtors Community Service Committee recently collected 45 blankets and several monetary gifts to benefit the DOVE Shelter for battered women in Quincy. Participating in the collection were, from left: Jo Anne Kenan and Harry Pearce of the Weymouth Savings Bank, and from the Quincy and South Shore board of Realtors, Patricia Downing, President, and Marilyn Hanabury, Chairman of the Community Service Committee.

Ham And Roast Stuffed Lamb For Easter Dinner

This cool weather doesn't remind me of spring in the least or that Easter is here already!

After taking my usual poll with the family, I am going to prepare a ham and roast stuffed lamb for part of our Easter dinner. There will be 14 of us (so far, at our place one never knows). Lately I've been buying the ham with 33 percent less salt. I than put pineapple slices and fresh cloves with the juice of the pineapple over it and bake it for about an hour depending on the size. For the lamb I use a stuffing mix about the same as chicken or turkey. And you can make it ahead of time.

LAMB STUFFING

- 2 stalks celery cut up
- 1 small onion cut up
- 2 cups stuffing mix
- 1 cup seasoned bread crumbs
- 2 Tbsps Bell's seasoning
- 2 Tbsps oil
- 1/4 cup grated Romano cheese
- 1/4 cup white wine (optional)
- 1/2 lb ground pork (or lamb if you can find it, or beef)

find it, or beef)

In hot oil, saute the celery and onion. Add the ground beef and the wine. Cook until blended. Add the stuffing mix (that you have soaked in water). Stir for a couple of minutes and then add the seasoned bread crumbs, Bell's seasoning, egg, cheese and stir briefly. If the mixture looks thin, add more seasoned bread crumbs, if thick, add a little water. Remove from heat and refrigerate until it's time to use. We usually get a leg of lamb boned and this makes a nice pocket to put the stuffing in. Tie it if you have to with string and then bake as usual (20 minutes to the pound).

Happy Easter!

Marie D'Olimpio is the author of "Simply Italian-And Then Some," a collection of her own recipes. Copies of the book are available at Previt's Market, Sumner St., Quincy Point, Samoset Pharmacy, Samoset Ave., Merrymount and Winfield Gift Emporium, Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Quincy Christmas Festival Committee Seeks Theme Entries For Parade

The Quincy Christmas Festival Committee is seeking the public's input in suggesting a theme for the annual Christmas Parade which last year drew an estimated 250,000 spectators.

Last year, the committee received nearly 280 entries from South Shore and Greater Boston residents.

Last year's theme was "A Story Book Christmas." It marked the first time that two individuals submitted a winning entry.

Theme entries for the 1990 parade should be submitted no later than Friday, April 22 to Mrs. Frances Flynn, 79 Freeport St., North Quincy, 02170.

The 28-member Christmas Festival Committee will select the winning theme Wednesday, May 2.

Festival Committee Chairman George White, said the theme winner will be invited to participate in the parade and be recognized as he or she travels along the 2.8 mile parade route.

A gift of appreciation from the festival committee will be presented to the winner at the awards ceremony following the parade.

The suggested theme should bring to mind numerous ideas of float potential development, thus eliminating possible duplication White said.

The "grand float" winner receives the Father Thomas Tierney trophy and $1,000. Second place receives $500, third $300 and fourth $200.

Past parade themes include "Christmas Around the World," "The Music of Christmas," "Visions of Christmas," "Christmas Fantasy," "The Enchantment of Christmas," and "Memories of Christmas Past."

For Quincy It's Already A Better Season

Last year it took the Quincy baseball team 12 games to get its only victory of the season.

This season the Presidents got its first win in only the second game and they took a 1-2 record into the game yesterday (Wednesday) with Medford. Quincy will be home to Somerville today (Thursday) at 3:30 at Adams Field, it will be at Revere Monday morning at 10:30 and will host Arlington next Wednesday, also at 10:30.

Quincy got off to a rough start as it was wallowed by Weymouth North, 9-0, as it was held to three hits by Joe Brennan.

The Presidents' pitchers, Steve McInnis, Bob Crespi and Rich Burns, were hit hard by the Maroons as they scored four runs in the fifth inning.

The Presidents came back to top Weymouth South, 3-1, behind the four-hit pitching of Chad McMahon, who struck out eight.

Fred Regan broke a 1-1 tie with an RBI single in the third inning. Tom Balzano and McInnis had two hits each.

Monday Quincy bowed to Malden, 8-1, as Balzano collected the Presidents' only two hits.

McInnis and Crespi were hit fairly hard but some key errors gave Malden several unearned runs.

took a 7-3 lead. North rallied for three runs in the sixth but just fell short.

Rawdon went 5 1/3 innings and Scott Dunn relieved.

Dave Gamsby had three hits for North, Jim Bryan drove in a run with a double and single, George Rozanitis had two hits and Jim Glynn drove in two runs with a single.

Last week North dropped a 1-0 squeaker to Weymouth South as it was held to four hits by Jeff Leifer.

Erik DeBoer, one of the top pitchers in the state last year, showed he is ready for another big season as he lost a seven-hitter. He struck out seven and walked two.

Frustration For North

The North Quincy baseball team, hoping to qualify for the Eastern Mass. tournament again in its last Suburban League season, is off to a frustrating start.

Monday the Raiders lost their second straight one-run decision as a rally fell short and Medford held on for a 7-6 victory.

North played Peabody Wednesday, will host Arlington today (Thursday) at 3:30 at Adams Field, will be home to Somerville Monday at 10:30 and will be at Everett next Wednesday, also at 10:30.

The Raiders took a 3-0 lead at Medford but starter Gary Rawdon tired and Medford

North Girls Open Season

North Quincy girls' softball coach Barbara Webster had several holes to fill as she prepared her team for its scheduled opener at Arlington Tuesday.

The North girls host Revere today (Thursday) at 3:30; will be home to Somerville next Tuesday at 10 a.m. and will be at Malden next Thursday at 10.

Two years ago North made the Eastern Mass. Tournament and advanced to the second round, but fell to 8-10 a year ago.

Returning from last year's team are center fielder Kerry Tolson, shortstop Soyan Park, sophomore Cindy Mitton, who will play first and third base and also catch, and first baseman Crystal Moffett. Moffett has been sidelined with a knee injury and was questionable for the opening game.

Catcher Terri Gilmore also saw some action with the varsity last Spring.

Loren Gates, outfielder-pitcher, and Cade Greeley, outfielder-third baseman.

"Gates, Greeley and Bergeron are doing very well," said Webster. "As you know, with no junior high program, we have to start at square one—skills, strategy, the whole game. Sometimes it is very frustrating for both the kids and the coaches."

"The weather has been very good and there is only so much you can do in the gym. The players know they will be only as good as they want to be."

Paul Hudson: North's Loss Aggies' Big Gain

When Paul Hudson transferred from North Quincy High to the Norfolk County Agricultural School in Walpole, it was the Raiders' loss and the Aggie Rams' big gain.

When Hudson moved to Quincy from Dorchester in 1978, he enrolled as a sophomore at North Quincy High and made the junior varsity basketball squad, sitting on the bench most of the season.

Meanwhile, he would go back to Dorchester where he was a star in the All-Dorchester Sports League, making the Dorchester papers weekly for his scoring ability.

In 1988, he transferred to Norfolk County Agricultural High and, as a junior, he played as a varsity point guard, scoring 17 points a game for the Rams and leading his team into the Eastern Mass. tournament. The Rams were ousted in the first round.

This past season the senior 6-3 co-captain had a fantastic season.

Paul led the Mayflower League in scoring with an average of 27.8 points a game and was second in scoring in Eastern Mass., behind the highly publicized Bill Curley of Duxbury, who will enter Boston College in the Fall on a full basketball scholarship.

Hudson's fellow co-captain this season was another Quincy player, junior Hugh Merlino, who also had an outstanding season for the Rams.

Hudson scored 50 points in a game against South Shore Vocational, hitting on 21 of 25 shots from the floor. His lowest point total of the season was 21.

He led the Rams to the Eastern Mass. tournament finals, including a win over league champion Avon, before losing to undefeated Harwich in the finals. The Rams finished at 15-5, the school's best record ever.

PAUL HUDSON

He was named the MVP of the Division 3 all-star game and was named to the Patriot Ledger all-scholastic team, a rarity for a Division 3 player.

"Paul was just outstanding as a player and was a real joy to coach," said Norfolk coach Bob Vichnick. "He not only is an excellent player, but a real gentleman and a real credit to the school."

Quincy's Merlino, a fine scorer and an excellent defensive player, will be depended heavily upon to help fill Hudson's shoes next season.

Hudson, a member of the Future Farmers of America, is concentrating on landscape design. He is also a member of the plant science club.

Paul plans to play basketball in college but is undecided on his choice. He is being actively recruited by UMass/Boston and Massasoit Community College.

"He should be an excellent college player," said Vichnick. "He has all the tools and has an excellent attitude."

Merrymount, Point Advance In Senior Action

The annual Quincy Recreation Department's basketball tournament for the Senior High Division continued with quarterfinal action at Atlantic Middle School Saturday. Each team battled in the hopes of surviving the one-game elimination tournament and advancing to the City Championship game.

Last year, Merrymount's season ended early in the preliminary round but it came back this year to advance by beating Central, 53-41.

Merrymount's scoring attack was led by Brian Sullivan's 39 points, including a rim rattling dunk off of a missed shot. Despite the outstanding offensive contribution from Sullivan, it took the strong play of Tony Stafford (six points) and Don Thacker (six points) to push Merrymount past Central.

Coach John Murphy praised the ball-handling skills of Chris Fay and the dominant rebounding by Bo Chapman.

Central coach Dan Coughlin got a well-balanced scoring attack for his young team as each player contributed offensively. Team scoring leaders were Tom Moupout (10 points) and Jason Simon (10 points) with Moupout scoring all his points in the fourth quarter.

Chris McHugh scored nine points for Central with Matt Fennessey scoring six, including a three-pointer. Coach Coughlin was pleased with the defense led by Lesly Miccolt as well as Charley Landry's play making.

In the second game of quarterfinal action Saturday, Point Webster defeated Montclair, 36-26. This low scoring game was a reflection of the intensity of the defense played by both teams. For Point-Webster, Jim Sugrue led all scorers with 15 points including a three-pointer which came from some great passes by Matt Fratillo.

Kevin Littlewood was the second highest scorer, turning in a 10-point effort for Point as well as putting a lot of pressure on Montclair shooters. Coach Michael Flavin saw his team pull away from Montclair in the fourth quarter as Brian Swanton scored a basket and was fouled, making it a three-point play. Flavin gave credit to Shane Young (six points) for his great play on the offensive boards.

Montclair, coached by Gerry Pratt, struggled to stay close and did so for awhile, hitting four out of five long range three-pointers. High scorers for Montclair were Gary Glenn with 12 points and Kevin MacOugall and Don Anderson with six each. Chris Desher gave a strong performance on both the offensive and defensive boards, leaving all the hustle and fast breaking to the quickness of Mike MacDougall. Pratt also praised Mike McManus for his defensive play.

Games will continue Saturdays with the City Championship game Tuesday April 5.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

All around us we see the reurgence of life. The trees are budding, the spring flowers are blooming, and the grass is not going to slow down. People are busy at all kinds of tasks; cleaning lawns, washing windows, planting geraniums, begonias and bulbs for later. Life is bursting out all over. It's a wonderful time to be alive and to be able to express a hopefulness that is so desperately needed in our world today.

In the celebration of Easter, we are offered the miracle of Resurrection. All things become new in Jesus Christ, not in the cycle of nature; but in the arrival of a new approach to living made possible by the conquering of evil, death and darkness through that new person for all, God's son, Jesus Christ.

On this side of the Resurrection there is so much that is new; hope over despair, joy over anguish, love over hate, peace over turmoil. This is what is so tremendous. In Jesus Christ, God makes all things new. Let us on our journey of faith see the new things of life ...

Channel 3 To Present Report On Head Injuries

Quincy Community Television, Channel 3, will present a special report on "Head Injury: Causes and Consequences." Thursday April 12 at 7 p.m.

Libbie Payne will host the show which will focus on the causes and effects of traumatic brain injury as well as the latest in medical and rehabilitative therapy with guests Dr. Mel Glenn, neurological rehabilitation specialist at New England Sinai Hospital and Karen Caron of Page II, Inc., a Braintree based advocacy group for patients and family of the head injured.

Robbin House Employees Plan Picket For Pensions

Employees of the Robbin House, a 115-bed nursing facility located on the Elm St. extension in Quincy, will conduct an informational picket demonstration Thursday, April 19 at 3:30 p.m. outside the facility.

The employees are part of District 1199, Service Employees International Union. The union is rallying on behalf of pensions for employees of the Hillhaven Corporation, the largest nursing home operator in the state.

A similar rally will be held

April 19, traditional Patriots Day, at 11:15 a.m. in front of Hillhaven's corporate office at 450 Bedford St., Lexington, the birthplace of American liberty.

The union has selected the date and site to dramatize what they call "the unpatriotic policy of Hillhaven Corporation which denies its employees a pension when they retire."

The union's area director, Ashley Adams, said, "If Hillhaven really cared about the elderly then they would show more concern for their own employees when they get older."

Mayor James Sheats has been invited to speak at the rally.

One Robbin House employee said she and other workers need a pension in order to "retire in dignity." The employee, who is 60, has worked for Robbin House for 11 years and now earns $9.10 an hour working in the laundry department.

She wants a pension because she believes Social Security alone will not cover her needs once she retires.

A few words on FUNERAL SERVICE

OK To Cry At Funerals

YES! It's natural to shed tears, no matter your age or sex. Crying gives one an emotional outlet for men, women and especially children.

Holding back one's natural emotions on the loss of a loved one may cause psychological problems later on, especially with children.

It's a misconception that big boys and men should not cry. This is a mistake since crying offers a relief for the inner pains, for one and all.

Mayor James Sheets, who had hoped to appoint the city's next police chief in June, will have to wait until at least October to do so.

Last week, Sheets received an opinion by City Solicitor Stephen McGrath which stated former Police Chief Francis Finn is technically still chief because his retirement has not yet been formalized.

Finn retired after a 24-year tenure as chief in February on advice from his doctor. In early March, Finn filed for a medical disability pension apparently because of his heart problems.

The former chief has had heart problems and has undergone bypass surgery.

As soon as the city's Retirement Board, a medical panel and the state's Public Employees Retirement Administration rules on Finn's pension, Sheets said he will appoint a new police chief.

Sheets said he expects a final decision on Finn's pension request by October at the earliest.

"It could be done earlier, but it's not probable."

After Finn filed for the disability pension in early March, Sheets named Captain Paul Nestor acting police chief. Nestor, whom the mayor said has done a good job as interim chief, said he will continue in that position until a new chief is named.

Finn's successor will either be Sgt. William Falco or Lt. Francis Mullin, both with the Quincy Police Department. Falco and Mullin scored first and second respectively on the most recent Civil Service exam.

Sheets wanted the next chief of police to come from within the Quincy Police

"It's Been Extremely Intense"

Sheets' First 100 Days Packed Full Of Crisis

When Mayor James Sheets took office back in January, he pledged to search for solutions to the city's fiscal crisis while improving the quality of life here.

Now, three months later, Sheets and his administration have made significant progress toward those goals. Looking ahead, the 31st mayor promises to continue that progress while breaking ground on some new ideas.

Reflecting on his first few months in office, Sheets said, "It's been an extremely intense and active 100 days. During the past 13 weeks, we've probably faced as many crises as most administrations do over two or three full terms."

Immediately, Sheets had to make difficult decisions regarding the city's budget as well as Quincy Hospital's fiscal future.

In fact, the mayor said, refusing to give the hospital $2 million for functional costs during his first week in office has been the low point of his term to date.

Sheets said the hospital had requested "a couple of million dollars" to keep the facility running but the city couldn't bail the hospital out due to its own lack of funds.

I knew that I didn't have any money in the city budget that I could say here, we'll let you use a million dollars and I couldn't say you can borrow it because I didn't know if they'd be able to pay it back.

"Here I am facing a $15 million deficit and the hospital people tell me they need $2 million to keep running, and the money is not there. I had to say no.

"I had to say I wasn't going to take the money out of such departments as fire, police and school."

Instead, Sheets asked his administrative assistant, Bernice Mader, to work with hospital officials to find other sources of revenue.

Now, the hospital situation is "stabilized" and there is a "good cash flow," the mayor noted.

To offset a projected $15 million deficit in the city's FY 1991 budget, Sheets introduced the sewer user fee which passed the City Council despite its unpopularity.

The rest of the budget was balanced by imposing a six percent cut in all departments. The cuts will force about 100 layoffs, many of them

MBTA To Spruce Up Quincy Stations

Thomas Glynn, general manager of the MBTA, has notified Mayor James Sheets of the MBTA's intention to participate in Quincy's Cleaner, Greener campaign.

"The authority is in full support of the mayor's campaign," Glynn said.

The authority will thoroughly clean all stations, install flower planters and immediately rid sidewalks and busways of winter sand accumulations, the general manager told Sheets.

Next week, the MBTA will install planters with seasonal flower arrangements at North Quincy, Wollaston, Quincy Center and Quincy Adams MBTA stations as well as the Quincy bus facility on Hancock St. in Wollaston.

Litter and trash will also be removed from the locations.

Sheets said he appreciates the effort of the MBTA. Since all MBTA stations are strategically located in active areas in Quincy, the mayor said it is important that they be kept clean.

Sheets also said he will work with Glynn to keep Quincy's transportation areas clean.

Hearing Continued On Paid Police Detail For Quincy Fair Mall

By STEVE KAVANAGH
A hearing regarding a paid police detail at the Entertainment Cinemas at Quincy Fair Mall was continued for 30 days.

The License Board has received complaints about groups of youths loitering in the area of the cinema and about a recent incident at the theatre complex.

Cinema owner Robert Hanney said there are no problems inside the mall area but that youths leaving the movies often congregate outside the theatre.

Hanney also said the owner of the mall, F.X. Messina Enterprises, has hired a new security company to work at the mall at Hanney's insistence.

Hanney said the new security guards are more experienced and are better able to deal with crowds entering and leaving the mall.

Hanney said the cinema staff is also instructed to hire a police detail when a large crowd is anticipated.

Santa Fareri, owner of Center Stage Restaurant located in the mall, told the board her patrons do not complain about problems inside the mall but that they are worried about their cars being vandalized in the parking garage and the gangs of youths loitering on Hancock Street outside the mall.

City Councillor Tim Cahill said the large groups of youths loitering outside the theatre and across the street at Napoli Pizza & Sandwich Shop may be a deterrent to people who might wish to dine, shop or attend a movie downtown.

"Mr. Hanney should not be here by himself. The businesses which have entertainment licenses, video games, etc. that attract kids to the area should share the responsibility," Cahill said.

Hanney asked that the new security firm which patrols the mall be given a chance to improve the situation.

Hanney also agreed to contact other business owners in the area about sharing the cost of a police detail for Hancock St. between Woolworth's and School St. and the parking garage behind the mall.

The License Board agreed to continue the hearing for 30 days.

Point Diversion Interceptor Work Moving Ahead

The Quincy Point Diversion Interceptor is moving forward as scheduled and could be complete by the fall, Mayor James Sheets and Council President Ted DeCristofaro announce.

The $225,000 interceptor project entails laying 1,835 linear feet of eight to 18 inch sewer line along East Howard St. and Clevelly Court from Des Moines Rd. to Washington St.

The project is being funded by the City of Quincy, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and the Massachusetts Division of Water and Pollution Control.

Proposed in 1981, the Quincy Point Relief Sewer project is the second major step in relieving the sewer backup in the Quincy Point area.

DeCristofaro noted the sewer backups can cause sewage to backup into private homes and businesses, and overflow onto beaches and recreation areas along the Town River Bay Shore.

The interceptor will provide relief in the Quincy Point area by diverting 50 percent of the existing flow from the overburdened Town River Bay interceptor. Officials call the project critical to the Town River environment and to the elimination of the sewer backups in Quincy Point.

Project contractor is D & C Construction in Norwell. Engineer is Whitman and Howard of Wellesley.

Volunteers are requested to meet at the Wollaston School in Ward 3 and the Southwest Community Center in Ward 4 at 9 a.m.

The mayor also said the Quincy Post Office will begin painting more than 300 mail boxes and mail storage boxes soon.

Other cleanups scheduled are:

• Saturday, April 28: Ward 2, meet at Fore River Clubhouse; Ward 5, Beechwood Community Life Center.

New Zoning District Proposed

The City Council will meet with the Planning Board Monday, April 23 at 7 p.m. in the Council Chambers to discuss a proposal for a new zoning district.

The concept for the new district, called Planned Unit Development Congregate Elderly Facility, was authored by Councillors Michael Cheney and Charles Phelan.

According to Planning Director Richard Meade, the ordinance would establish a new district, define it and give some dimensions for it.

"The dimensional requirements would relate to the use," Meade said.

As proposed, the district calls for a minimum lot size of 50,000 square feet and a minimum density of 500 square feet per dwelling unit.

The new district would be similar to the Planned Unit Development in that a permit for a PUD Congregate Elderly Facility would require a recommendation by the Planning Board and a two-thirds vote by the Special Permit Granting Authority which is the City Council after a public hearing.

Also, each complex would have to provide a transportation management plan demonstrating private transportation for all residents of the complex. This could include, but not be limited to, private van service and taxi cab voucher system.

QCBPA 'Clean Sweep' April 28

The Quincy Center Business and Professional Association (QCBPA) will sponsor a "Clean Sweep" of the downtown Quincy area from 8 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. Saturday, April 28.

The co-chairmen are Tony Agniti of Agniti Insurance and Santa Fareri of Center Stage Restaurant.

"The QCBPA is taking an active role in the revival of the downtown Quincy area," Fareri said. "We hope 'Clean Sweep' will represent our commitment to helping Quincy help itself."

Activities will begin at 8 a.m. with coffee and doughnuts at Quincy Fair, where the QCBPA will make a formal presentation to Mayor James Sheets in recognition of his 'Cleaner-Greener Quincy' campaign. Following the presentation the organization will take to the streets of Quincy Center, cleaning windows, sweeping and collecting rubbish.

Those interested in volunteering or becoming a patron, are asked to contact Agniti, 770-0123, or Fareri, 479-8655. Rain date is April 29.

Adams Mansion, Birth Places Open For Season

The Adams National Historic Site, which includes the "Old House" (Adams Mansion) at 135 Adams St., and the John and John Quincy Adams birthplaces at 133-141 Franklin St., will officially open for the 1990 season Thursday, April 19.

The Adams "Old House" was the residence of one of America's most distinguished families from 1787 to 1927. It has been the home to second President John Adams, and sixth President John Quincy Adams, Civil War minister to England, Charles Francis Adams, and two literary historians, Henry and Brooks Adams.

Original furnishings, the Stone Library containing historic volumes belonging to the Adamses and the 18th century garden are a few of the attractions at the site.

Only 75 feet apart, the birthplaces have special significance not only because they are the birthplaces of two presidents, but because they also provided shelter and protection for the families of our only father and son presidents when they were still expanding their careers in the service of the country.

It was in the John Quincy Adams birthplace that John Adams drafted the Massachusetts Constitution, and where Abigail Adams carried on her now famous written correspondence with John Adams during his appointment to the Continental Congress in Philadelphia.

There is a $2 per person entrance fee, which includes all three homes. Children 16 years and younger are admitted free. National Park service rangers will provide tours 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily. The last full tour is at 4:15 p.m. Reservations are suggested for groups. The grounds and gardens are open until dusk.

WE HELP NEW DRIVERS START OUT ON THE RIGHT WHEEL

For the uninitiated, automobile insurance requirements vary from state to state. In Massachusetts, where compulsory liability insurance has been mandatory since 1927, all registered vehicles must be insured against bodily injury to others, personal injury, uninsured motorists and damage to the property of others.

The new driver might also want to consider a total of eight options which coverage will supplement the protection you must have in order to drive a legally registered vehicle. First, if you are insuring a brand new car, you should consider a form of collision coverage. Then you can choose from such optional protection as medical payments, comprehensive coverage, fire, theft and vandalism and towing and labor should your car become disabled. You can also protect yourself against underinsured motorists as well as the totally uninsured. Coverage that allows you to rent a car or use substitute transportation during repairs is also available.

If you are considering protection get in touch with the insurance professionals at Riley & Rielly Insurance Agency, Inc. Please visit our office at 1680 Hancock Street in Quincy or give us a call at 471-6266.

'Mr. City Hall'

There's no such office, of course, but if there was an election for "Mr. City Hall" who would you vote for?

The man who probably would run off with the honor: City Clerk John Gillis.

Gillis has been a popular and respected figure around City Hall for 33 years — two of them as assistant city clerk and 31 as clerk.

He was unanimously elected city clerk in 1959 to succeed the late Allan W. Cole.

It was historic on at least two counts: he was the first Democrat ever to become city clerk in the city's history. He was also the first crew-cut to hold the job. And, at age 34, one of the youngest.

He had some strong backing for the job. Councillor William Ellis nominated Gillis at that 1959 City Council meeting with Councillor Thomas Burgin becoming the nomination.

Councillor Carl Anderson moved the nominations be closed. There were glowing words of praise from Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa, Council President James McIntyre, and Councillors David McIntosh, John Quinn, Burgin and Ellis.

It may have been the fastest vote in City Council history.

Times sure have changed. The clerk's salary then was $6,150 with an additional stipend of $650 for service on the Board of Registrars.

GILLIS

But back then, it was pretty good money. It was a big $510 pay raise over the $3,640 Gillis had gotten as assistant clerk under Cole.

Gillis was broken hearted at Cole's sudden death. Although Cole was a Republican and Gillis a Democrat, the pair had become close friends and never let politics get between them.

They were as good friends as Gillis and Assistant Clerk Tom Burke are today.

Time doesn't march on. It flies. Back there in 1959, John and Vi Gillis' children, Mark, was six years old and Pam, 15 months.

Today, the two children are grown and married and John and Vi are grandparents.

But one thing hasn't changed. John Gillis is still John Gillis.

And if there is such a thing as a heart of gold, he has it. And it's as big as the Rock of Gibraltar.

As city clerk he bends over backwards to accommodate the public. Wearing his other hat as chairman of the License Board, he is the champion of the underdog — especially the little guy looking for a license to get started in business.

And, he's a first class soft touch who just can't say "no" to someone down and out. And, through the years, there have been a lot of them who have worn a path to his office.

"Mr. City Hall?" He'd be a shoo-in. And, for "Mr. Nice Guy," too.

Houghs Neck Council Opposes Island Jail

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

At the April 3, 1990 meeting of the Executive Committee of the Houghs Neck Community Council Inc. the members voted to oppose Boston Mayor Ray Flynn's proposed prison on Peddocks Island in Boston Harbor.

Because of the island's close proximity to our community we feel that the placement of a prison on the island is not in the best interest of the residents of Houghs Neck, Quincy or the South Shore. This island is presently being used as a recreational area and we feel this is the best use for the island and the only use that is acceptable to our Community.

Tom Timcoe
President, Houghs Neck
Community Council

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I am writing to remind you and your readers that a very important anniversary celebration, Earth Day, will take place this April 22.

As many people will remember, 1970 Earth Day marked the beginning of the modern environmental movement. It was estimated that 25 million Americans took part in ecologically sound events across the country. The lasting framework created as a result of this action still exists in the form of the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), the Clean Water Act, the Clean Air Act, and the Endangered Species Act.

Twenty years ago, citizens from around the Bay State planted trees, helped to clean up our 1500 miles of beautiful coastline, and helped launch various local recycling programs. This grassroots exercise in community involvement encouraged people to look for solutions to our growing problems.

Today, the spirit of commitment to Mother Earth is needed more than ever. Although government agencies and corporations have a major role to play in curing the current environmental ills, there is still the need for individuals to accept the personal challenge of changing some basic daily activities.

On April 22, Congress has decreed that Americans shall join the world community in a day of dedication to begin a long-term plan for sustainable growth. This plan involves several goals listed below:

- A worldwide ban on chlorofluorocarbons
- Dramatic sustained reductions of carbon dioxide emissions
- Preservation of old-growth forests
- A ban on packaging that is neither recyclable nor biodegradable
- Implementation of a strong, effective recycling program
- A swift transition to renewable energy resources
- Dramatic increases in residential and industrial energy efficiency
- Waste minimization
- Protection for endangered species and habitat
- A powerful international agency with the authority to safeguard the atmosphere
- A new sense of responsibility for protecting our planet

The list is long, but if people from schools, universities, religious groups, and every town and city in Massachusetts organize and participate, collectively we can make a difference.

Remember, the 20th Anniversary will be celebrated in over 100 countries. So, get involved. We need your support, and so does the Earth.

For more information about this important event call New England Earth Day @ (617) 542-6333, or write to New England Earth Day, Suite 6B, 41 West Street, Boston, MA 02111.

Fondly Recalls McIntyre Years

Louise Brabazon Leaving City Hall After 24 Years

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Louise Brabazon, a long-time City Hall figure, and the only woman to serve as a mayoral executive secretary in Quincy, will retire April 24.

Brabazon, 63, of West Quincy, now the City Council's administrative assistant, began her 24-year city career as former Mayor James McIntyre's personal secretary in 1966.

McIntyre and Brabazon were good friends and he asked her to be his secretary for "two or three months." Brabazon, who had four children at home and couldn't work full-time, accepted.

But instead of a few months, her career spanned 24 years.

"Jim couldn't get rid of me. I loved it," she says reflecting on the early years.

From 1966 to 1971, she worked with McIntyre in his administration. She called the former mayor-state senator the "most intelligent and most perceptive man" she has ever met.

For her, the McIntyre years were the glory days of City Hall.

"Working with Jim McIntyre was a wonderful experience. It was a learning experience that I'll never forget."

Brabazon also called McIntyre a catalyst for several major projects in Quincy during the late 1960s and early 1970s. Among the highlights of his administration were the MBTA Red Line extension into Quincy and the development of the Jordan Marsh Warehouse and State Street South complex.

"(Jim) loved it when he had plans in front of him. He really got Quincy moving again," she recalls. During the last four months of his administration, Brabazon served as McIntyre's executive secretary. To this day, she is the only woman to serve in that capacity in Quincy.

When McIntyre became the Senate counsel in 1971,

LOUISE BRABAZON, the City Council's administrative assistant, will retire April 24 after 24 years of service to the city. Her career began in 1966 when she became personal secretary to former Mayor James R. McIntyre.

he asked Brabazon to go to work for him. But she decided against it because of family obligations.

"I would have loved to go to work with him but my family precluded that."

In 1972, she left City Hall to become a statistician for Dr. Alfred Mahoney at the John F. Kennedy Health Center.

Two years later, she returned to City Hall to become secretary of the City Council. The Council Chambers and council office have been her second home ever since.

As the City Council's secretary, she served during the administration of five mayors: Walter Hannon, Joseph LaRaia, Arthur Tobin, Francis McCauley and James Sheets.

Three years ago, she was promoted to administrative assistant for the council.

Tuesday night's Council meeting was her final meeting. She says she has mixed emotions about retiring.

"I feel it's my time to go. I'd like to spend some quality time with my family. I'm looking forward to that."

"But I'll miss working with the people and I'll miss the council. I'll miss being in the middle of things."

Brabazon had planned on leaving September 1. However, she decided to take advantage of Mayor James Sheets' retirement incentive program and leave four and a half months sooner.

Brabazon says she will stay active volunteering her time to several local charities, including the James R. McIntyre Memorial Fund and the James J. Cattaneo III Scholarship fund.

She also hopes to become more involved in St. Mary's Parish and do some volunteer work at the library or Quincy Hospital.

In addition, Brabazon and her daughter, Annmarie, are planning a trip to Ireland next spring. Annmarie is employed at the University of New Hampshire.

Brabazon, who lost her husband, William, in 1988, said she would like to visit the Emerald Isle because that is where her husband's roots are.

Her immediate plans after April 24 are more simple.

"I want a month of getting up in the morning and reading the newspaper. I haven't done that in a long time."

Quincy's Yesterdays

McIntyre Hits House 'Deal'

Rep. James R. McIntyre (D-Quincy) lashed out at what he called a "deal" to have Rep. Cornelius Kiernan (D-Lowell) named to succeed the Iron Duke, Rep. John F. Thompson (D-Ludlow), a Speaker of the House.

"I have no intention of supporting the deal made last Friday to perpetuate the present discredited and sick leadership," said the second-term State Rep. From Quincy.

"That secret meeting to pick the heir is typical of the arrogance and disrespect that the present leadership has for the individual members of the House."

Whole Wheat Bread Pudding Low Calorie And Delicious

Even while on a short vacation to Florida, I can't seem to get away from cooking. Of course, the fact that we were staying with our son Dom and his family, gave me a chance to try this recipe for low calorie bread pudding made with whole wheat bread. It's different from the classic bread pudding which is made from white bread and homogenized milk.

WHOLE WHEAT BREAD PUDDING
3 slices whole wheat bread, cubed

1/4 cup raisins
2 eggs beaten
2 cups skim milk
2 Tbsps sugar
1 tsp cinnamon
1 tsp vanilla extract

Combine the bread and raisins in a small casserole dish. In a bowl mix the remaining ingredients, stirring well. Pour over the bread mixture and stir again. Place the casserole dish in a larger baking pan and pour warm water into it about an inch deep. Bake in a 350 degree oven for 45 minutes or until a knife inserted in the center comes out clean. Spoon into dessert bowls and serve warm. Makes 4 servings. You can put whipping cream over it if you like, but I guess if you want to keep it sort of low cal, you'd better skip it!

Marie D'Olimpio is the author of "Simply Italian-And Then Some," a collection of her own recipes. Copies of the book are available at Previte's Market, Summer St., Quincy Point, Samoset Pharmacy, Samoset Ave., Merrymount and Winfield Gift Emporium, Hancock St., Quincy Center.

First Phi Theta Kappa Induction At QJC

Phi Theta Kappa, the nationwide academic honor society of community and junior colleges, has granted Quincy Junior College a charter to form its own chapter.

The college will induct its first students into the organization in a special charter ceremony tonight (Thursday).

Phi Theta Kappa, a 70 year old honor society modeled after the Phi Beta Kappa society for four year colleges, recognizes the highest level of academic achievement at more than 750 community and junior colleges across the country. The 35,000 students inducted each year into Phi Theta Kappa carry their gold society keys proudly for the rest of their lives.

"Quincy Junior College is proud to have been accepted into such a prestigious organization as Phi Theta Kappa," said Nancy Giuffrida, the college's Director of Student Life. "While our new chapter is an honor for the college, we pursued it first and foremost because we believe outstanding academic achievement is not the sole province of four year colleges. The Quincy Junior College students who work so hard to acquire the knowledge and training for careers-many while working at jobs and raising families-deserve just as much recognition."

Sheets Would Prefer 4-Year Term

Mayor James Sheets, who has confronted a myriad of important issues during his first three months in office, says he would prefer to have a four-year term.

With a four-year term, Sheets said he and future mayors could be more efficient and accomplish more. However, he has not decided whether he will submit a proposal for a four-year term to the City Council.

The mayor made his remarks while discussing the first three months in office during a recent interview.

Asked if he now supports a four-year mayoral term, Sheets replied, "I personally, from this perspective, look at the four-year term that it has merit in terms of policy. I can understand how everyone who occupies this seat feels that a four-year term is better because they can be a more efficient mayor with not having to spend a lot of time in their second year campaigning.

"But I also understand that people want every two years to have the opportunity to vote someone in or out of office. They want the chance to pass judgement on somebody every two years.

"Would I prefer to have a four-year term? Yeah, I would prefer to have a four-year term. I don't think there can be a mayor who sits in this chair who doesn't believe that."

Former mayor Francis McCauley twice tried to extend the mayoral term to four years. Both times his efforts failed.

At his farewell press conference last December, McCauley also recommended to Sheets that he seek a four-year term.

At the time, Sheets said he would consider it.

Four months later, Sheets is still undecided because he says the extension is not a priority with him.

"Will I submit that kind of proposal to the (City) Council? I really haven't had a chance to give it any thought. It's not a priority with me."

Sheets' First 100 Days Packed Full Of Crisis

Although the $121 million budget is balanced now, it could prove to be unbalanced by June or July. The budget is based on a level funding of local aid, which last year totalled about $34 million.

With the state still reeling in red ink, that amount appears to be in jeopardy.

Recently, the mayor has had to deal with one issue beyond his control; high property assessments. The state certified figures have caused a furor among hundreds of taxpayers. Approximately 1,000 taxpayers have filed for abatements because they believe their assessments increased far above what their property is actually worth.

Some residents blamed Sheets for increasing assessments, believing he did it purposely to increase the tax levy.

However, this is not the case.

"(Higher) valuations don't give the mayor any more money. We can only go up two and a half percent of the levy anyway.

"We couldn't change (the levy) if we wanted to. If we tried, we'd be in violation of state law."

There have been other obstacles and hurdles, ranging from several winter snowstorms, which drained the city's snow removal budget, to the backfiring of the appointment of Keo Kelly as the new deputy commissioner of Public Works.

Sheets said withdrawing Kelly's name because some city councillors opposed the appointment was "disappointing but manageable."

It was disappointing because Sheets wanted Kelly to oversee his "Cleaner, Greener Quincy" campaign and to work on other public works projects like flood control and the capping of the West Quincy landfill.

Without Kelly, the position will remain unfilled. As a result, the projects will stay on the back burner indefinitely.

Overall, the mayor is upbeat about the progress his administration has made.

"We have had a substantial number of crises that we've had to face and I think we've faced them very well. At the same time, we've tried to conduct our programs as we promised we would in the campaign."

For example, the "Cleaner, Greener Quincy" effort has taken off, with as many as 80 businesses participating. Some have donated flowers, others trash bags and many will take part in the scheduled clean ups.

Sheets said the overwhelming support for his "Cleaner, Greener" campaign has pleasantly surprised him. "It's encouraging to feel that people will work for a cleaner, greener city."

Other goals appear to be moving right along.

Sheets recently organized a new committee, which will work on beautifying and promoting Quincy Square. Flower beds have been measured on McIntyre Mall in front of City Hall and other downtown areas are being spruced up.

Work on a downtown Quincy promotional film will also begin soon. The committee hopes the film will attract new businesses to the area once known as "Shopperstown, USA."

In about three weeks, Sheets and Peter O'Connell will travel to Washington, D.C. and meet with Bush aides Andy Card and Ron Kaufman, as well as Sen. Ted Kennedy, in an attempt to secure $4 to $5 million in federal funding.

The money would be used to spruce up downtown and give the area a colonial look, perhaps with new sidewalks, light fixtures and a pedestrian mall.

The "Adopt-A-Park" program is off the drawing board," Sheets said, and his administration will begin meeting with officials from the private sector in an effort to secure $15,000 in annual contributions to fund the program.

The city also filed two lawsuits against the MWRA's decision to site a permanent sludge facility at the former General Dynamics shipyard. Strategies against Clean Harbors' proposal for a hazardous waste incinerator near the Quincy-East Braintree line have also been developed.

Despite being bogged down with fiscal concerns, the Sheets' administration has kept pace with improving the quality of life here.

"I think we've been very aggressive and I think we've moved forward in many areas and there are others where we'll be moving forward as the months progress."

"Obviously, in the future, we really look forward to not only the cleaning and greening of all of Quincy, but keeping Quincy clean. We look forward to working out the whole issue of beautification of the downtown area."

"By the end of the summer, we hope to have the meetings of the committee to redevelop the downtown complete and be in the action phase, where we're moving forward," Sheets said.

In the near future, the mayor also hopes to get his teacher volunteer program and rezoning project off the ground.

After the City Council passes the budget, Sheets said he will begin examining a bond issue for capital outlay.

Noting this is the second straight year capital outlay has been omitted from the budget, the mayor said, "We have a tremendous amount of capital problems; buildings that need repair, equipment that needs to be replaced."

Looking to the future, the mayor said, "We're looking forward to continuing at the same pace for the next three to six months. There are some exciting things that I think will happen in the future."

APRIL IS

Child Abuse Prevention Month

Say the word and you can break
a child's spirit.

Words that demean and insult a child can hit as hard as a fist. And leave scars you can't see. Stop using words that hurt. Start using words that help.

WORDS THAT CAN HELP KIDS

These phrases are suggested by the National Committee For Prevention of Child Abuse as part of their April Is Child Abuse Prevention Month campaign.

I/We love you.
That's great!
Good job.
You look terrific.
What did you like best about today?
You're very special.
Let's talk about you.
I/We want to help you.
I/We're so proud of you.
I can see why you're angry.
Let's talk about it.
I believe you can do it.
Thanks for your help.
You're such a good worker.
You do _____ so well.
Don't give up.
You're so nice to be around today.
Just do the best you can.
You're going to be just fine.
How can you/we fix it?
Give it your best ...
You are what matters.
We can do it together.
And in general, words that validate a child's feelings and give him/her encouragement.

stop using words that hurt.

Twelve alternatives to lashing out at your kid.

The next time everyday pressures build up to the point where you feel like lashing out - STOP! And try any of these simple alternatives.

You'll feel better ... and so will your child.

1. Take a deep breath. And another. Then remember you are the adult.
2. Close your eyes and imagine you're hearing what your child is about to hear.
3. Press your lips together and count to 10. Or better yet to 20.
4. Put your child in a time-out chair. (Remember the rule: one time-out minute for each year of age.)
5. Put yourself in a time-out chair. Think about why you are angry: is it your child, or is your child simply a convenient target for your anger?
6. Phone a friend.
7. If someone can watch the children, go outside and take a walk.
8. Take a hot bath or splash cold water on your face.
9. Hug a pillow.
10. Turn on some music. Maybe even sing along.
11. Pick up a pencil and write down as many helpful words as you can think of. Save the list.
12. Write for prevention information: National Committee for Prevention of Child Abuse, Box 2866L, Chicago, IL 60690.

Tedeschi Food Shops Opens 64th Store At Presidents Place

Tedeschi Food Shops recently opened its 64th store in The Galleria at Presidents Place, part of the $60 million mixed-use development on the site of the former Bargain Center in Quincy.

Tedeschi joins a growing list of retail tenants at The Galleria at Presidents Place, according to John Alongi, representing Campanelli Realty Trust, retail leasing agents for Presidents Place. Other retail tenants within The Galleria at Presidents Place include The Boston Five Cents Savings Bank, which recently opened a full-service branch office; HCHP Optical Shop, opening this fall and providing optical service to both Harvard Community Health Plan members and the general public; Cafe Lazzarino, now open and offering breakfast, lunch and dinner; and Hancock News, the place for news and tobacco.

Terry Tedeschi, director of store development at Tedeschi Food Shops, said the store at The Galleria at Presidents Place represents an exciting development of the South Shore-based food store company.

The company has never opened a store in an indoor retail mall facility. At The Galleria at Presidents Place, there will be both outside and mall entrances to the store.

Tedeschi expressed confidence in Presidents Place and the downtown Quincy location as the key reason for this "new" venture.

"We think Presidents Place and downtown Quincy is a good area," Tedeschi said. "There doesn't seem to be a lot of competition in that area, and coupled with the traffic from the office development, the retail mall, and nearby students, we're confident the store will be very successful."

Terry Tedeschi said when choosing a site for a new store, the determining factor is always location. "We have a few different guidelines that help make our stores successful," Tedeschi said, "but location is really the most important thing." Particularly in an extremely competitive convenience store environment throughout Massachusetts.

Tedeschi explained throughout the 1980s, the convenience store industry enjoyed tremendous growth. "There has been an overbuilding, to some extent," Tedeschi said. "The climate is certainly more competitive. Competition among convenience stores; gas stations with food, and supermarkets open on Sundays, have added to the competitive environment."

Location, Tedeschi said, is the first weapon in the arsenal for a successful convenience store and The Galleria at Presidents Place is a perfect example.

"It will be a good place to do business," Tedeschi said. "We've enjoyed success in Quincy and we expect that to continue with our store in The Galleria at Presidents Place."

The Tedeschi family got its start over sixty years ago when Angelo Tedeschi opened a store in his Rockland basement. In 1946, Angelo's oldest son, Ralph, opened the first Tedeschi's Supermarket in Rockland. In 1961, the Tedeschi family sold the six store chain to Stop & Shop and started Angelo's Supermarket chain, named in honor of the founding father.

Along the way, the Tedeschi family acquired the 26-store Curtis Compact chain. The convenience store company over the past 18 years has grown to a total of 64 stores.

In 1986, the Tedeschi family sold the 18-store Angelo's Supermarket chain to Supermarkets General Corp. and renamed the Curtis Compact chain to Tedeschi Food Shops.

Today, the grandchildren of Angelo Tedeschi operate the Tedeschi Food Shops chain with expectations of future growth from valuable experience passed down through three generations.

In the contest, homerooms competed by collecting Stop & Shop and Bradlee's receipts redeemable for Apple computers and software.

Quincy High students responded to the "Apples for the Students" contest enthusiastically, significantly exceeding the $600,000 goal.

As a result, Quincy High will receive three Apple IIGS computers, an Imagewriter II printer, several extra disk drives and a selection of educational software. A large amount of software will be going to the Quincy Teen Mothers Program, which was one of the contest's leading contributors.

The Business Of Antiquing

"Wanted: Individual to fly to major cities, ride in chauffeured limousines, stay in fine hotels, work with experts, give advice, buy important antiques. All expenses paid, plus commissions." It's the job David Lindquist lists on his resume; David Lindquist, A.S.A., lecturer, appraiser, educator, former president of the National Association of Antique Dealers, and Senior Member of the American Society of Appraisers, editor of the The Official 1990 Price Guide to Antiques and Collectibles (House of Collectibles, $11.95).

Exterior shading on windows reduces heat, glare

There are several products on the market now that can be installed on your windows and glass doors to block the sun. Many types of these sun control products are installed on the inside of the window, such as venetian blinds or even reflective film, which is usually pasted directly on the inside of the window.

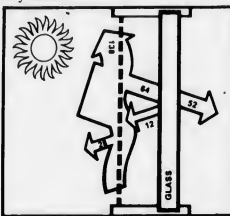

But the most effective way to control the sun is to block it with some type of shading device on the outside of the window. Exterior shading devices are more effective than most other types of sun control products. They stop the sun's heat before it ever enters your windows.

There are three exterior shading products that have been proven very effective and are also relatively inexpensive and easy to install. The three products are SunScreen solar screens, ShadeScreen Louvered Aluminum and SunTex heavy duty shading mesh. All three products are very effective.

SunScreen, which is a woven fiberglass mesh, can be used as a replacement for your regular insect screens to block up to 70 percent of the sun's heat and glare. ShadeScreen, which is a series of thin aluminum louvers stamped out of a solid sheet of aluminum, is the most effective method and can block as much as 87 percent of your total annual solar heat gain. SunTex is also a woven product, made of vinyl-coated polyester fabric, extremely strong and fade resistant. It can block 65-70 percent of the sun's rays as well.

The use of one of these shading products can mean less work for your air conditioner and lower cooling bills. Another benefit is protection against fading of carpets, drapes and furnishings, since the exterior shading devices block most of the sun's harmful ultraviolet rays. And, since these products are installed on the outside of your windows, they can work with the windows open or closed, unlike films and other types of shading, which are only effective when the window is fully closed.

SAVE ENERGY, lower cooling costs and improve comfort year-round with SunScreen® solar screens, which block up to 70 percent of the sun's heat and glare before it touches the window glass.

Outward visibility is important—that's why we put windows in to begin with! These exterior shading devices allow good outward visibility and can even afford improved daytime privacy. You can see out but outsiders cannot easily see inside. This means you can leave your drapes or shades open during the day and still have privacy.

Exterior shading can be installed over any type and size of window—even fixed windows or storm windows. If you have conventional "double-hung" windows with full-length insect screens, this insect screening can be replaced with SunScreen or SunTex, often in the same frames your insect screening is in. It's a fairly easy job for the do-it-yourselfer and the SunScreen material is available at many leading hardware and home center stores. Some stores have the SunTex as well.

One important point: To be totally effective, the shading needs to cover the entire window. Many storm windows have half-screens that cover only the bottom half of the window. That's sufficient for insect protection because you only open the lower sash. But for keeping out the sun's heat you need shading on both the top and bottom windows.

These products are not really new. In fact, they've been popular for years in such hot climates as Arizona, Southern California and Texas. Some of the local and state building ordinances in these states even require shading of this type on new construction. SunScreen, ShadeScreen and SunTex are recommended and endorsed by many utility companies in the South and West as well.

The idea behind these products is relatively simple, although it took years of testing to develop the finished products. The ribbed-weave mesh of the SunScreen is just enough to stop the sun's heat while still allowing enough daylight to enter. The tiny louvers of the ShadeScreen are angled at about 17 degrees and will block 100 percent of the sun's direct rays during the hottest parts of the day. Even when the sun is low in the sky, the louvers will block a large part of the heat and glare. SunTex was developed especially for use on greenhouses, skylights, solariums and other such places where there is almost constant exposure to the sun.

Having any of these exterior shading devices on your windows is a lot like sitting under a shade tree on a hot summer day. The screens work exactly like the tree's leaves, blocking the heat before it reaches you. However, the exterior shades are better. Since they are always an inch or two directly outside of your windows they work all day long and all year long, even after the leaves on your shade tree have left for the winter.

Where do you find these products? If you are a do-it-yourselfer, check with your nearest hardware or home center store. If they don't stock SunScreen, SunTex or ShadeScreen, they can usually order it for you from their warehouse and have it in a few days. SunScreen and SunTex come in a choice of several colors to match your home exterior. Aluminum ShadeScreen is available in only one color, a neutral black finish. Some hardware dealers even offer in-store rescreening or can direct you to a nearby screen shop.

Storytelling Program At Crane Library April 24

Storyteller Sharon Kennedy will present her critically acclaimed program "An American Storyteller in Ireland" at the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Square, Tuesday, April 24 at 7 p.m.

The program is of particular interest to adults, young adults and children eight years and older.

During the summer of 1987, Kennedy traveled from County Clare to Northern Ireland and taped tales from native storytellers age 60 to 89. The stories are as varied as the storytellers from humorous to traditional to mystical.

SHARON KENNEDY

Kennedy does more than retell the stories she collected. She also talks about the tellers and the experience of collecting tales from them. Like the tales, the tellers are filled with wit and wonder which Kennedy recreates in her Irish accent.

"An American Storyteller in Ireland: The Wit and Wonder, Tellers and the Tales," is a National Library Week program funded by the Friends of the Library.

Other Library Week events include a celebrity read-aloud Wednesday, April 25 at 7 p.m. for young children; and the Friends Book Sale Saturday, April 28 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Wollaston branch library, 41 Beale St.

Grandparents As Parents On Channel 3 April 24

There are 32 million grandparents across the nation functioning as parents for their grandchildren because their own children, for some reason, are unable to care for the children.

Learn how these grandparents cope with parenting a second time on "Grandparents as Parents," this month's edition of "Coastal Concerns," Tuesday, April 24 at 7 p.m. on Channel 3.

Hostess Paula Golden and special guests Maureen O'Reilly, attorney and Guardian Ad-Litum, Melanie McGrath, coordinator of child behavior at New England Medical Center and Judy Kingston and Peggy Plante, both grandparents and co-founders of the Mass. Chapter of Grandparents as Parents (GAP), will discuss the emotional, ethical and legal conflicts surrounding this now common family situation.

In the years when most grandparents enjoy the freedom of retirement, these seniors are making school lunches and changing diapers. As these grandparents find their lives changing drastically, they are looking for support and advice on how to be parents in the 1990s.

The Mass. chapter of G.A.P. has recently been established to give these grandparents a chance to air their frustrations and share positive experiences as they offer their grandchildren an alternative to becoming wards of the state.

"Grandparents as Parents" will be rebroadcast Tuesday, May 8, at 7 p.m. on Channel 3.

"Coastal Concerns" is produced before a studio audience and telecast live from the Quincy Community Television studio at Continental Cablevision in Quincy. To call in with questions or comments during the show, or to find out more about becoming a part of the studio audience in the future, call 471-9609.

Middle Schools

Beechwood, Atherton Snug Harbor In Wins

The Quincy Recreation Department All-City Basketball Tournament continued with Beechwood Knoll tapping off against Atlantic in middle school action.

Beechwood won the game, played at Atlantic, 46-30. Beechwood led 12-7 after one quarter despite Steve Manning's three-point bomb for Atlantic.

But that first quarter proved to be as close as Atlantic would get.

Beechwood was paced by Tony Licciardi, who scored a game-high 28 points, including some great drives to the basket.

Justin Dilks had eight points and Jeremy Gott netted six as Beechwood advanced to the semi-final round.

Coach Jack Kelly credited Matt Beston and Mike Santoro for moving the ball on the offensive end as well as their pressure defense. Rod Campbell was also praised for his rebounding.

Atlantic coach George Dunn was pleased with his squad's team effort. Eric Zimmerman scored 15 points for Atlantic.

Fives were wild for three Atlantic starters in scoring including Marty Shields (also seven rebounds), Steve Manning and Eric Zimmerman. Bill Manning did a great job pushing the ball up the floor for Atlantic.

Point-Webster fell three points shy of moving to the city championship, falling to Snug Harbor, 37-35. Webster made an exciting fourth quarter run by putting on a full court press resulting in two steals by Jonathan Gangi (six points) and a steal by Mike Auperlee (eight points).

Amidst all the confusion with steals, turnovers and timeouts, Snug Harbor held their composure with Harold Mortel extinguishing Webster's hopes with a steal of his own with five seconds remaining.

The winners top scorers were Joe Kelly, with 15 points, and Mortel who tallied 14, who worked great together on offense.

Snug Harbor's Kevin Norton had two timely baskets in the fourth quarter and Jason Beavois (two points) controlled the boards on both ends. Coach Will Hughes complimented his team on staying under control and noted that Eric Kenney and David Sawan's heads up play was a key to the victory.

Point-Webster had a balanced scoring attack. Ian McNulty scored eight points on fast break layups, Walter Spadorcia scored his points off of offensive rebounds and Mike Auperlee scored off of a steal and the assists of Sam Hannas who had five points including a trey.

Coach Janice Sullivan praised her team for their comeback try and singled out Gangi and John DeAngelis for closing up the lanes on defense. The rebounding of Don Goss gave the Webster scorers many second opportunities.

Atherton Hough upset Beechwood Knoll in the semi-final round, 50-23.

Atherton Hough jumped to a 10-point lead at halftime and never looked back. Every player for the winners contributed in the scoring column with top scorer Brian McPartlin pouring in 22 points including two treys.

Mike Kane followed with 11 and Joe Mantion had a big second half and finished with nine. Chris McPartlin added six points and dished out seven assists.

Coach Nicky Mantion praised Jim Cipriano and Chris McPartlin for their ability to see the whole floor which led to many scoring opportunities for the young Atherton Hough club. Joe Kidney's rebounding and defense helped keep Beechwood from catching up.

Beechwood Knoll just couldn't put points on the board and couldn't slow down Atherton Hough.

Licciardi topped Beechwood scorers with nine points including five of five from the foul line. Gott scored six and rebounded well, and Justin Dilks, Mike Costa, Boston and Chris Mead added two points each.

Coach Kelly was disappointed with the loss but was pleased that his players never gave up.

Balducci's topped N.V. Survey Assoc., 8-3, sparked by Shane Kabilian's hat trick.

Flavin's Bat Hot For Bentley

Former Quincy High baseball star Ed Flavin, who led the Bentley College team with a .345 average a year ago, got off to a slow start this Spring but has broken out of it to raise his average to .317.

The sophomore center fielder led the Falcons on a seven-game win streak, which improved the record to 8-4 (6-2 in the Northeast-10 Conference).

DeBoer Does It Himself

By TOM SULLIVAN

Erik DeBoer of North Quincy is one of the best schoolboy pitchers in the state.

He proved that last year with a brilliant season for North Quincy and Morrisette Legion.

This spring the big right-hander lost his first two games, 1-0 and 2-1, despite outstanding performances and he decided Monday that if his mates weren't going to win for him, he'd do it himself.

DeBoer, after pitching 10 grueling innings against Somerville, came up in the bottom of the 10th with a runner on first and hit a triple far over the right fielder's head to drive in the winning run in a 4-3 decision at Adams Field, improving North's record to 2-3.

DeBoer turned in a fantastic performance, striking out 23, walking only one and giving up just four hits. All three Somerville runs were unearned.

Leo Donovan's Raiders faced Everett yesterday (Wednesday), will be at Malden Friday at 10:30 and will open their final Suburban League season Monday at Cambridge Rindge and Latin at 3:30.

North took a 2-0 lead in the first inning against Somerville but the visitors scored a run in the second and took a 3-2 lead with two in the third.

North pushed the tying run across in the sixth inning and both teams passed up scoring chances in the next three innings.

In the bottom of the 10th Jim Bryan walked and DeBoer came through with his game-winning triple.

"I'm very happy for Erik, he certainly deserved to win this one," said Donovan. "He had pitched two beautiful games and had nothing to show for it and this win should give us a big boost. Erik was just overpowering and I don't know when one of our pitchers had struck out 23 batters."

DeBoer had a single in addition to his triple. Bryan had two singles and Dave Gamsby, Jeff Calvert, Tony Anderlionis and Ron Boudreau had a single each.

In its previous game North had lost to Peabody, 2-1, despite DeBoer's second straight outstanding effort.

Peabody scored both runs in the second inning.

Jim Glynn went two for two for the Raiders, who scored their only run in the seventh inning. DeBoer struck out 11 and walked four.

Earlier North Quincy's bats exploded for the first time as it came from behind with five runs in the seventh to edge Arlington, 10-9.

A two-run single by George Rozanitis keyed the winning rally as North pounded out 17 hits.

Gamsby recorded the victory in relief. Rozanitis and Bryan had three hits each and Anderlionis, Calvert, Glynn and Jim Maloney had two apiece.

"I'm getting grayer this season," said Donovan. "Each of our five games have been decided by one run. We have been hitting in spurts and we have had some key defensive lapses. We just have to start putting everything together."

Last season North had a 3-8 record and went on to win its last nine games to win the Suburban League title and qualify for the Eastern Mass. Tournament for the first time in 10 years.

SIX NORTH QUINCY High wrestlers were awarded scholarships of $500 each at the recent team banquet. The scholarships are given in memory of Shawn Clancy and Danny Ward, former Raider wrestlers who were killed in a car crash. Among the scholarship winners were, left to right, David Grippi, William Lee, Peter Wildes and David Gon. The others were Michael Tufts and Jude Tam. Juniors Derek Colantonio and Jim O'Toole were elected captains of next year's wrestling team.

Quincy Erupts Against Somerville

The Quincy High baseball team erupted last week for an 11-7 victory over Somerville to improve its record to 2-3.

The Presidents already have more wins than all of last year.

Monday's scheduled game with Revere was postponed until Tuesday due to the condition of the Revere field.

The Presidents played Arlington yesterday (Wednesday), will play at Everett Friday at 10:30 and will open their final Suburban League schedule next Wednesday against Brookline at 3:30 at Adams Field.

Chad McMahon, who hurled a four-hitter to give Quincy its first win, went the route against Somerville and was given plenty of support at the plate.

Tom Balzano, the Presidents' leading hitter, had three hits and four RBI. Pat Gallagher had two hits and freshman Rob Kane had a hit and scored three times.

In its previous game Quincy lost to Medford, 7-3.

Softball

Quincy Girls Rally
Raiderettes Shelled

The Quincy girls' softball team, under first-year coach Bud Mosher, evened its record at 1-1, overcoming a 14-2 deficit to defeat Somerville, 17-15, last week.

Mosher, who once coached Quincy's baseball team for several years, succeeded Jim Piccini as softball coach and, following an opening day loss to Malden, saw his team explode for 13 runs in the sixth inning to top Somerville.

Quincy was scheduled to play Peabody Tuesday, will host Everett today (Thursday) at 3:30 at Faxon Field and next Wednesday will be at Brookline at 3:30 p.m.

Lisa Connolly had two hits and three RBI for Quincy against Somerville, Colleen Gallagher had three RBI, Chris Barrett had four hits and a RBI and Kristen Clark had three hits and a RBI.

The Quincy girls turned two double plays, including one to end the game.

Meanwhile, Barbara Webster's North Quincy girls got off to a rough start as they were bombed by Arlington, 18-1, in their opener.

Arlington had only six hits but were given 14 walks.

Shana Cobban reached on an error and scored North's only run on Kerry Tolson's hit.

Marathon Draws Large Field Of Quincy Runners

Sen. Paul Harold, running in his 10th Boston Marathon, finished in 4:25, which he considered one of his poorest performances.

"The heat affected me and I lost too much water," Harold said. "Also, I got a bad sunburn on the back of both legs and I practically had to walk to the finish line."

Quincy High School principal Lloyd Hill finished again and he was joined by his son, Larry, who came in from New York to run with his dad. Both finished.

"We are so proud of both of them," said Mrs. Hill. "Lloyd has been running the marathon for several years and just to finish is a big thrill for all of us."

Missing from this year's marathon was Quincy Police lieutenant Fran Mullen, a veteran of 41 marathons around the world, including many Boston runs. A candidate for the police chief's job, he has been too busy to train properly.

He will make up for it by running in the National Law Enforcement's relay run from Boston to Washington May 10-13. The teams of police officers will run to benefit the Sherman Griffiths Memorial Fund. The Boston police officer and Milton resident was killed in the line of duty Feb. 17, 1988.

Newton's Depth Too Much For North

The North Quincy boys' track team built up a big lead in the field events but was outclassed in the running events as it lost to a strong Newton North team, 74-66, in a Suburban League meet at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Newton's depth and experience paid off as it outscored North Quincy, 52-20, in the running events. Starring for North Quincy were sophomore Desmond Bellot, who won the long jump and ran third leg on the winning 4 x 100 relay team, and Jason Buckley, a transfer from Quincy High, who won the two-mile. Bellot qualified for the states with a leap of 19 feet, 3 and 3/4 inches.

The relay team of Wayne Sit, Evan Kiley, Bellot and Marc Cocuzzo ran 47.6 and also qualified for the states. All four are underclassmen.

Other winners for North were John O'Donnell, high jump; Brian Zimmerman, shot put; Matt Swierk, discus, and Adam Strout, javelin.

Placing second were Sit, 100, qualifying for the states; Buckley, mile; Mike Yee, high hurdles, 300 hurdles and triple jump; Kiley, shot and Zimmerman, discus.

Placing third were Cocuzzo, 200; Peter Wildes, 400; Andy Wohlrab, 800 and Chris Ballum, mile and two-mile.

Wohlrab is the only four year senior on the squad. Wildes, in his second year, and Zimmerman, in his first year, are the only other seniors.

"We lost this on experience," said encouraged but disappointed coach Peter Chrisom. "Last year we got bombed by them but this time we had them on the ropes."

Girls coach Jeff Hennessy, who trains the boys in sprints, hurdles and jumps, said "We have just one four year senior and everyone else is either an underclassman or rookie. Everyone is improving and this club can go .500."

The Raiders' next dual meet will be Monday, April 30, against Cambridge Rindge and Latin at Veterans Memorial Stadium. They will compete in the B.C. Relays today (Thursday) and Saturday and in the state coaches outdoor relays on April 28.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

It is a sad truth that too many times people when faced with the death of a member of their family or a friend do not know how to proceed with the responsibility concerning the funeral service. As funeral directors we've met with hundreds of families who were confused, unsure and often unable to make important decisions at this sorrowful time.

Frankly, we feel these problems can be alleviated by discussion and pre-planning. Funeral and burial arrangements are an important consideration and should be discussed openly and frankly. Advantages and disadvantages of funeral pre-arrangements depend upon individual circumstances and cannot be generalized. What may be satisfying and right for some could be impracticable for others.

While most people do not like to think about their own death or that of a close family member, funeral pre-planning can ease possible problems associated with death. Full, frank discussion to your questions or inquiries is always available here without cost or obligation.

A Tradition of Trust For Over 70 Years.

Just before World War I, Sweeney Funeral Homes' first location was established in a small storefront on the corner of Hancock and School streets. Dennis S. Sweeney, the homes' first funeral director is remembered as a rather tall man, who had a beautiful, yet somber voice. Dressed in his characteristic top hat and tails, his singing was requested at funeral processions for over 30 years.

When he died in 1948, he entrusted the continuation of the family-owned tradition of instinctive and genuine concern for the city's bereaved families to his nephew, M. Joseph Sweeney.

Since 1917, Sweeney Funeral Homes have always meant the finest, most traditional service that Quincy has to offer. But we've also changed with the needs of the times, whatever they were. As early as 1940, we began offering pre-planning as a way for wise Quincy residents to plan their future.

Today, with funeral costs one of the top five major expenses for most families, pre-arrangements make better sense than ever before. Call Dennis Sweeney, our third-generation funeral director, at (617) 773-2728. Our family has been helping South Shore residents with difficult decisions for over 70 years. It's a Tradition of Trust that stands as our guarantee.

No New Police Chief Before October

Department. John Ford, who scored third on the exam, is now police chief in Bourne. The mayor said he is not considering Ford as Finn's successor.

Sheets asked McGrath for an opinion on when he could appoint the next chief. On April 12, the solicitor told him that Finn is technically still the chief and will continue to be until his retirement becomes formal.

"Frank Finn is still the police chief in the city of Quincy and will be the chief until his retirement is finalized. I will not be able to appoint a successor until that time," Sheets said.

"I had hoped we could do it in June but according to the solicitor, it's not legally possible," Sheets said.

Before his retirement can become formal, the city's retirement board, a medical panel and the state must rule on Finn's request for a pension.

On March 21, the retirement board sent a request to Finn's physician asking for medical documentation regarding the chief's physical condition.

The physician has 45 days or until the end of April to send the documentation to the retirement board. As of Tuesday, Sheets said the board had not received the information.

Once the documentation is received, the board will appoint a medical panel to examine the information. The panel will comprise of three physicians.

The panel has 60 days to make a decision. The mayor said a decision usually takes only 30 days.

According to Sheets, the panel will decide whether Finn is disabled, whether the disability is permanent and whether the disability was caused by the job.

As soon as the panel makes a recommendation, the retirement board will meet immediately to make a final decision.

The board will then file their decision with PERA for final state approval. Sheets said the state agency usually concurs with the retirement board's decision.

Until a final decision is made, Finn will remain on sick leave and continue to draw from his $65,000 a year salary, the mayor said.

Used Cars License Granted

The Quincy License Board Tuesday granted to Conchetta Devine and Francis A. Leahy a Class II License to sell used cars at Granite Auto Sales, Inc., 166 Washington St.

Leahy told the board, no cars would be stored inside. The board stipulated that two parking spaces be removed, landscaping work be done, and that no cars would be allowed to be parked on the street.

Leahy told the board that only late model cars — no junk — would be sold, and that the lot will be paved, landscaping work done, a fence erected and the office renovated.

Ward 2 City Councillor Ted DeCristofaro asked Leahy and the board to agree that no cars would be parked on the street and that no activity take place behind the building which abuts a residential neighborhood.

Council Prunes $50,000 From Budget

The City Council pruned $50,000 from the $120.8 million FY 1991 budget and put on hold two department budgets and several other items Monday night.

Fifteen department budgets were approved by the council which met as the Finance Committee. Among the budgets approved were city clerk, personnel, data processing, rent grievance and recreation.

Budget hearings will continue Monday, April 30 at 7 p.m. when the Council reviews the police, school, traffic control, and health department budgets. The sessions will wrap up Wednesday, May 2 at 7:30 p.m. when the fire, public works and any other remaining budgets are acted on.

The FY 91 budget goes into effect July 1.

The $50,000 cut was made in the legal department which had a line item of $200,000. The money is for any court judgement the city may incur.

With the city facing several dozen layoffs in the school and fire departments, some councilors said they favored reducing smaller department budgets in an effort to save some jobs.

The council put a hold on the $1.4 million library budget and $273,367 veteran services budget at the request of Ward 3 Councilor Lawrence Chretien.

Chretien said he favors keeping some library positions unfilled as a way of preventing some layoffs in the school and fire departments.

The council also put holds on several items which total $328,113. They are:

- The $38,613 salary of the director of forestry.

Councillor Timothy Cahill requested the hold, questioning whether the job is still needed since Quincy lacks a lot of forests and plants only a small number of new trees every year.

- A request for $250,000 from Auditor Robert Foy for the city's unemployment compensation account. Foy will inform the councilors of the number of layoffs and the benefits each will receive at the next hearing.

• A $37,500 request from the treasurer's office to put city records on microfilm. The council may delay the work for a year.

• A $20,000 appropriation for demolishing buildings. The council asked Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey for an estimate on the number of buildings that will have to be razed this year.

• "We will take what action is necessary to protect our interests and we are going to pursue, in the Legislature, the right to inspect and it is also our intention to inform the federal judge responsible for overseeing the cleanup of the Quincy Bay of precisely what has happened," the mayor said.

Tax Bills Due May 1

Second half real estate tax bills for FY 1990 are due Tuesday, May 1. Tax Collector Dana Childs reminds Quincy property owners.

Payments not received in the Collector's office by 4:30 p.m. May 1 will be assessed interest at 14 percent back to April 1, 1990.

Applications for abatements are due in the Assessor's Office also on May

1. Tax bill payments and abatement applications are considered late if they arrive later than May 1. A payment or application which is postmarked on or before May 1 but arrives later than the due date is still considered late.

Property owners who have filed for an abatement are still required to pay by May 1 regardless of whether the abatement has been ruled on.

Property owners who receive an abatement will be given a refund on their property bill sometime in June.

If paying by mail, residents are urged not to wait until the last moment and risk the payment not being received on time.

Collector's office hours are 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Fire Department Begins Hydrant Testing

The Quincy Fire Department has begun its annual hydrant testing, announces Chief Paul O'Connell.

For the next four weeks, hydrants will be tested from 9 to 11:30 a.m. and 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. Testing will occur in all sections of the city at the same time.

During the testing, residents may experience some discoloration in their water. The water is not harmful to drink or use, but should be checked before using washing machines.

Persons experiencing water discoloration should flush their water systems by opening their cold water faucet for a few minutes, then wait approximately one hour.

If discoloration continues, repeat the process.

Officials Enraged At MWRA City May Sue Over Barge Violation

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Angered over the dismantling of a wooden barge used by the MWRA, Mayor James Sheets is considering court action against the authority for any environmental damages it may have caused.

In addition, the mayor said the city will pursue legislative action in an attempt to give the city the right to inspect MWRA projects in Quincy.

Local officials say the dismantling of the 50-by-150 foot storage barge at the Nut Island Sewage Treatment Plant over the weekend violated as many as five laws and conditions.

The dismantling was done by the Sciba Corporation based in Dorchester. The company was contracted by the MWRA to build a pier at Nut Island. The barge was used to help build the pier.

"The MWRA is responsible for what has occurred. It is no surprise to me that it has occurred," Sheets said Tuesday.

"I will absolutely not tolerate the people of Quincy and Quincy's environment being treated in this manner."

Sheets will inform MWRA Director Paul Levy of his "disappointment and anger" in a letter this week. The mayor will also ask Jay MacRitchie, the city's representative on the MWRA Board of Directors, to present a statement of protest to the board.

"We will take what action is necessary to protect our interests and we are going to pursue, in the Legislature, the right to inspect and it is also our intention to inform the federal judge responsible for overseeing the cleanup of the Quincy Bay of precisely what has happened," the mayor said.

Sheets said the barge timber may have been coated with creosote, a wood preservative. Creosote is a thick brown oily liquid obtained from coal tar.

The city is having pieces of the timber analyzed.

In addition, there was apparently no boom in the water at the time of the dismantling. The boom keeps debris from floating out into the channel. According to Sheets, some pieces have washed ashore on Quincy land.

Local officials first discovered the dismantling last Friday. Upon inspection, Quincy Conservation Officer Heather Sargent issued a stop order.

Although the city does not have the right to inspect, the Quincy Conservation Commission has the authority to impose conditions which must be met. If a stop order is issued, a permit must then be obtained if a company is to continue work.

However, the officials say the dismantling continued Saturday without a permit after the order was issued.

City Councilor Michael Cheney said he visited the site at 3:30 p.m. and said he spoke with a man who identified himself as the construction manager. Cheney asked the manager if he had any information regarding permits or order of conditions issued from the city.

According to Cheney, the man said he knew nothing about any order of conditions or any permits that were required. He then said someone had visited from the Conservation Commission but he was not worried.

Cheney has asked the Conservation Commission to consider bringing legal action against Sciba and/or the MWRA charging them with knowingly violating the Massachusetts State Wetland laws, failing to file for an order of conditions, storage of hazardous debris in a buffer zone, failure to comply with a stop order, and failure to properly guard against a marine hazard to other vessels.

Cheney also asked Sargent to consider levying the maximum fines allowed under the law, perhaps utilizing the city's local ordinance on illegal dumping in a wetland.

Ward 1 Councilor Peter Kolson also expressed his anger.

"If the MWRA and their subcontractors intend on having their full cooperation from the City of Quincy, it is important that this type of 'hood winking' attempts and out-and-out disregard for the laws, statutes and ordinances be adhered to by all parties that have anything to do with the further work that will be going on by the MWRA at the Nut Island Sewage facility," Kolson said.

Officials also say a number of trucks were used to haul the debris from Nut Island without supervision and approval by the city's Health Department.

In an attempt to prevent similar incidents from occurring in the future, Sheets wants the city to have the right to inspect MWRA construction work in Quincy.

By law, only the state can inspect MWRA construction work. The city's building inspection office, plumbing, gas and electrical departments are not authorized to make inspections on MWRA work.

As a result, officials are turning to the legislative process to gain more

Volunteer Cleanup Days Saturday, And May 5

The city has scheduled two volunteer cleanup days as part of the Cleaner, Greener Quincy campaign.

Wards 2, 4 and 5 will conduct a cleanup Saturday, April 28 while Wards 1, 3 and 6 will hold a cleanup Sunday, May 5.

Meeting time for the following locations is 9 a.m.

• Ward 2: Fore River Clubhouse.

• Ward 4: Southwest Community Center.

• Ward 5: Beechwood Community Center.

• Ward 1: Adams Shore Library.

• Ward 3: Wollaston

School.

• Ward 6: Atlantic Neighborhood Center.

Originally, three cleanup days, one each for two different wards, were scheduled. However, inclement weather forced the cleanups to be postponed. Therefore, two cleanup days have been scheduled.

Under the direction of Mayor James A. Sheets, city personnel will provide appropriate tools including rakes and brooms as well as bags and heavy equipment to assist community groups on April 28 and May 5.

Sheets hopes the Cleaner, Greener campaign becomes the most successful cleanup program in the city's history.

He said volunteer participation is vital for the program to be a success.

"We invite citizens, community organizations, churches and businesses to play a major role in making the City of Presidents a clean and more beautiful place to live," Sheets said.

The program is already underway with various city departments including Public Works, Park and Forestry, Traffic and Parking, School and libraries all working to clean up city roadways, parks and buildings.

Liquor-Food License Holder Changes Mind On Transfer Request

By JANE ARENA

The License Board Tuesday continued until May 8 a hearing on the request of Steven Faber of the 214 Washington St. Corp. for the transfer of the common victual-all alcoholic license as held by Fil's Inc., 214 Washington St.

The site is the location of the former Brittany's Food and Spirits which has been out of business.

Board Chairman John Gillis noted that the board had received notice that Brittany's owes some $71,000 to the federal government in back taxes.

The board continued the hearing Tuesday after William Savonen, current holder of the license, said he wanted the request withdrawn. He told the board an agreement between he and Faber had not been upheld.

He said Faber had agreed to pay rent on the business and to keep it operational. Last month Savonen wrote to the board requesting that the request be withdrawn because he hadn't heard from Faber for three months.

Atty. Thomas Sullivan, representing Faber, said the agreement did not say that rent would be paid and the business opened.

In November of last year the board granted the license transfer under a pending routine police check on Faber. During that initial hearing, Faber was asked if he had ever had any problems with his Braintree establishment, The Good Company Lounge. Faber said that he had not.

However, a subsequent police check revealed that there were problems at the Braintree establishment, one involving a fight where a patron of the lounge was injured.

Atty. Sullivan said Tuesday that Faber had never been found by the Braintree Board of Selectmen, the town's licensing board, to be in violation of any liquor laws.

Sullivan also told the Board that Faber had spent some $25,000 on the building since November of last year.

City Council President Ted DeCristofaro said that people in business should not spend substantial sums of money until all necessary permits are obtained. He said he feels no sympathy for such action and added "you should think before you do it."

Atty. Sullivan said that he mentioned the money Faber had spent only to prove that his client was trying to protect and invest in the building which had been empty before and had been broken into.

DeCristofaro said that, although he was originally in favor of the license transfer, after the Braintree incidents were revealed from the Quincy Police check he is "concerned about possible problems."

He suggested that if the license is granted it should be done so on a six month probationary period at least.

Sullivan told the board that while he understands the concern of the police department, "it is not founded on anything of substance." He told the board his client would be willing to meet monthly with a representative of the Quincy Police Department.

However, when Savonen told the board he wanted the request for the license transfer withdrawn, there were no longer two consenting parties in the matter. The board could not approve the transfer.

The board continued the hearing and told Atty. Sullivan to meet with Savonen and discuss the issue.

Kolson Donates $2,500 To PTO's In Ward 1

Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson has dipped into his pockets to help parent teacher organizations in his ward. Kolson recently donated

$2,500 or $500 apiece to the five schools located in Ward 1: Atherton Hough, Snug Harbor, Broad Meadows, Merrymount and Quincy High School.

The councillor took the money from his $10,000 a year councillor's salary.

"This effort has been made so that the parent teacher organizations will find it a little easier to do some of the things that they have historically done for the children over the years," Kolson said. He noted that many parents in the organizations donate many hours to the schools in the best interest of the children.

"In these troubled times when the state and local finances are somewhat tight I found that it would be in the best interest to help in this way," he added.

How To Help Your Child Pay Attention In School

How often has your child's teacher said, "He would do so well if only he was more motivated."

"Or 'She's so bright, but she just doesn't care about schoolwork."

Marilyn Robbins, Director of the Huntington Learning Center in Braintree, finds that parents frequently voice these complaints.

Parents need specific suggestions to help solve these complaints. Parents can make the difference; however, if a parent simply orders, "Pay attention," repeatedly, it simply won't help.

At the Huntington Learning Center, Robbins finds parents can help improve their child's ability to concentrate by using a simple method. And this works regardless of the age of the child.

To improve motivation, use positive self-talk and positive images. To understand "positive self-talk and positive images," Marilyn suggests that you try to recall when you were watching a sporting match, such as a tennis game. Have you ever noticed that the players often seem to be talking to themselves? The player might be saying, "Ok, you can do it! Keep your eye on the ball." This is self-talk, using words to help control attention, and children can be taught to use it.

In the same way, the "positive image" method is used when a runner, who is half-way through a race, pictures himself crossing the finish line, or a dieter conjures up the image of a slimmer self.

These images keep attention focused on a difficult task, and increase motivation to complete the task. Children can use both self-talk and positive images to direct their attention away from distractions and toward the task at hand, whether it is homework, classwork or a test.

Robbins urges parents to focus on the positive aspects of helping children study, instead of assigning guilt. Parents who have questions or who wish to discuss specific problems may contact The Huntington Learning Centers in Braintree at 849-0329 or in Hanover at 826-8922.

Johnson Is Staying

Don't bet on Dr. Clayton Johnson, the somewhat embattled president of Quincy Junior College to pull up stakes and leave town.

He may have some problems with some members of the School Committee and faculty and he still feels that the president of the college should run the college and not have to check in with the Superintendent of Schools like a high school principal.

But Johnson has no intention of tossing in the sponge.

"I'm not leaving," he says. "Not yet."

Well, how long will he be staying?

"I came here to do a job and I'm going to stay until I do it," he says. "And when I have the job done, I will let them know."

He's not being driven out either. He has tenure — although his salary is negotiable.

Johnson notes the college's enrollment has grown since he took over as president in 1982. There are now over 2,800 full and part-time students today compared to 1900 back then.

Johnson says he wants to stay on because he likes Quincy and there are those here who like what he has done and is doing as president.

Besides that he sees a challenge here for him.

"The challenge," he says, "is to redirect the college. Quincy Junior College is not really a junior college but a community college."

He sees QJC's future role as a place of learning for those now holding jobs and others like mothers with grown children who are planning to return to the work force.

He doesn't mean QJC as a glorified vocational technical high school but as one geared to the needs of those who want to be trained for the technological age.

"We are already in the technological age," he says. "We (the U.S.) can move and progress with it or sit back and become the servants of the Japanese. We let them get ahead of us in the production of television, cars and electronics in general."

"We have to catch up and keep pace or they are going to pass us by."

QJC's role apparently is already changing in that direction.

Of today's estimated 2800-plus students only about 700 are in the arts and sciences with the other 2100 in career oriented programs.

There is growing speculation that Johnson will leave, perhaps for New Jersey where he has been offered the presidency of Hudson Community College in Jersey City at $92,000.

Or, maybe a school like Oxnard College in Ventura County, California where he was offered the presidency at $87,000 a year.

He prefers Quincy where he makes a somewhat less $70,000.

Johnson has had problems with some of the faculty members.

"There are disgruntled faculty members," he says. "But some of them have been disgruntled for 25 years regardless of who the president was."

Johnson was selected for the job from over 100 applicants including some from within the Quincy school system.

That the president of Quincy Junior College reports directly to the superintendent of schools is nothing new.

In fact, one of the finalists for the job when Johnson was selected was present Mayor James Sheets who took himself out of the ball game expressing reservations about sharing authority with then School Supt. Lawrence Creedon.

Creedon at that time assured Johnson:

"He (Johnson) will run the college in short-range and long-range planning. He'll be running the shop. I have enough things to do over here."

Johnson, it would seem, would like present School Supt. Robert Ricci to strongly feel that same way. One of Johnson's traits may be one of his problems: he's outspoken and candid.

And that can ruffle a few feathers. But he apparently isn't about to claim he is always right and his critics always wrong.

"I face my own mistakes," he says. "Self inspection is good."

authority.

Last month, the City Council approved a home-rule petition allowing the city to inspect MWRA construction. It has been endorsed by the city's legislative delegation and needs a simple majority vote in the House and Senate before it can become law.

The city also asked the state last month for the right to inspect MWRA gas and plumbing work. However, the city was turned down.

At the May 7th City Council meeting, the mayor will introduce a home-rule petition, which if approved, would allow the city to inspect all gas and plumbing work done by or for the MWRA. According to the mayor, the state has one inspector for 37 cities and towns.

Sheets, noting the dismantling was clearly visible, said he is concerned about MWRA projects not in the public's eye. He noted the authority is constructing piers in Squantum and the former General Dynamics shipyard.

He also pointed out gas lines will be brought into the former shipyard as part of the treatment facility. Gas will be used to dry the sludge.

As such, the mayor believes Quincy should have the right to inspect the MWRA's work done in the city.

Kolson, O'Connell Co. Donate 10 Trees

A local official and company used some of their own "green" to make the city a little greener on Earth Day Sunday.

Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson donated six trees and the O'Connell Landscaping Company donated four trees which were planted at several sites in Germantown in celebration of Earth Day.

The trees, red golden maples, ranged 12 to 15 feet in height.

Participating in the tree planting were the Germantown Neighborhood Center, Harborview Residents Committee, local Cub Scouts and Girl Scouts along with Mayor James A. Sheets, Rep. Steve Tobin, Sen. Paul Harold and Kolson.

Between 60 and 70 children participated in the ceremony with the adults.

Kolson said the tree planting was a very important experience for the children. He said he hopes they realize the future of the Earth depends on them.

The planting, he pointed out, symbolizes the dependency between the Earth and its inhabitants. He said the trees will grow only if they are cared for. Conversely, the future of mankind depends, in part, on the benefits trees

Retiring After 33 Years

George Zeiba Parks His Career As Library Bookmobile Driver

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

George Zeiba, the affable driver of the Thomas Crane Public Library Bookmobile, will make his final rounds Friday.

Zeiba, who has been the city's one and only bookmobile driver since the service began in 1957, will retire at the end of the week. Friends and colleagues view Zeiba's departure as the end of an era.

"(George) certainly is irreplaceable in the sense of finding someone who can do it with the same style," said Library Director Warren Watson.

"He has become an institution. Over the years, he's been in virtually every neighborhood. George has an attitude about public service that he will do anything to get something to someone."

"It's his personal style of service that has made the bookmobile as successful as it's been. I'll miss him. He's a great person," Watson added. Jeanne Moore, Zeiba's assistant the past 18 months agreed.

"People all week have been saying, 'George, you can't retire.' They almost panic when they think of the bookmobile without him. It really is the end of an era," she said.

Peggy Hanlon, a resident of Granite Place and frequent bookmobile user, added, "(George) is wonderful. He goes into the building and helps people with canes and in wheelchairs check out books. 'He's one of the finest men I've ever known.'"

During his 33-year career, Zeiba has made countless friends while circulating countless books and magazines. "It's been fun. It really has. I've met a lot of nice people in 33 years."

One of those people is Anne McLaughlin. She was a youngster when she first used the bookmobile. Now she is the library's assistant director.

Zeiba's library career actually began in 1952 when he went to work for the library full-time. He stayed there for one year and then joined the Army Infantry First Cavalry Division.

One day, while overseas, he received a letter from Gertrude Callahan who was library director at the time. In her letter, she explained that several library rental quarter branches as well as some school branches were closing.

Callahan told Zeiba that the library would soon begin a bookmobile operation and asked him to run it. He accepted and the rest is history.

"It's been a lot of fun. You forget about those miserable days you've had," such as the times when the bookmobile engine or power plant wouldn't cooperate.

"It's the good memories that really last."

Those good memories are simple moments. Like the thousands of times he has helped people find just the right book. Or the many times he has assisted students with their homework and other school projects.

Watson calls the bookmobile a "rolling billboard" for the library. When the seven rental and school branches closed, the bookmobile not only filled the gap, but expanded the library's circulation. With Zeiba behind the wheel, the vehicle travelled into neighborhoods and provided practically door-to-door service.

Many residents have found the bookmobile more convenient than visiting one of the library's branches. Readers don't have to worry about finding a parking space or braving nasty weather.

In recent years, the bookmobile has accounted for 20 percent of the library's circulation while embarking on 23 trips a week. During FY 1989, the library circulated 410,347 books, with nearly 40,000 of those coming from the bookmobile.

Zeiba has driven three bookmobiles during his career. The first, measuring 39-feet long with a capacity of 3,500 books, was on the road from 1957 to 1973.

The second, measuring 31-feet with a capacity of 1,200 books, was in operation from 1978 to 1988. The most recent, measuring 33-feet with a capacity of 1,500 books, hit the street in December, 1988.

Because the bookmobile doesn't travel outside the city, the mileage is low. The present bookmobile has only 4,500 miles.

However, Zeiba says the real wear and tear comes from the power plant which generates power for heat, lights and air conditioning in the summer.

The power plant on the original bookmobile logged a million and a half road miles, he noted.

Although he'll miss the many friends he has made, Zeiba says he is looking forward to retirement.

He plans on staying active by expanding his bus photography collection. Since he was a youngster, Zeiba has taken approximately 3,000 and 4,000 photographs of coaches and transit buses.

His fascination with buses began when he was a young boy. His late father, George, worked for the Eastern Mass Street Railway Quincy Division. During the 1930s, his dad took him to the railway's car barn which is located where the present MBTA garage is.

Over the years, Zeiba and his wife, Claire, have visited terminals throughout the six New England states. But they try not to pleasure travel by bus.

"It's confining, from the hobby point of view," Zeiba says.

He's also a big reader, averaging a book every 10 days. He especially likes tales of espionage and politics; his favorite authors are Robert Ludlum, Harold Coyle and Tom Clancy.

Once Zeiba completes his final trip Friday, there will be an interruption in bookmobile service.

According to Watson, the "library will definitely continue the bookmobile service." However, because no present employee has a Class 2 driver's license, the bookmobile will be sidelined for a while.

Two employees have applied for the driver's position and one is willing to undergo the training to obtain the license.

But, of course, it will take more than a license to replace George Zeiba.

An advisory commission of Naval officers recommended that the USS Lexington, the keel of which was laid as a battle cruiser on Jan. 8, 1921, at the Fore River Shipyard, be completed as an aircraft carrier.

When work on the ship stopped, petitions were circulated through Quincy asking Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge (R-Mass) and Cong. Louis Frothingham (R-Milton) to direct their efforts toward conversion.

Praline Squash Casserole Compliments Of Gerry

On the night before Easter, since all the preparations for the next day's dinner were complete and the dinner table set (compliments of our daughter Nancy), my brother John and his wife Anita (who also prepared the day before) decided to reward ourselves and go out to dinner.

While we were on our way to the restaurant we were discussing what each of us were serving for Easter dinner. Anita told me about a recipe given to her by her friend Gerry Storella for a praline squash casserole. It sounded so delicious I just had to pass it on to all of you. And the nice part of it is, it can be made a couple of days ahead of time.

GERRY'S

PRALINE SQUASH CASSEROLE

1 Large fresh butternut squash
4 Tbsps butter (or margarine)

1 tsp salt

Dash of pepper

2 eggs slight beaten

TOPPING

½ Cup brown sugar

½ tsp cinnamon

3 Tbsps butter (or margarine)

½ Cup chopped walnuts

Cook the squash. Strain and mash. Add butter, salt and pepper and mix. Add the eggs and mix well. Pour into buttered one quart casserole or small pyrex square dish. Sprinkle combined topping ingredients over the top of the squash. Bake in a 350 degree oven for 30 minutes. This recipe serves four.

Sheila McIntyre Appeals For Organ, Tissue Donations

This is National Organ and Tissue Donor Awareness Week.

Mrs. Sheila R. McIntyre of Quincy is the New England Representative to the Patient Affairs and Donations committees of the United Network for Organ Sharing, based in Virginia.

"I wish to encourage everyone to consider the concept of organ and tissue donation," McIntyre said.

"In doing so one is giving the 'gift of life' to others.

"Because my son and husband have needs I have had many occasions to present the view of a donor family to medical and lay groups. One point I stress is the consolation that comes to a grieving family by giving this gift of life. Families have a right to be offered such an opportunity for consolation.

"Because of the great disparity between patients awaiting organs and the actual number of donors we encourage the public to talk with family members regarding donation and to sign donor cards."

The Lions Club of Massachusetts has accepted the theme of Organ Donation and Transplantation as their main project this year.

They will work together with the Registry of Motor Vehicles to encourage people to sign donor cards. The campaign will kick-off April 25 at the Boston Registry.

For more information call the New England Organ Bank, 446-NEOB or Mrs. McIntyre at 471-6464.

The CBS News primetime series 48 HOURS will feature a report on two lives joined together in one dramatic gamble. The show "48 Hours To Save Carrie" will be broadcast Thurs. April 26 at 8 p.m. in conjunction with National Organ and Tissue Donor Awareness Week.

Diet Center Under New Ownership

The Diet Center of Quincy is under new ownership.

Robert Colia and Paula Lombardo-Colia, long-time South Shore residents, will operate both the Quincy and Norwell locations as Diet Centers of the South Shore, Inc.

They will continue to offer programs for safe, natural weight loss, behavior modification, and long-term maintenance. In line with their commitment to customer service, the office hours have been extended to six days a week, from 6:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., and prices of programs and products have been reduced.

The Colias bring first-hand experience to the Diet Center, both having lost weight and maintained that loss successfully. In fact, Paula Lombardo-Colia lost 100 pounds in the program, while Bob Colia lost 40 pounds.

They credit the daily weighing with its peer counseling as an important part of their story. Each of their counselors have lost weight on the Diet Center Program.

In addition to their dieting experience, each member of the staff brings a wide variety of training and experience.

Mary Mueller, manager of the Norwell Center, graduated from Redford University with a degree in Foods and Nutrition and has taken graduate courses at Framingham State.

Manager of the Quincy Center, Nancy Stolla, is a Liberal Arts major from Blackburn College and has eight years of experience with Diet Center. Other staff members have advanced training in aerobics and counseling.

As long as man has been able to write, he has mentioned lettuce as a food.

How To Be Healthy With Acupuncture

By DANIEL S. KARP
Lic. Acupuncturist

Throughout the past 4,000 years, more people were helped by acupuncture than by all other medical modalities combined.

It is unlikely that acupuncture would have survived for thousands of years if people did not see great value in this treatment method. According to the World Health Organization, acupuncture is one of the most effective and safest methods known for diagnosis, therapy and pain relief, and is regarded as key importance for the prevention of illness.

Research in the west has established that acupuncture induces the brain to produce morphine-like chemicals known as endorphins, which act as natural tranquilizers and pain relievers. Research has also shown that acupuncture is a bio-electrical phenomenon, and that acupuncture points are sites of lower electrical skin resistance. Treatment is completely harmless and one cannot become "addicted" to acupuncture therapy.

It is said that acupuncture is very effective for chronic pain. True, but it is equally effective in the regulation and normalization of ongoing body processes. That acupuncture can regulate internal body organs, correct imbalances and body imbalances has been known since ancient times.

The World Health Organization has compiled a list of common diseases that respond well to acupuncture treatment. This list includes diseases ranging from acute bronchitis, headache and migraine to frozen shoulder, tennis elbow, back pain, osteoarthritis and many more.

You don't have to believe in acupuncture. Some patients come to our clinic after everything else has failed, and may be very skeptical. These unbelievers will show the same good results, indicating that the acupuncture effect is not hypnotism or power of suggestion.

Pre-sterilized, disposable needles are used exclusively. For more information, please call Daniel S. Karp, Licensed Acupuncturist, Acupuncture Associates of the South Shore, (617) 471-5577.

AVOID BACK PROBLEMS WHILE CATCHING SPRING FEVER

It appears that the worst of the long cold winter is behind us as the sleds, shovels, and ice skates have been replaced by bicycles, rakes and baseball bats. The longer, warmer days not only signal a time of renewal for the plants and animals of our environment, but springtime also beckons each of us to get off the couch, put down the TV clicker, and get outside and do something. Whether it be exercise, recreation or working around the house, there are many examples of springtime activities which can be harmful to your spine if you are not careful. Specific activities which can be troublesome include swinging a golf club or baseball bat, turning over the garden, raking and clearing up the yard, and lifting fallen tree limbs, bags of manure, limestone or peat moss.

It would be a good idea for each of us, especially those folks who have been relatively inactive during the winter months, to take a few moments to stretch and loosen up our backs before engaging in stressful physical activity. After warming up, use common sense and start your activity slowly; maintain good posture with your back straight and knees bent whenever possible; and avoid repetitive bending, twisting and lifting. Remember that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure, as you enjoy the spring of 1990.

If you have any questions or would like to make an appointment, please call Dr. Mark Jaehnig, a lifelong Quincy resident, at Quincy Chiropractic Office, 440 Hancock Street, North Quincy at 773-4400.

Tips For Healthier Legs

More than half of the women in the United States suffer from tired, aching, swollen legs (TASL) and the discomforts associated with varicose veins, according to a survey by ADI Research, Inc. Fortunately, there are some helpful do's and don'ts you can follow to make sure that you start every day off on the right foot.

Don't cross legs at the knee. This common posture immediately reduces blood circulation.

Do take a load off your feet. Standing in one place for a long time puts pressure on the veins in the legs and slows circulation.

Don't shock. Standing straight and tall, with abdominal muscles contracted, helps alleviate aches and fatigue.

Do exercise your legs regularly, in a properly performed manner. Walking or other aerobic exercises, leg lifts and stretches can help tone muscles and improve circulatory health.

Don't wear high heels. They put undue strain on the foot and leg muscles.

Do wear fashionably sheer, doctor recommended, graduated support hosiery, such as Beyond Support from The Kendall-Futuro Co. Such hosiery delivers a therapeutic benefit because it exerts the greatest amount of support at the ankle, with reduced amounts of support moving up the leg. This aids in moving the blood up the leg back to the heart, thereby improving circulation.

The right kind of hosiery can help you feel like putting your best foot forward.

Who should wear this type of hosiery? Any woman who suffers from TASL or varicose veins, women who spend a long time either sitting or standing, those aged 55 and over and especially expectant mothers. In a recent survey, 150 women of all ages were given Beyond Support to wear for ten consecutive days. After wearing them, 90 percent of those surveyed said they felt relief from their tired, aching legs; 84 percent said they felt relief from the discomforts associated with varicose veins.

Judith Balzano To Challenge Cerasoli For State Representative

Judith H. (Judy) Balzano of 69 Edinboro Rd., Quincy Point, announces her candidacy for state representative in the Third Norfolk district of Quincy and Weymouth.

Mrs. Balzano, employed by Massachusetts Electric Co. in Weymouth, described herself as "the widow of a disabled veteran, a mother and grandmother who is fed up with the mess Massachusetts is in and wants to do something about it."

The seat is now held by Democrat incumbent Robert Cerasoli.

Mrs. Balzano told a group of supporters at a kick-off rally at her home:

"We are being taxed to death and we are facing a leadership crisis. The governor can't understand that we are telling him 'No More Taxes,' and our legislators are either vacationing or moonlighting on second or third jobs while our state goes down the drain. Our fiscal management is ranked 48th in the nation and our bond rating is the 50th of 50 states.

"Businesses are closing, the real estate market has dried up, local communities face financial ruin, human service programs have been drastically cut back, but our elected officials refuse to do anything about the real problems, such as the multitude of hacks, relatives and cronies staffing the powerful authorities and commissions they've created.

"Our state is hundreds of millions of dollars in debt and much of it stems from the high paid, no-show, soft jobs they give their friends.

"Dukakis is to blame for some of our problems, but not all. Remember that all spending bills originate in the House and must eventually be passed by the House. The blame must be placed at the doorsteps of our representatives, 80% of whom are Democrats. They have lost touch with the people they claim to represent. While

JUDITH BALZANO

Dukakis ran for president in 1988 our legislators took a six month vacation, while many of us warned them of future problems.

"Now they have vacationed all of this year rather than staying in session to clean up the mess they made. It's time for voters across Massachusetts to face the fact that the 'nice kid next door' they sent to the House years ago is no longer their friend. He's not working to solve the problem. He is the problem. That's why we need to clean House!

"It's time to put the 'outs' in and toss the 'ins' out. Believe me, they won't starve. Most of them aren't satisfied with what we pay them, so they're already working second and third jobs. This year we have a chance to retire these 'good old boys' to the private sector, these machine politicians who've spent years building up their own wealth and power at our expense. It's time for us, the average working people, to reclaim our government.

"My campaign platform is basic and simple. I pledge not to vote for any new taxes. I pledge to fight waste and corruption wherever I find them. I will represent you full time, with no second jobs. I won't use my office as an employment agency for ward-heeling cronies and hacks. I pledge to be honest and I promise to care. I don't claim to have all the answers, but I will try my best to get the answers. I believe that my stand for fiscal sanity, family values and good, clean, responsible government is what our state has needed for many years, and I will do my best to deliver it. Massachusetts needs a good housecleaning, so Let's Clean House!"

Mrs. Balzano is secretary of the Republican City Committee, former Ward 2 chairman, a member of Quincy Lodge of Stella del Nord, the Quincy Citizens Association, Quincy Animal League, Citizens for Limited Taxation, and Concerned Women for America. She attended the University of Utah and Palomar College, California. She is endorsed by the Utility Workers of America AFL-CIO Local 454, in which she is a shop steward.

She has named John H. McDuff, Ward 2 Republican chairman as her campaign manager.

Spring HOME IMPROVEMENT

How to build a better deck

If you've spent the last few months planning a spring project to enhance your existing deck or build a new one, visit your home center and you'll find some new products to make the job easier.

One new product for sprucing up a new or old deck is outdoor millwork. These products are pressure-treated wood "finishing pieces," designed to add a touch of class to decks, gazebos, and other outdoor projects.

Among the outdoor millwork projects available are turned spindles with handrails notched to hold the spindles. Also available are lattice panels, stair stringers, turned posts and fancy fence boards. One leading brand of outdoor millwork is Weyerhaeuser Life Wood.

Low-voltage lighting is a simple, inexpensive and dramatic way to improve the "livability" of your outdoor space. And beyond the aesthetic benefits, outdoor lights extend the time you can be outdoors, while adding security and "curb appeal" to a home.

New lighting products from Toro this spring include the Woodlights line of redwood outdoor lighting fixtures in three contemporary designs: the Path Light, Post Light and Deck Light.

Beyond new products that enhance the appearance of your outdoor building projects, other new offerings make it easier for you to build quality into them.

To assure your deck and other outdoor wood projects will last a long time DAP has introduced Premium Woodlife, the first one-coat clear wood preservative and water repellent. Premium Woodlife provides deep penetrating protection against termites, ultraviolet light, mildew stains, decay, rot and fungal stain, and water damage.

Finally, when you're undertaking a big outdoor building project, you can avoid frustration and save time by using good quality tools.

For working with wood, Irwin has introduced the Speedbor 2000 line of flat bits. Technology is the key to the Speedbor 2000's performance. Rather than scraping the wood from the hole like conventional flat bits, the Speedbor 2000's extended spurs and angled cutting edges actually cut the wood from the hole, completing the job in half the time. A special groove design on the bit's shoulder extends bit life to more than three times that of any other flat bit.

$25 Million Mortgage Money Available For First Time Buyers

The Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency (MHFA), in cooperation with the Executive Office of Communities and Development, has made available an additional $25 million in 8.45 percent mortgage funds to help qualified Bay State residents buy their first homes.

The low rate is fixed for 30 years.

The announcement was made by Rep. Steve Tobin (D-Quincy).

The funds are available through the agency's traditional general lending program. Mortgages are available on a first-come, first-served basis to borrowers who meet the agency's general eligibility guidelines including income, credit and home acquisition cost requirements.

Borrowers may apply for the funds through participating lenders. To apply, borrowers must have an executed purchase and sale or an accepted offer to purchase agreement on an eligible property.

Funds are made possible by the federally-authorized Mortgage Revenue Bond program. Since 1979, through the use of MRBs, MHFA has funded mortgages for more than 20,000 low-and-moderate-income households across the state.

"This 8.45 percent mortgage money will help to make homeownership more affordable for about 250 first-time homebuyers statewide," Tobin said.

MHFA expects to have additional funds available sometime in the late spring or early summer.

For more information and a list of participating lenders, call (617) 451-2766.

Household Hazardous Waste Committee On WJDA Friday

Members of the Quincy Household Hazardous Waste Committee will be on WJDA's Party Line program Friday, April 27 at 10:15 a.m.

Arrangements have also been made for a live television show to be put on by Quincy Community Television Thursday, May 10 at 6:30 p.m. in the second floor conference room of City Hall.

According to Committee Chairman and Civil Defense

Director Tony Siciliano, both shows have been set up to increase public awareness on household hazardous waste disposal.

An expert on household hazardous waste will be on Party Line to answer any questions from the public.

Commenting on the recent 20th anniversary of Earth Day, Siciliano said preserving the planet begins with the family.

"If we could have looked into a crystal ball 20 years ago, we could have altered our direction. The environmentalists did their best to steer us in the right direction."

"Here it is 1990 and we have failed the important factor. The family," Siciliano said.

"We are the ones who control the destiny of the Earth we live on. Government, big business and private industry cannot serve without the family. It all starts in the home with the every day products that are used and continues on in business and industry."

"If we continue on at the rate we are going without caring about the environment we live in, there may be no 2010," he added.

Committee members are:

Thomas Koch, administrative assistant to Mayor James A. Sheets; Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson; Lt. John Menz, Quincy Fire Department; Thomas Hatzopoulos, sewer/water and drain department; Linda Stice, Leo Kelly; and Mary Quinn and Joan Pierce, both members of the League of Women Voters.

When A House Becomes A Home

Life is grand on the Ponderosa!

When does a 7228 square foot lot become affectionately dubbed the Ponderosa?

When you've rented the same apartment in Dorchester for 18 years and each year there were more cars on the street and each year you got further away from your front door until one day you found yourself parking your car six blocks away and it would have been easier to take the bus! Of course.

Cynthia and George Drosos were referred to us as potential rental customers. We soon discovered we had a winning combination ... a good income combined with an outstanding credit history and a seller waiting to take a first mortgage.

Crickets? Mowing the lawn? A driveway? Some take the simple pleasures for granted. Not so for Cynthia and George. In their wildest imaginings they had not thought about being able to own a home and now they own the Ponderosa!

The Quincy boys under 10 youth soccer team improved its record to 3-0 with a 3-1 victory over Easton in the South Shore League. It was the second win over Easton. Quincy used a penalty kick by Chris Bregoli, his third of the year, to give Quincy a 1-0 lead midway in the first half. Earlier Sean Slattery just missed converting a centering pass for a goal.

Five minutes later Kevin Cellucci fed Chad Fitzpatrick with a perfect pass with Fitzpatrick scoring his third goal of the year.

DeBoer Hurls 1-Hitter For North 3-1 Win

By TOM SULLIVAN

The North Quincy baseball team, hoping to repeat for the Suburban League championship, got off on the right foot Monday when it defeated Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 3-1, in the league opener as Erik DeBoer continued his spectacular pitching.

Leo Donovan's Raiders (5-4 overall) will host Newton North Friday at 3:30 at Adams Field, will play at Waltham Monday and will meet Quincy next Wednesday at 3:30 at Adams.

DeBoer, who has been brilliant in all four of his games, pitched a one-hitter at Cambridge to even his record at a deceiving 2-2. He struck out 11 and walked only one. The Cambridge run was unearned.

The big righthander was allowed 15 hits, struck out 53 and walked six in his four appearances. He has an ERA of 0.70.

George Rozinitis, who has been hitting well all season, hit a towering home run and Dave Gamsby had an RBI single to give DeBoer all the runs he needed.

North's first six games were all decided by one run as it went 3-3. It broke out of its one-run pattern with a vengeance last week as it pounded Everett, 17-5.

Brian O'Malley recorded his first varsity win as he went five innings and Steve Waas pitched the final two.

Jeff Calvert, Rozinitis and Jim Bryan accounted for 11 RBI for the Raiders and Tony Anderlonis scored four runs.

Last Friday North suffered its worst loss of the year as Malden pounded North pitching for a 13-0 breeze

The Raiders were held to three hits, a double by Anderlonis and singles by Rozinitis and DeBoer.

In addition to his superb pitching, DeBoer has hit well and won two straight games with triples. He tripled home the two winning runs in a 5-4 win over Weymouth North and tripled home the winning run in the 10th inning in a 4-3 decision over Somerville.

"Erik has been brilliant and I don't feel there is a better pitcher anywhere around," Donovan said. "He should have been undefeated last year, losing two games on errors, and he looks ready for another spectacular season. We are off to a better start than a year ago and I think we should do all right in the league."

Things Looking Better For Quincy

Things are taking a turn for the better for the Quincy High baseball team.

Two years ago the Presidents made the Eastern Mass. Tournament and advanced to the third round, the farthest a Quincy team had ever gone, but last year their fortunes hit a new low as they won only one game.

As of last Friday Quincy had a 4-3 record and was assured of at least a .500 record going into its first Suburban League game yesterday (Wednesday) with Brookline.

The Presidents play at Brockton today (Thursday), will host Cambridge Rindge and Latin Monday at 3:30 at Adams Field and will meet North Quincy next Wednesday at 3:30 at Adams.

The twice-postponed game at Revere was rescheduled for the last Tuesday.

Last Friday Quincy defeated Everett, 4-2, in eight innings, for its second win in a row as Rich Burns went all the way, allowing only four hits and striking out nine.

Sophomore Pat Gallagher singled, stole second and scored the winning run on Tom Balzano's single. Red Regan doubled Balzano in with the insurance run.

In their previous game the Presidents defeated Arlington, 7-2, as junior Chad McMahon pitched a three-hitter for his third straight victory.

Steve Loud and Regan each had two hits and an RBI and Robbie Kane, a freshman, added a single as Quincy scored four runs in the second inning and three in the fourth.

"I'm delighted at the way things are going," said coach Bob Sylvia. "We have a lot of youngsters who are playing well and the boys are hustling all the time. It is nice to know we will at least be at .500 opening our league season.

"Chad McMahon has been a pleasant surprise pitcher. He is a sneaky pitcher and keeps the batters off stride. And Rich Burns pitched a beauty at Everett. Tom Balzano, our catcher and most experienced player, is hitting well and handling the pitchers well. If our pitching holds up and our big batters come through, we should have a respectable league season."

-- TOM SULLIVAN

Little League

Elks Bow To State Street In Pre-Season Game

The Quincy Elks' Little League team played its first pre-season game against State Street Bank and lost, 7-6, after leading, 6-2.

John Manning started the State Street rally which pulled the decision out.

Coach Jerry Tirrell of the Elks has held several workouts and will introduce a new look this year with a new mouth shield attached to the batting helmets.

Tirrell is being assisted by Jack Riley.

The Elks will open the season Saturday against Burgin Platter at 3 p.m. at Faxon Field.

SYC To Sponsor Lipton Cup Regatta

Squantum Yacht Club has accepted the primary sponsorship of The Lipton Tea Co. for the Lipton Cup Regatta July 14-15.

The event will race over the waters of Quincy and Massachusetts Bay.

Over 300 sailboats are expected to compete for the prestigious trophy on four different race courses. The event in its fourth year is setting a high standard in quality racing. This is further evidenced by the high number of classes holding championships at the regatta again this year.

Classes to compete are PHRF, Optimist, Tornado, 110, 210, Laser, Mistral Equipe, Mistral Superlight, I-420, Hustler, Thunderbird, Mercury and N-10.

The trophy was originally given to the Mass. Bay Yacht Clubs Association in 1930 by tea magnate Thomas J. Lipton and was first awarded to Herbert Allbright in the Indian Class. The trophy standing nearly three feet tall in all its Victorian splendor is now being competed for after more than fifty-five years of inactivity.

33 Inducted Into NQHS Basketball Hall Of Fame

By STEVE KAVANAGH

The men inducted into the North Quincy High School Basketball Hall of Fame last Saturday came from all walks of life.

There was a lawyer, dentist, minister, businessmen, and teachers. Some traveled from New York and New Jersey and another man trekked almost 6,000 miles from Hawaii.

Despite the diversity of the 33 men honored, it was agreed that they all shared a common bond whether they played in the 1930s, 40s, 50s, 60s, 70s or today.

Each player was taught sportsmanship, values and the importance of hard work and pride. During acceptance speeches Saturday night it was reiterated that lessons learned on the court and in the locker room have stayed with the players throughout their lives.

Four coaches were inducted including "the man who started it all" LeRoy "Curley" Rogers. Also honored were Ken Rickson, Robert "Knobby" Nolan, and Ed Miller.

Current athletic director Mary Finnegan made the presentation to Rogers.

"He was a tremendous example not only to his players but to the community and to those of us who entered the teaching and coaching fields," Finnegan said.

"Curley Rogers has had a love affair with kids since 1927. He was something beyond what anyone could expect and was a builder of leaders throughout the years."

Ken Rickson, who began coaching at North in 1958, was introduced by former player Bo Ruggerio, currently the assistant athletic director at Bridgewater State College.

"As an administrator, coach and teacher I can't think of a better person to induct into the hall of fame," Ruggerio said.

"When it came to caring and being fair to youngsters, Mr. Rickson had no equal," Ruggerio said.

"Knobby" Nolan was also introduced by one of his players, Ed Miller.

"In his 11 years at North Quincy, Knobby put North on the map. His style and sportsmanship won the respect of everyone," Miller

Nolan coached the only undefeated team (1972) in NQ history and led the Red Raiders to seven tournament appearances in 11 seasons. His career record at North was an impressive 143-64.

"We are all proud of him for the integrity, honesty and desire he instilled in all his players," Miller said.

"It was easy with the teams I had," Nolan said. "I just had to roll the ball out onto the floor. I had great kids and I thank them all."

Present junior varsity coach Ged Phelan, captain of the 1975 squad, introduced Miller, the only man inducted as both a coach and player.

"Eddie Miller has carried the tradition of all these great men (coaches)," Phelan said.

Phelan listed some of Miller's top coaching accomplishments including the 1977 team which won its last seven in a row including a win over unbeaten Rindge Tech to qualify for the tournament. He also recalled North's last second win over Quincy in the 1980 tournament and the Red Raiders outstanding 1981 team which advanced to the South Sectional semifinals.

"Playing at North... those were the most fun times. To play and coach at North Quincy, for me it was a dream come true," Miller said.

Players inducted to the Hall of Fame included:

Richard Cooke (34), George "Te" Mitchell (34), Harold "Miff" Leith (37), Fred Cummings (37), Walter Meade (44), Joey Creedon (45), Scotty Whitelaw (45) and Cid Cidrone (48).

Gus Cuneo (51), Ed Densmore (54), Bob Walsh (55), Doug Grutchfield (57), Pete Fredericksen (58), Paul LaBrecque (60) and Jim Painten (60).

Also, present Red Raider coach Ted Stevenson (64), Michael Greenlaw (65), Pete Varney (66), Dave Zink (66), Ed Miller (67), Jim Ducey (68), Ron Bradley (68) and Mark Jellison (69).

Rev. David Nelson (72), Jamie Doherty (73), Ken Marsters (73), Steve Miller (74), John White (77) and William "Wink" Phelan (78).

Special awards were presented to William Roberts,

Mario Casali and Ron Kaufman.

Roberts, a longtime NQ basketball booster was introduced by Ed Miller.

"Bill Roberts never forgot anyone, the junior varsity, the parents, the cheerleaders, etc. He is a special guy," Miller said.

Miller also introduced his former coach Mario Casali, coach and phys. ed. teacher at Central Junior High for many years.

"What is unique about Mario Casali is that he cared about everyone. All the kids were the same to him, the athletes, the good kids and the bad ones," Miller said.

Mayor James Sheets introduced his friend and former NQ basketball manager Ron Kaufman (1962) who now serves as a personal aide to President George Bush.

Sheets praised Kaufman for his "Years of dedication to North Quincy basketball."

"I was the water boy for North Quincy and now I carry the water for the president," Kaufman joked.

Kaufman, who now often meets with heads of state and other dignitaries, said, "With all due respect to the president, I feel more comfortable with the people here in Quincy than the big shots in Washington."

Hall of Fame Committee member Frank Santoro presented Kaufman with a North Quincy cap, t-shirt and sweatshirt to give to President Bush.

Other members of the committee included, Rogers, Rickson, Nolan, Ed Miller, Stevenson, Gus DeBoer and Ged Phelan.

Press Awards were presented to Henry Bosworth and Tom Sullivan of The Quincy Sun, Charles Ross of WJDA and Dick Trust, Seth Livingstone, Roger Barry and Chic Valicenti of The Patriot Ledger.

Highlights of the evening included the acceptance by Reginald Leith on behalf of his brother "Miff" Leith who died Jan. 30.

"Mr. Rogers came down to the Brockton VA hospital to tell my brother personally that he had been inducted, and believe me, that meant a great deal to Miff," Leith said.

Another highlight was the

Other bright spots were Mike Greenlaw who came with his family all the way from Hawaii, and David Nelson of the undefeated 1972 team who is now a minister in the Lutheran Church working in Brooklyn, N.Y.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

"I'll do it sometime" - generally means a good intention. It often means a hoped for anticipation some day to have "free time". Days, months and even years slip by. That "sometime" never comes.

Why? Is not the answer perhaps due to the fact that one day is very much like another day? And especially for those who live their lives as though life goes on forever? Some people sometimes find time to "kill time". Rarely, if ever, do they realize when they kill time, they kill a part of their life time.

Time can fly quickly. It can also hang heavily. Can anyone dispute time flies quickly for those who get things done? When one seems unable to get things done, should not a self-examination be in order? It is a sad realization when we know we have not done what we should have done - WHEN we should have done it. As long as we are here on earth, time means life itself. God gave us life to use. Let us not abuse it by wasting it.

MacDonald, Donnelly and Smith of the Quincy Police as well as Trooper McHugh of the Massachusetts State Police and Det. Connell of Braintree Police are being honored for their roles in investigating a case that has been called "every child and parent's nightmare."

It was the kidnapping and rape of a young Quincy girl and the attempted abduction of an eight-year old Braintree girl.

The Braintree girl was able to flee from the man who tried to abduct her. But, on April 3, 1988, Easter Sunday, the same man abducted a nine-year old girl in Quincy. He drove to Medford, where he raped her. The girl was so bruized that she had to undergo surgery for serious internal injuries.

The officers were assigned to the case. They discovered that the suspect in the two-incidents had fled to the West Coast. They tracked the suspect's movements by monitoring long-distance telephone calls the suspect made to Massachusetts.

They passed information to the authorities in California. The suspect was arrested in Beverly Hills while placing a call to Quincy.

The man pleaded guilty to the charges and was sentenced to 25 to 40 years in prison.

The prosecutor in the case said the investigation conducted by the officers was "one of the finest examples of police work I have seen in my years as an assistant district attorney."

Officer Grimes is being honored for rescuing two unconscious people from a burning automobile.

Officer Sheehan will be recognized for confronting an armed man who had made threats against his wife and who also threatened to take his own life. Sheehan was able to persuade the man to surrender his gun.

Officer Outerbridge is being honored for his courage in the pursuit and arrest of an armed suspect in a "drive by shooting."

Officer Fraser is being cited for his outstanding police work in effecting the arrest of two armed robbery suspects.

of clothing to the Quincy Crisis Center is suggested.

Call ENC's Student Council Office at (617) 773-6350, ext. 349, in order to sign up for this event.

Gauthier Women's Tournament On Weekend

The ninth annual Patty Malloy Gauthier Women's Softball Tournament will be held Saturday and Sunday at Kincaide Park and Welcome Young Field. Tourney play starts at 9 Saturday morning and continues until Sunday afternoon when the championship game will be played.

The tournament, named in memory of Patty Malloy Gauthier, who succumbed to cancer at the age of 29, is the largest women's tournament with 16 teams in Southeastern Mass., according to Ginny Trainer, Quincy Women's Softball League president. Patty spent most of her time in her 20s making softball accessible to South Shore women.

Teams from Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and New Jersey will compete.

Patty founded the Quincy Women's Softball League with the help of former mayor Joe LaRaia and umpire Chuck DeNicola. They organized the league in 1976, a time when there were no outlets for women to play sports outside of school.

Patty had worked as a Quincy recreation instructor. A student at UMass/Boston, she was widowed at age 25 with a 1½-year old daughter, Jacqueline.

"It was probably one of the most exciting things that ever happened in women's sports in Quincy," said Patty's sister, Linda Jablonski. "The park department eventually built two fields to provide for the games."

"The league united the whole city," said Patty's father, Pat Gullens.

Patty served six years as president until her illness forced her to resign. Even then, she attended games in a wheelchair sporting her ever-present smile and winning attitude.

Patty was also survived by a son, Christopher.

The profits from this weekend's tournament will be used to help defray Jacqueline's educational costs.

Ellen Zane Named New Quincy Hospital Director

Ellen M. Zane, a member of Quincy Hospital's senior management team since 1987, has been selected the hospital's new director by the hospital's Board of Managers.

Zane, a Hingham resident, succeeds former hospital director Mark Mundy. He resigned in January to become president of a New York teaching hospital.

Since Mundy's resignation, Zane had served as interim director of the 293-bed, acute care general hospital.

Her selection "brings to a successful conclusion three months of careful deliberations aimed at choosing the right person to lead Quincy Hospital in facing the critical health care challenges of the years ahead." Board Chairperson Trudy Buckley said in a statement released at the hospital governing body's regular monthly meeting last week.

Before assuming her new post, Zane must negotiate the terms of her continued employment with Hospital Corp. of America Management Co. (HMC), the Nashville-based firm that has managed the city-owned hospital under contract since 1981.

HMC provides the hospital with a five-member management team that includes the director, an associate director and three top fiscal officers.

During her tenure at Quincy Hospital, Zane has played a key role in developing a hospital-wide business plan aimed at enhancing volume and controlling expenses. She began the implementation of a physician recruitment and retention program; carried on oversight of an ongoing, $60 million building and renovation project, and developed and implemented cross-training programs for health care professionals at the facility.

In addition, Zane has developed the hospital's successful Occupational Health Service, which has grown at a 60 percent annual rate since the fall of 1988, and helped forge the hospital's pending acquisition of an on-site, magnetic resonance imaging center.

She has also provided administrative oversight for the hospital's ongoing Quality Improvement Process (QIP). Quincy Hospital has gained significant regional attention and broken new ground for health care providers with the QIP program, which is derived from industrial models of quality improvement.

Prior to joining Quincy Hospital and HMC, Zane held several key administrative posts at Morton Hospital and Medical Center in Taunton, including vice president for professional services, vice president for rehabilitation services, and director of rehabilitation services. She also headed the hospital's Speech, Hearing and Language Center.

"By squarely facing the crucial challenges of the past several months, Ellen Zane has clearly demonstrated that she has the vision, diplomacy and consistency of purpose to lead Quincy Hospital," Buckley said.

"The Board of Managers is fortunate that it was able to look to its own hospital community to find a highly capable individual to lead us at this critical juncture in the hospital's history," she added.

Zane is a member of the Executive Committee of the Health Care Management Association of Mass. She is a nominee for admission to the American College of Health Care Executives and a member of the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association. She currently serves on the Board of Directors of the Quincy Lions Club.

A graduate of George Washington University in Washington, D.C., Zane holds an M.A. in audiology and speech language pathology from the Catholic University of America.

She resides in Hingham with her husband Peter.

Zane will assume the director's post at Quincy Hospital immediately and begin the search for a new chief operating officer to assist her.

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Thus far, 1990 has been quite a year for world peace. Among the more notable positive developments are free elections in East Germany, the formation of a Democratic republic in Nicaragua and the release of two U.S. hostages in Lebanon.

The next thing you know, an American Legion band led by a Quincy citizen will march in the Soviet Union's May Day parade.

Sound incredible? Well it's true.

John (Jake) Comer of Quincy, past national commander of the American Legion, will lead Waltham's Joseph F. Hill American Legion Post 156 band in the Soviet Union's May Day celebration Wednesday, May 9 through Gorkey Square, near Red Square.

The band will be the first foreign group ever to participate in the most sacred of Soviet holidays.

How did this all come about?

The band's leader, 74-year-old Dorothy Hill, thought about taking the award-winning band to Russia five years ago as a peace mission.

She called several high ranking officials in Washington for their assistance but her requests fell on deaf ears.

A few years ago, she decided to take matters into her own hands and began calling the telephone company. She finally persuaded an overseas operator who began to recognize her voice to make inquiries in the Soviet Union.

Finally, in late 1988, she got through to the Soviet Peace Committee. Fortunately at the time, the committee was talking about changing the parade's image from a serious milit victory celebration when Hill got through on the telephone.

A committee member told her that they had been looking for a "happy band" to compliment the 35 bands normally in the celebration.

Look no further than the Waltham American Legion band. The band, with members age 17 to 82, was crowned state champions 11 times in the past 15 years, including a 10-year reign from 1975 to 1985.

The band is no stranger to Quincy. It leads the Quincy Christmas Festival Parade Victory every year.

"The people of Quincy know (Dorothy Hill) well. She still throws the baton and she's going to do it (in Russia) too," Comer said.

For the past 18 months, the band has been rehearsing for its Soviet debut. Among the songs it will play are "Hail, Massachusetts," "For Massachusetts," "Yankee Doodle," "Stars and Stripes" and "God Bless America." The band will also play the U.S. and Soviet national anthems while marching past President Mikhail S. Gorbachev's

CLEAN SWEEP - Members of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association sponsored a "Clean Sweep" in downtown Quincy Saturday and got a helping hand from Mayor James Sheets. ## City Files Suit Against MWRA, Contractor On Barge Violations

The city was set to file a complaint Wednesday in Quincy District Court alleging the MWRA and a Boston-based construction company violated two orders issued by the Quincy Conservation Commission.

According to Mayor James Sheets, the lawsuit alleges the Sciba Construction Company dismantled a 50 by 100-foot barge at the Nut Island Sewage Treatment Plant April 20 and 21 without Conservation Commission approval.

The barge was used to help build a pier at Nut Island. The MWRA contracted Sciba for part of the work.

The city contends the MWRA is equally responsible for the dismantling since the Authority applied for and received the original order of conditions for the pier work. Sheets said the original conditions do not include a provision for the dismantling of a barge.

In addition, the city contends the two parties violated a stop order issued by the Conservation Commission.

After the dismantling was discovered Friday, April 20, the Commission issued a stop order. Several officials say the dismantling continued Saturday after the order was issued.

Although the city does not have the right to inspect MWRA and other state projects in Quincy, the Conservation Commission has the authority to impose conditions which must be met. If a stop order is issued, a permit must then be obtained if a company is to continue work.

Each violation, filed under the Wetland Protection Act, carries a maximum $25,000 fine. Since the suit alleges two violations for both the MWRA and Sciba, the judge could impose up to $100,000 in fines.

"We're alleging that both (parties) are guilty. We're asking for the maximum fine," Sheets said Tuesday afternoon.

In order for the dismantling to take place legally, the mayor said the MWRA should have applied for a new or modified order of conditions.

"Since the MWRA applied for the original order of conditions, we feel they're guilty of the violation," the mayor added. Asked whether he thinks the city has a good chance to win its case, Sheets replied "Absolutely. We think the evidence is there."

A hearing date is expected to be set within the next three or four weeks. City Solicitor Stephen McGrath said. McGrath said a judge will determine whether the case should be assessed as a criminal or civil complaint.

Last week, several local officials including Sheets expressed their anger over the dismantling. The mayor said the city will try to get the right to inspect MWRA projects in Quincy.

Presently, only the state has that authority.

Timber from the barge may have been soaked with creosote, a thick brown oily wood preservative made from coal tar. Officials also believe there was no boom in the water at the time of the dismantling.

32 Teachers Still Expected To Lose Jobs $36.7M School Budget Approved

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

After four hours of discussion and questioning Monday night, the City Council approved 11 more department budgets, including the $36.7 million school budget and most of the $11 million police budget.

Several councilors made attempts to cut from certain budgets. Although the council cannot add money to any budget, the cuts were proposed in an attempt to save the jobs of some 70 city employees who will likely be laid off July 1.

Councilors hoped Mayor James Sheets would funnel any savings into departments losing employees. After listening to department heads explain their planned expenses, the council did not approve any cuts. However, some budget items were put on hold for further review.

The bulk of the layoffs will come from the School Department which will probably lose 32 teachers and nine other employees. The school budget, which represents nearly one third of the city's $120 million FY 1991 budget, was cut by $123,600 over last year.

The FY 91 school budget is the lowest it's been since the passage of Proposition 2 and a half 10 years ago.

The city's cost for unemployment expenses for all the layoffs is expected to be approximately $250,000, Auditor Robert Foy told the council.

Although the council generally agreed the school budget is inadequate, several councilors said the fine quality of education in Quincy will continue.

Ward 2 Councilor Ted DeCristofaro said managing the school system will be difficult under fiscal restraints but "certainly the quality of education has been fine and I don't see that changing."

Councilors Timothy Cahill and Peter Kolson agreed.

"I think the Quincy school system is going to be fine. I see no reason to circle the wagons now," Kolson said.

Cahill, a 1976 Quincy high graduate, added: "The system may not be where it was when

14 File Papers For Five Local Races

Fourteen candidates have filed nomination papers at City Hall, setting up contested contests for three state seats and two Norfolk County seats.

The papers were received before the 5 p.m. deadline on Tuesday.

The city's state senator and two of its three state representatives face challenges. An incumbent on the Norfolk County Commission and the Norfolk County treasurer also face opposition.

The most crowded field is for the Third Norfolk District seat now occupied by Robert Cerasoli who is seeking a ninth term.

Challenging him for the Democratic nomination is David Peterson, 53 Curtis St., Quincy.

Also trying to unseat Cerasoli will be Judith Balzano, 69 Edinboro Road, and Francis (Sandy) Eaton, 53 Quarry St., both of Quincy. Balzano is running as a Republican while Eaton is running as an Independent.

The Third Norfolk District includes parts of Quincy and Weymouth.

In the First Norfolk District, Rep. Michael Morrissey is being challenged by Susan Gallagher. Morrissey, a Democrat, is seeking his eighth term. Gallagher, who finished fourth in last fall's Council-at-Large race, is running as a Republican.

The quest for Morrissey's seat was almost a three-person race. Michael Cronin, a member of the city's Board of Registrars, planned to file only if no one else did.

After learning Gallagher was in the race, Cronin decided against it.

"We were prepared (to run) if Susan Gallagher had not filed so that there would be opposition," he said, adding family and personal concerns also weighed in his decision.

Cronin, who had collected approximately 200 signatures, said he will support Gallagher.

Morrissey said he welcomes the opposition because it will give him a chance to speak on the issues.

Senator Paul Harold is being opposed for the first time in many years by Paul Van Schaick, who live at 51 Princess Eve Dr., Quincy. Van Schaick, a patrolman with the Capital police, is running as a Republican.

Harold is seeking a seventh term.

In the Second Norfolk District, Rep. Steve Tobin will not be challenged for a second term.

In the county races, Commissioner David Ahearn of Norwood is running against Richard Staiti of Canton and Bruce Olsen of Stoughton.

Norfolk County Treasurer Daniel Raymondi is being challenged by Robert D. Hall.

Decision Awaited On Quincy Bay Pageant's Fate

By JANE ARENA

Because of financial constraints there may be no Miss Quincy Bay Beauty Pageant this year, according to Eileen Cohen, Executive Director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, which co-sponsors the annual event with the Quincy Bay Race Week Association.

Cohen made the remark during Tuesday's meeting of the Quincy License Board when she appeared before the board to obtain the permits for the annual Quincy Center Sidewalk Bazaar. The pageant traditionally caps off the three-day bazaar. The board granted permits to hold the bazaar July 19, 20 and 21 from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m.

Cohen told the board that the QCBPA is "still up in the air" as to whether or not the pageant will take place this summer.

Cohen later told The Quincy Sun that "the pageant looks good," but added that the QCBPA Board of Directors will take a final vote on May 9 on whether or not to hold it this year.

"There is a financial crunch throughout the whole country," she said. "The board is just going to discuss the problem."

The pageant, Cohen explains, is not a money-maker for the QCBPA. "In fact," she says, "we pay out on it, for the Park Department, for police details... we do it as a tradition, to promote downtown Quincy, and in conjunction with the sidewalk sale."

Last year was the first time in the pageant's 22-year history that contestants were required to pay an entrance fee to participate in the pageant. The fee was $35, Cohen says, but the Association had "no problem" getting contestants. The pageant usually includes 25 to 35 contestants, she says. There were 30 contestants last summer.

The Miss Quincy Bay Beauty Pageant is traditionally a "big draw" to bring people into Quincy Center, Cohen says. Two hundred seats are reserved for viewing the pageant and contestants' relatives usually walk through the Sidewalk Bazaar before the event.

Cohen has co-chaired the pageant with Beth Ann Streng for the past five years, and she says that she hopes to be involved in some capacity again this year.

"I've enjoyed it very much," she says.

TWO QUINCY MEN are sharing a $1,093,420 Megabucks Jackpot for picking the six winning numbers in the April 7th drawing. Brian McDonald, left, 33, and Richard Stuart 57, both of Quincy, will receive a check, after withholdings, for $41,003 a year for the next 20 years.

Over 100 Join In QCBPA's 'Clean Sweep'

The Quincy Center Business & Professional Association in cooperation with the Mayor's "Cleaner-Greener Quincy" Campaign, sponsored a "Clean Sweep" of the Downtown Quincy area Saturday.

Approximately 100 Q.C.B.P.A. members and area residents met for early morning coffee and doughnuts with Mayor James Sheets at the Quincy Fair Mall. In appreciation of his commitment to beautifying and revitalizing the downtown area, the group presented Sheets with a gold push broom. Sheets thanked the group for their active role in making Quincy "the best a city can be."

Santa Fareri, Q.C.B.P.A. member, said, "It is a pleasure to work with an administration so committed to the downtown as Mayor Sheets and Tom Koch. It certainly gave the Membership that extra enthusiasm that made Clean Sweep a success."

Fareri of Center Stage Restaurant and Tony Agnitti of Agnitti Insurance Company served as co-chairmen of the "Clean Sweep" effort which they hope will become an annual event.

Replace Grunebaum

Sheets Names Two New Labor Negotiators

The city has hired two partners in the law firm Murphy, Lamere and Murphy of Braintree as its new labor negotiators.

On Tuesday, Mayor James Sheets announced Richard W. Murphy and John E. (Jack) Lamere would replace David Grunebaum as the city's labor negotiator.

The firm specializes in personal injury, employee law and business and estate law.

Sheets said Grunebaum, who was hired by former Mayor Francis McCauley and worked eight years for the city, has done a good job. However, Sheets said a change was needed to better fit the "style" of his administration.

"I think (Grunebaum) did a good job for Frank McCauley but in our dealing with negotiations and grievances, we have a different style and I feel it was necessary to make a complete change in the area of negotiations and grievance settlement," Sheets said.

As for the differences in style, the mayor replied, "I think David's style and the style of the previous administration is more confrontational. Ours is more conciliatory and negotiating differences more informally."

Murphy and Lamere will be paid by contract. The city has set aside $15,000 for labor negotiations in FY 1991 which begins July 1.

Saying $15,000 is not a lot of money for labor negotiations, Sheets added, "We're hoping that we'll be able to do a lot of preliminary work in house and reduce the overall number of hours that we'll actually use the labor negotiators."

City Solicitor Stephen McGrath is working out a contract for Murphy and Lamere. Although the contract will not go into effect until July 1, Sheets said the city would probably use its new negotiators in a "transitional sense" until that time.

All city unions, representing approximately 4,000 workers, are up to renegotiate their contracts during FY 1991.

However, the new negotiators will only deal with the fire, police and HLEP (hospital, library and public employee) union. Those unions represent about 2,000 workers.

Another 2,000 workers, mostly from the school department and Quincy Hospital, are also up for renegotiation. The school department and remaining hospital employees use their own lawyers, the mayor noted.

The city will begin making proposals to unions in about three weeks, Sheets said. Already, the mayor has set the tone.

"There's no money in the budget for pay increases," he said.

Cleanup In Wards 1, 3, 6

Pleased with the first volunteer cleanup as part of the city's Cleaner, Greener campaign, Mayor James Sheets hopes the effort continues Saturday, May 5 when the second cleanup is held.

Residents in Wards 1, 3 and 6 are asked to participate in the cleanup which will begin at 9 a.m.

Ward 1 residents should meet at Adams Shore Library, Ward 3 at Wollaston

School and Ward 6 at Atlantic Neighborhood Center.

Last Saturday, approximately 750 people from Wards 2, 4 and 5 helped out. In addition, approximately 150 members of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association and the Wollaston Business Association also participated in the volunteer cleanup.

Sheets also announced the city is planning a "Thank You Cookout" for the volunteers and city workers who take part in the Cleaner, Greener effort.

The cookout has been tentatively set for Saturday, June 9 at Faxon Park. The menu will include hot dogs, hamburgers, chips and tonic which the mayor hopes will be donated.

Sheets, who said he'll also do some of the cooking, added, "We hope to have a big day. We hope the weather's good."

Public Hearing Plan

"The public comment period ends (Tuesday) May 8 so this could be one of the last chances that citizens have to present their views directly to members of the Siting

WE DON'T ALL WEAR THE SAME SIZE SHOES!

If you own and operate a grocery store, your insurance needs are far different than the proprietor of an expensive greater insurance needs than the local shoemaker.

Doesn't it make sense to custom tailor your protection to your precise requirements?

Ask your insurance agent for a flexible retail business owner's protective plan that will afford you all the coverage you need at a price you can afford to pay. And getting back to that pair of shoes... As we grow so does our shoe size.
The same applies to most retail operations. As your business grows and changes throughout the years, make

No Caddy For Me

If the car you drive is a status symbol like some people think it is, than I should be walking Hancock St.
looking for handouts.

My car is a 1978 Chevy Malibu station wagon that has seen better days — and better years.

But its aging looks hasn't bothered me until now.

You see, cars have never meant much to me as impression makers. I don't care about big gas guzzling boats or the flashy sports jobs or the ones that come equipped with everything but a kitchen sink.

Cars are cars. As long as they have four wheels and get you safely to where you want to go and then back again, that's the important thing.

My car is showing her age now, though. Rust. Rot.
Dents. And a built-in "shower": a hole somewhere above the windshield that lets the rain sprinkle you.

But she only has 50,000 miles on her and I guess that's why I hold onto her and try not to be lured by new car advertisements. I'm kind of attached to the old girl.

Doug and Phil Luomoa at West Quincy Motors have been the car's team physicians for the past few years and every time I bring it in for a tune-up, they smile and shake their heads.

She may have only 50,000 miles on her but she's a lot older than that, is their diagnosis. I don't give her a workout on the highways, they say. She's like a race horse. Take her out and let her run. Most of the mileage is in the city. Stop and go! That beats the hell out of a car.

I don't want my car to hear this because we've been together for 12 years now through all kinds of weather.
But I am beginning to think of replacing her.

I find myself getting a little embarrassed when I drive up to some fancy function and someone sees me getting out of it.

"When are ya going to break down and get a new car?" people are beginning to ask me. "C'mon you get the bucks. Let George Washington see the sunlight."

My car looks like a sore thumb whenever my family gathers. Four daughters, one son and one grandson have much newer cars than me.

Well, I'm giving it some thought. I may break down and do it this year before those guys on Beacon Hill come up with a new sales tax that might turn me off.
I don't know what kind of a car I would get. But it won't be a Cadillac.

Nothing personal about Caddy's. It's just that owners of Caddys can suddenly become involved in one of those kind of stories. You know the kind.

Like the one a few years ago about the brand new Caddy that was sold for only $50.

The millionaire who owned it and died unexpectedly had specified in his will that his wife sell the car and give the money to his secretary.

Well, the wife happened to despise the secretary but fulfilled her husband's wish. She sold the Caddy for $50 and gave the $50 to the secretary.

People swore this actually happened. Some insisted they saw the classified ad in the newspapers. Others had a friend who had a friend who knew the guy who bought the car.

Then there was that other story.

A guy who drove one of those big cement mixing trucks happened to be near his own home around noon one day and decided to stop by for lunch.

And there, in the driveway was a shiny Caddy. Inside the house he found the Caddy's owner with his wife.
And, as the story went, they weren't discussing the weather.

So, the husband marches out of the house, backs his truck into the driveway and pours the whole load of mixed cement over the new Caddy — completely encasing it.

Those who swear the story was true said they got it "from the guy who knows a guy who actually saw the car at a garage where they were trying to get the cement off with sledge hammers."

So, no Caddy for me. No, sirree. Even if I could afford one.

I don't know. Maybe I'll hold onto my old car for another year.

It doesn't get in the kind of trouble a Caddy does.

Use Common Sense

bureaucracy, the employee appears incompetent. And every new tax raise really only wards the bureaucrats.

Most of us believe in something better. There is plenty of common sense in every community in Massachusetts and America. Using that common sense, focusing on new ideas and opportunity should create a new wave of activism in our communities, without creating more failing bureaucracy.

I recently learned about a new project called the American Opportunities

Workshop. Common sense is their theme.

The workshop is a nationwide video teleconference to be broadcast May 19, at 10 a.m. (Webstar Satellite TV, Transponder 14, 7 Cross).
The show will feature
President Bush, former Arizona Governor Bruce
Babbitt, former Attorney General Griffin Bell and Congressman Newt Gingrich.
Virtually anyone can participate in the one hour program. There are more than 500 local hosts of workshops in all 50 states.

A cable access television program that focuses on a new concept in government, using local ideas and common sense focused on opportunity to help our local community.
Common sense should not be a new concept. Unfortunately, in the age of the bureaucratic welfare state, common sense is hard to find.
And bureaucracy may prevent your local community access cable station from airing this creative program.

Schools And Trees

21st century, it will need a

Mayor James Sheets has put much energy into his Cleaner-Greener Quincy campaign but what good is a beautiful tree-lined community if our young people are provided a less-than-good public education? Remember, public schools are a wise investment for the future. I would rather see kids learning in our schools than trees growing in their schoolyards.
After all, we must set proper priorities.

Quincy's public schools take a big bite out of the city budget (50 percent) as does public safety (31 percent) and the budget is currently sinking in a sea of red ink. Taxpayers are angry, parents are angry and all want real answers, not just political rhetoric and mad-slashing of firefighters, police officers and school teachers.

Quincy's problem is a statewide, one beginning with a state budget totally out of wack. For years thanks to local state aid funding from Beacon Hill, communities like Quincy had been insulated from the ill-effects of Proposition 2.5. But the state financial crisis has brought Prop. 2.5 to the forefront and presto-Quincy is in dire straits.

Barbara Anderson says
Proposition 2-1/2 is the only thing that's working in the state but it is really working when education in our city's classrooms is being negatively impacted, when our children are suffering educationally?
How long can taxpayers keep accepting service cuts? How long will public school parents remain in a city that cuts teacher positions and decreases the learning environment?

It is time for our Beacon Hill representatives to solve the state crisis in order for our elected municipal officials to solve more local issues like proper funding of public education. Poles like the mayor can't cut forever and at some point must move beyond campaign slogans.
Also, the Quincy School Committee has taken on all the appearances of an absentee landlord when it comes to public schools and that, also, has to stop. Actions speak louder than words and irate taxpayers and parents will remember on Election Day where our Quincy poles stand today.

Knows How To Reach Students

Fred The Robot Can Make You Laugh -- And Think

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

It's easy to laugh at Fred the Robot, a four and a half foot tall, 150-pound machine which resembles a smaller version of the famous "Lost in Space" robot.

Fred, with blinking lights and moving arms, can move and dance about while playing a hit song. He can also blow up a balloon and start up a conversation with the help of his operator, Dave Aleman.

However, put Fred in a school setting, and he's all business, which is teaching youngsters about certain societal dangers and self-respect.

Students at the Squantum and Atherton Hough Schools were introduced to Fred and his valuable lessons this week. Aleman will contact the city's other elementary schools about possible presentations at those schools in the near future.

Fred's lessons range from warning children about substance abuse and other dangers to teaching kids about self-esteem. Other lessons teach bicycle and street crossing safety, child abduction prevention and good health.

Aleman, who writes each program and lesson, says, "Everything about the program is positive."

Equipped with a color video monitor, two stereo cassette decks and a VCR, Fred presents a half-hour program on a particular lesson for students in kindergarten through grade six. Each important message is given at least three times during the program.

Besides being a teaching aide, Fred could also be considered a parent's helper.

Aleman explained that some parents do not know how to teach their children about some of life's dangers, such as drug abuse. Such first impressions can be vital to putting children on the right track.

FRED THE ROBOT, shown here during a visit with Mayor James Sheets, has come to Quincy to teach youngsters about certain dangers including drug abuse, child abduction and bicycle safety.

That's where Fred comes in. He can get his message across in a meaningful, effective and memorable manner.

"The important thing is that children learn all of the lessons they're supposed to learn," Aleman says.

For example, one lesson informs children that there are 5,000 accidents involving pedestrians and automobiles every year nationwide.

By displaying safety tips on his video monitor, Fred teaches children how to avoid these accidents. He shows youngsters how to use a crosswalk wisely and to look both ways before crossing the street.

Another lesson involves bicycle safety. Each year more than 600,000 children are injured while riding their bikes nationwide. There is also a program on medicine, doctors and good health.

"All of the lessons are potentially life saving," Aleman points out.

An integral part of the program, says Aleman, is the police officer who accompanies Fred to every school. "His presence shows that a police officer is a friend."

According to Aleman, representatives from the Quincy school system and Quincy Police Department have reviewed and voluntarily supported the program.

Fred and his lessons are made possible through advertising dollars raised from the Public Safety Handbook. The handbook contains information about safety, drugs and other health-related issues.

Fred's popularity is a testimony of his effectiveness. Aleman notes that Fred's calendar is usually booked solid.

"Fred does about 150 seminars a year. Everywhere he goes, they love him. The reaction by children is the same."

Adults appear to enjoy Fred's company too. Recently, he visited Mayor James Sheets in his office. The mayor was especially pleased to learn about Fred's concern for keeping youngsters away from drugs.

"(Fred coming to Quincy) is a unique opportunity for elementary kids to learn about substance abuse," said Sheets.

The mayor, who is a former college professor, also praised Fred for teaching youngsters about self-esteem and general safety.

"I think to have Fred the Robot work with the children in these areas is very meaningful."

Marie's Kitchen

By MARIE J. D'OLIMPIO

Eggless-Milkless-Butterless Cake Different But Delicious

My mother was way ahead of her time as far as watching cholesterol, and I am almost sure that "word" was not the "household" word it is today. Her eggless, milkless, butterless cake or cupcakes were delicious even though we all used to laugh about the lack of ingredients. This recipe tastes more like chocolate than most "brown" cakes you buy today.

EGGLESS-MILKLESS BUTTERLESS CAKE

1½ cups flour
½ cup cocoa
1 cup sugar
½ tsp salt
1 tsp baking soda
½ cup Mazzola or Wesson oil (or ½ cup melted margarine)
1 tsp vinegar (white)
1 tsp vanilla
1 cup cold water

Blend together the flour, cocoa, sugar, salt and baking soda. Add the oil or margarine, the vinegar, vanilla and the cold water. Mix together and beat well (about 2 minutes on the beater). Pour into a greased cake pan. Bake for 35 minutes in a 350 degree oven. When cool, frost with a favorite frosting. Here is a great white frosting and easy to make.

WHITE FROSTING

¾ cup confectioner's sugar dash of salt
1 egg white
½ tsp vanilla
Mix until smooth and spread on cooled cake.

Bicycle To CP Children

The Thomas Sherwin South Council of the Telephone Pioneers, located in Braintree, a volunteer group made up of employees from the New England Telephone Company, has donated a specialized bicycle to the children of the Childrens Developmental Disabilities Center located on Adams Street in Quincy.

The $600 bike enables children to ride it by manipulating the handle bars rather than using pedals.

The bike helps children coordinate the use of their arms while strengthening their upper extremities says Ann Connor, Director of the Clinic.

The Pioneers raise funds for several charities in the area through raffish, their dues, and a sample sale.

DeCristofaro Wants Bridge Repaired

Noting lighting and debris problems, Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro has asked the state commissioner of Public Works to restore the appearance of the Fore River Bridge.

In a recent letter to Public Works Commissioner Jane

Garvey, DeCristofaro said, "Now that the physical problems of the Fore River Bridge have surfaced and repairs must be made, I believe it is time to put the bridge back in the condition it should be."

"The appearance of the bridge is disgraceful. There are sections of the walls that are crumbling and many times there are piles of this debris laying on the sidewalk.

"The lighting is in terrible condition. I have written to you before in this regard.

There are poles missing, and in some cases, there are poles with no lights.

"Because work will be ongoing for repairs, this should be the time to put the bridge back in the condition it should be and no longer be the eyesore it is."

$36.7M School Budget Approved

I was in high school but I believe wholeheartedly in the public school system. We have a fine administrative staff, fine teachers, an excellent athletic program."

Among the four holds put on by the council, three are in the police budget. They are: $18,962 cadet position. Cadets are college students age 18 to 23 who work in the communications department. The position is paid by the hour. Kolson asked for it to be held.

• The $160,000 police overtime budget. Councilor Michael Cheney asked Acting Chief Paul Nestor for the amount of overtime paid to uniformed patrolmen and civilian officers. Foy said he would break down the overtime account for the council.

• The $46,632 communications superintendent position and $29,842 communications technician position were put on hold after a request by Kolson. The council wants to check with Mayor James Sheets to determine whether both positions are needed.

In addition, Councilor Michael Cheney proposed to reduce the number of police captains from five to four. One position is vacant because of a retirement.

Cheney said the move would save about $48,000, nearly enough to hire two patrolmen.

In explaining his proposal, he referred to a Massachusetts Municipal Association study of the Quincy Police Department which recommended eliminating the captains through attrition. Instead, the MMA recommended creating two deputy chiefs.

Asked for his position, Nestor told the council he favored leaving the captain's position in the budget and allowing the new chief the choice of restructuring the department.

A successor to retiring Police Chief Francis Finn will not be appointed until October at the earliest.

Voting against the move were Councilors Ted DeCristofaro, Charles Phelan, Thomas Fabrizio, Patricia Toland, Kolson and Cahill. Favoring the cut were Councilors Lawrence Chretien, Thomas Nutley and Cheney.

In reviewing the Traffic Department budget, Cahill requested putting one parking control officer or "meter maid" position on hold.

Presently, there are five parking control officers budgeted. They earn approximately $20,000 a year.

Cahill, who acknowledged the officers are needed to enforce parking regulations, questioned whether five are needed to patrol the city's business areas.

According to Traffic

Engineer David Kinnecorn, each officer issues approximately 80 tickets a day. Over the course of the year, each officer covers his or her own salary four times over, he noted.

However, Kinnecorn also said parking receipts have increased because fines have been raised, not necessarily because the city has added another parking control officer. Cahill asked Kinnecorn to find out if the same number of tickets are being issued under five officers as four.

He also asked for input from shoppers and businessmen on the parking control officers' activity.

"I know they perform a function but I often wonder whether they're acting in the best interest of the city," Cahill added.

Other department budgets approved by the council were: Health department, $408,215; harbor master, $2,800; Civil Defense, $38,148; animal control, $79,890; employee health, $13,740,000 (up from $9.2 million); veterans' reimbursement, $3,500; general insurance, $9,500; in-service training, $2,500; F.I.C.A. (city's share of social security for city employees) $150,000.

The council was expected to wrap up its budget proceedings Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Council Chambers. Budgets to be voted on included fire, public works, council and mayor.

Spring HOME IMPROVEMENT

Keep Your Patio Party And Furniture From Getting Dull

Patio furniture made of vinyl and plastic can be severely damaged by the effects of harsh ultraviolet rays, ozone, severe temperature changes, and normal wear and tear. A quality vinyl protectant should be your first line of defense against these corrosive agents.

Protectants shield your furniture from ultraviolet light and also lubricate the surface, preventing fading, cracking and hardening. It is imperative that you purchase your protectant selectively. You should look for a protectant designed to go far beyond a mere surface treatment -- it should penetrate porous vinyl and rubber surfaces and carry the protecting chemicals deep within the material being treated.

The leader in this industry is the well known product, Armor All Protectant. Armor All not only brings out the original lustre, but also inhibits corrosion and helps control biological contamination, a common problem with outdoor furniture.

To protect your outdoor furniture and maintain its original look, invite Armor All Protectant to your next patio party.

Good laundry design saves time, makes life easier

Now more than ever, busy homeowners juggle work, family and leisure in an effort to maintain a balanced and satisfying lifestyle. For them, time saved on everyday tasks means time more happily spent elsewhere. So when homeowners nationwide recently took time to design efficient home laundry areas, they not only made life easier for themselves but Maytag Company and Woman's Day Kitchens and Baths in a Good Laundry Design Contest.

If you're as busy as the contest entrants, you, too, may benefit from putting theirs and other ingenious ideas to use. Consider the following:

Keep storage close to laundry equipment. A retired couple built in a two-tiered, turn-around shelf near the washer and dryer. The shelf holds laundry ready to be washed or folded.

Locate laundry equipment near a sink and storage. Cabinets conceal laundry supplies and, when located near a sink, double as storage space for stemware, glasses and bar items.

Place related conveniences near laundry equipment. A couple with two active children installed a drip-drying closet next to the sink and laundry equipment by using a shower-floor base with a drain and ceramic tile walls. They also installed a low faucet and clothing rod.

Double up on space with stacked laundry equipment. A single mother living in an older home installed a stacked washer/dryer in a compact closet near the garden and central kitchen island. On the inside closet door a fold-down ironing board saves even more precious space.

Locate laundry equipment adjacent to existing plumbing. When the most convenient plumbing hook-up seems awkward, consider locating appliances behind louvered cabinets and folding doors for easy concealment when not in use.

More ways to design and equip an efficient laundry area are available in Maytag Company's Contemporary Laundry Planning. To order a copy of the booklet, send your name, address and $1.00 per copy to Maytag, Department 38YQ-MT, Newton, Iowa 50208.

A STACKED WASHER/DRYER from Maytag, along with a fold-down ironing board, is tucked into a compact closet.

A SINK AND TURN-AROUND SHELVING were located close to the Maytag washer and dryer by contest-winning homeowners. SH905548

MHFA Announces New Mortgage Credit Certificate Program

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey, (D-Quincy), announces the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency (MHFA), in cooperation with the Executive Office of Communities and Development and participating lenders, has launched the Mortgage Credit Certificate (MCC) program.

The program is designed to help make homeownership more affordable for about 250 lower-income, first-time buyers statewide.

MCCs provide tax credits that borrowers may use in tandem with conventional mortgage financing and that act to reduce the amount of federal income taxes paid annually. The tax savings represent additional net income available for mortgage payments.

Through the MCC program, MHFA is trying to reach homebuyers at the lowest possible incomes. In order to accomplish this, MHFA is encouraging homebuyer programs which can be used with MCCs. This gives borrowers an opportunity to look for mortgages which meet their needs.

Rep. Morrissey said, "MCCs combined with conventional lenders' first-time homebuyer programs provide another key to buying a first home. I encourage borrowers to take advantage of this new resource."

Borrowers may apply for the MCC program through participating lenders. To apply, prospective borrowers must have either an Accepted Offer to Purchase or an executed Purchase and Sale Agreement.

To qualify for MCCs, borrowers must be first-time homebuyers; meet income guidelines (a maximum of $35,700 in the Boston metropolitan area and $33,800 for the balance of the state); and buy a home that falls within federally-established home acquisition cost limits.

It is important to note that Federal Law prohibits the use of MCCs with MHFA's mortgage loan programs.

For brochures on the MCC program and a list of participating lenders call MHFA's Office of Single Family Programs at (617) 451-2766.

Fiesta Shows Carnival Opens Two Week Run

Fiesta Shows, New England's largest travelling carnival has begun a two-week stand now through Sunday, May 13 at the former Braintree Drive-In Theatre grounds across from the South Shore Shopping Plaza.

Included in the line up of spectacular rides, games and attractions are the Giant Gondola Ferris Wheel said to be America's largest. The huge wheel stands approximately 12 stories high and can hold up to 120 riders at the same time.

In addition to the carnival attractions there is a free raving and feeding zoo which includes exotic species of birds and movie animals from all parts of the world.

Visitors can touch, feed and pet such animals as pygmy goats, Barbados sheep, Sicilian donkeys, zebras and llamas. All the animals are displayed in gaily colored circus wagons and pens that allow close contact with the animals. In addition, elephant, camel and pony rides are available on the midway.

An added attraction is one of the country's newest events, Racing Pigs. The pigs actually race around an oval track much to the delight of spectators.

The carnival is being presented for the benefit of the Dianne DeVanna Center For The Prevention Of Child Abuse and Neglect on the South Shore.

North Off To Good Start

By TOM SULLIVAN

The North Quincy baseball team, after going 4-4 in non-league games, got off to a fine start in quest of its second straight Suburban League title by winning its first two league games last week.

Leo Donovan's Raiders took a 6-4 overall mark into the Waltham game which was rained out Monday and rescheduled for Tuesday. North faced Quincy yesterday (Wednesday), will host Brookline Friday at 3:30 at Adams Field, will be at Brockton Monday and will be home to Cambridge Rindge and Latin next Wednesday at 3:30 at Adams.

North's two opening league wins were thanks mainly to the efforts of Erik DeBoer, who is having another great season on the mound as well as at bat.

After pitching a one-hitter to lead the Raiders over Cambridge, DeBoer came on in the sixth inning and the bases loaded with one out and North leading, 4-1, over Newton North.

The big righthander proceeded to strike out the next two batters and struck out the side in the seventh to preserve the win.

Starter Tony Anderionis pitched an excellent game until tiring in the sixth.

Dave Gamsby continued his fine hitting with two hits and three runs scored and George Rozanitis, who also has had a fine year at bat, went 2-for-3.

"What more can I say about DeBoer?" said Donovan. "I've used up all the superlatives. He's just phenomenal. He's done a terrific job in every game in which he has appeared."

Quincy Drops First Two League Games

After Going 5-3 in non-league games, the Quincy baseball team dropped its first two Suburban League games to Brookline and Brockton.

Bob Sylvia's Presidents took an overall 5-5 record into the Cambridge Rindge and Latin game which was rained out Monday and rescheduled for Tuesday. They met North Quincy yesterday (Wednesday), will be at Newton North Friday and will be home to Waltham Monday at 3:30 at Adams Field.

Quincy dropped a tough 5-4 decision to Brookline in its league opener.

"We hurt ourselves with some key defensive lapses and some poor base running," said Sylvia. "Chad McMahon pitched well as did Bobby Crespi in relief."

McMahon, seeking his fourth win in a row, was going well until Brookline pitcher Vic Koytikh, who hurled a four-hitter, belted a three-run triple.

Tom Balzano and Fred Regan, who have been hitting well, led the Presidents at bat. Quincy scored first against Brockton, but was held at bay the rest of the way as Brockton took an 8-1 victory.

Steve Marciano led the way against the Presidents, his hits including a towering triple that just missed going out of the park.

Rich Burns and Mike Malvesti did the pitching for Quincy.

Quincy's younger players had stolen the spotlight as the Presidents edged Revere, 4-2, in their final non-league game.

Sophomores Steve Loud and Malvesti shared the pitching with Malvesti getting the win in three innings of strong relief.

Freshman Rob Kane had two hits and scored the winning run in the seventh inning on sophomore Pat Gallagher's sacrifice fly. Balzano and Regan drove in the other two runs.

"Kane at second base and Gallagher at shortstop give us an outstanding double play combination, and they have great futures," said Sylvia. "Our young players are doing an excellent job for us."

Mullen In Police Benefit Relay Run

Lt. Fran Mullen, a veteran marathoner who has run in 41 marathons around the world, including many Boston runs, will represent the Quincy Police as one of 60 Massachusetts officers in the National Law Enforcement Memorial Boston to Washington 490-mile relay run May 10-13.

The run is being held to raise funds for the National Law Enforcement Officers Memorial being built in Washington to honor officers killed in the line of duty. Among those being honored is Sherman Griffiths, a Boston officer and Milton resident killed in the line of duty Feb. 17, 1988. A total of 151 officers were killed in the line of duty last year.

Ground was broken for the memorial on Oct. 30, 1989. President Bush gave the keynote address at the ceremony which attracted 2000 law enforcement officials and survivors of the fallen officers from across the nation. The dedication is planned for this fall.

Nearly $5 million has been raised from 200 U.S. corporations, police groups and some 480,000 Americans. About $1.5 million is needed to complete construction and maintain the memorial.

Tax-deductible contributions made payable to East Coast Law Enforcement Run should be sent to Vitale, Caturano and Company, P.C., 106 Union Wharf, Boston 02109.

Further information can be obtained by calling or writing

Tom Griffiths, 128 Common Street, Quincy 02169 (tel. 770-0183).

The runners will be stopping in all major cities along the route, where they will be joined by additional law enforcement personnel.

Sponsor fee is $100 per runner. This fee will help defray expenses during the event and also gives the sponsor a one-year membership in the National Law Enforcement Memorial East Coast Run Association and its events during the year.

Quincy Players Lead UMass/Boston Tennis Team

Quincy might be the City of Presidents, but if you ask UMass Boston tennis coach Michael Bradley, he would certainly say it is also the home of some pretty talented tennis players.

Quincy residents Oscar Jara, Tom Savoie, Dave Bouley and Pat Finnegan all have undefeated records and have helped serve and volley the UMass/Boston tennis team to a perfect dual match mark so far this season.

How dominating have the Beacons been this year? So far this spring they have lost just one individual singles match to date. The only blemish on their record has been a second place finish in the first annual Codfish Tennis Tournament held at UMass/Boston. Even then, all four Quincy players made it to the finals in their respective flights before losing to a strong team from Springfield College.

"I'm not surprised how well the Quincy kids are playing," said coach Bradley. "I've seen them develop through the years in both ranked junior and high school competition and there was little doubt in my mind they would be able to come to UMass/Boston and make a major impact on the program."

By bringing together Jara, Savoie, Bouley and Finnegan, Bradley has assembled a group of players who have known each other long before their days at the Harbor Campus School. All four were friends growing up in Quincy and later teammates at Quincy High School. It is no coincidence the four have seen their tennis fortunes flourish at UMB.

Juniors Savoie and Bouley are in their third season at UMass/Boston. Both have seen their game improve significantly during this time, including last year when they posted 8-4 and 9-3 records respectively. A former ranked NETA player, Savoie moved from #1 to #2 singles this season, a strategy that has strengthened the overall Beacon line-up.

"I think we have more depth this season," said Savoie, the team's MVP the past two years. "We are not a team that has one great player but rather a squad made up of very consistent performers who get the job done."

"We refuse to lose," added Bouley, a former four-time letter winner for coach Dana Jones at Quincy High. "The key has been team unity. We all know what it takes to win and are willing to pay the price."

The team maverick, Bouley, is a Dean's List student majoring in English. He also finds time in his busy schedule to teach tennis for the Quincy Recreation Department.

Finnegan joined the team last spring and quickly made his presence felt with a respectable 7-5 freshman record. Standing 6-1, Finnegan is an imposing figure across the net for opponents. With a year's experience behind him, Pat is looking forward to a banner 1990 season.

"I'm going to try and be more patient this season," said Finnegan. "I hope to key on the mistakes of my opponents."

The final piece of the UMass/Boston-Quincy puzzle was put in place with the arrival of freshman Oscar Jara. Born in Argentina, he moved to Quincy at the age of eight and soon thereafter began making a name for himself in tennis circles around Quincy. He was the Presidents top seeded player and lived up to expectations, having an undefeated record his senior year.

"The transition to college tennis has been very easy for me, because I knew a lot of the players and the coach," said Jara.

A freshman, Jara is the Beacons' number one singles player and has played like anything but a freshman so far this season, having won all his matches in straight sets.

"I don't feel any pressure in matches because I have played in so many big tournaments growing up," explained Jara. "As long as we win, I am happy."

Although it is almost the mid-point of the season, the Beacons are cautiously optimistic as they set their sights on the Little East and New England Tournaments later this month.

When not on the UMass Boston courts, it's a good bet that you will find one of the Beacon players working on his game at the Quincy Tennis Club. Although presently teammates, they ironically found themselves at opposite sides of the net last summer.

Tom Savoie and Pat Finnegan teamed up against Oscar Jara and Dave Bouley for the Quincy City Doubles Championships.

For the record, Dave and Oscar prevailed that afternoon, winning their second consecutive city doubles championship. The scores of the match? No one could remember. A good sign of team unity.

Snug Harbor coach Will Hughes was pleased with the playmaking of Jason Beauvais, who was his fifth starter. He also got strong rebounding from Eric Kenny and Kevin Norton, while David Sawan keyed a strong pressing man-to-man defense.

In the senior high school championship, Beechwood Knoll was making its seventh straight appearance in the championship game under coach Jack Kelly and Rick Radzik. Atlantic coach George Dunn was looking for back-to-back championships, having won it all last year. Both coaches had their usual large rosters, each with 12 players.

Atlantic broke a close 29-27 game after three periods, to slowly pull away to a 43-36 victory. Tom Sullivan had 13 to lead Atlantic, followed closely by Bill Monteith with 10 and James Maloney with eight. Matt Giese had seven and William Chu rounded out the Atlantic scoring.

Beechwood got 16 points from Pat O'Donoghue to lead both teams. He was followed by Paul Kearns with eight, Denny McLain five, and Mark Kelleher four. Coach Rick Radzik also pointed to Chris Murray's fine defense and excellent playmaking of the McDonald brothers, Joe and Mike. Coach George Dunn was pleased with the ball handling of Tony Anderionis and the rebounding of Scott Krupnick.

Welch, Crowley and Mullaney also presented trophies to City Champion Atlantic, and finally awards to Beechwood Knoll. The Atlantic team consists of Tony Anderionis, William Chu, Mike Duran, Matt Giese, Aiman Janineh, Scott Krupnick, James Maloney, Bill Monteith, Mark Nitschke, Matt Price, Tom Sullivan and Steven Wass. The Beechwood Knoll team is Chris Dupill, Jim Glynn, Paul Kearns, Mark Kelleher, Denny McLain, Joe McDonald, Mike McDonald, Chris Murray, Will O'Donnell, Pat O'Donoghue, Ed Welby and Joe Welby, coached by Rick Radzik.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

It seems that every day, every month and even every year has been given to someone, something or some cause. Pick a cause, there's a week for it! May is no exception. It is, among other things, "Senior Citizens Month."

We would like to share some thoughts with you on this. If you are a Senior Citizen, take a good look at yourself and your peers, and be proud of all you have accomplished ... In the past and now, in your prime. You have the time to do all those things you put off in your youth because "the kids" or "the job" came first. If you aren't one, take a look at all the senior power that fills your life. You, your family, your town, would be less today without those wonderful folks called "seniors." Take care of "Senior Citizens Month," and hug your favorite seniors today ... and every day ... THEY DESERVE IT!

Crime Watch

By ROBERT HANNA
Crime Prevention Officer

How To Discourage The Auto Thief

Here are some tips on how to avoid having your auto stolen.

- Always lock your vehicle and pocket your keys.
- Separate your automobile keys from your house keys.
- Park and lock your vehicle in a locked garage, when possible, or under a light at night.
- Secure luggage and packages in your trunk.
- Install an anti-theft device on your auto.
- Avoid "hiding" spare keys on the vehicle.
- Avoid marking your keychain with your name or license number.
- Keep windows rolled up tight when vehicle is unattended.
- Install smooth, non-flared, locking buttons on your vehicle doors.

Thousands of automobiles are stolen in Massachusetts each year. That amounts to a lot of crime, a lot of money, and irreplaceable valuables stolen. Also a lot of inconvenience to people who might have prevented these thefts.

Some professional thieves can open a locked car, remove what they want, and get away in 30 seconds or less. Fortunately most thieves are not so skilled and have to rely on the carelessness of their victims. Do not offer opportunities for criminals and thrill-seeking youths to help themselves because you are negligent.

Remember:

Crime = the desire of the thief and the opportunity to steal. The opportunity to steal often comes from the victim -- YOU.

Comer To Lead Legion Band In Soviet May Day Parade

Marching with the band will be the Dedham American Legion Post 18 color guard. The guard will carry the U.S. and Soviet flags as well as Comer's personal national commander color which, fittingly, is red.

Because they are such close friends, Hill asked Comer to lead the band when she first got the idea. Her band was Comer's band when he was national commander and he emceed the Waltham Post's installation of officers every year.

"From the very beginning, she said she wanted me to help her lead the charge. It's a great honor. It's just tremendous to think this is happening."

Accompanying Comer will be his wife, Eileen, and Paul Hunt, deputy judge advocate with the Morrisette American Legion Post in West Quincy. Hunt will march with Comer while Eileen will be spectator.

They'll leave for the U.S.S.R. Friday. After the parade, they'll be in Leningrad until May 13. The night of May 13, they will arrive in Frankfurt.

Comer said the band hopes to do a concert in Frankfurt May 13 as well as a show at the new McDonald's in Moscow.

Also traveling with the band will be journalists and photographers from the Boston Globe, Boston Herald and Miami Herald as well as a team from the Waltham cable television company. ABC's "Good Morning, America," show is scheduled to televise the parade live the morning of May 9.

This will be Comer's first trip to Russia. While national commander from August, 1987 to August, 1988, he visited all 50 states and 18 countries but never cross the Soviet border.

Aside from the parade, he said the band's itinerary is unclear. "We don't know what's set up. They don't tell you a lot."

Comer, a U.S. Air Force veteran of the Korean Conflict and a life member of the Thomas J. Roberts American Legion Post in West Roxbury, is certain the Legionnaires will meet up with some Soviet veterans. "After all, Russia was our ally in World War II."

Asked what kind of impact the visit could have on Soviet-American relations, Comer replied, "It should improve relations even with the problems with Lithuania."

"Who knows what the catalyst will be to turn (that situation) around," he said.

adding that the visit and the American music could soften Gorbachev's stand on the small Soviet republic which is seeking its independence.

Furthermore, Comer said the band hopes their visit has a ripple effect on world peace.

"We're going over because it's a peace mission. Anyone who has seen war promotes peace for the rest of their life."

"(Legionnaires) work for the ultimate peace. Here's an opportunity for the American Legion to be on the front page promoting peace."

"If the American Legion can put out the hand of friendship, I think the rest of the world can too," he said.

Comer said a person from Massachusetts called the Waltham Post and the Legion's national headquarters in Washington, D.C., requesting the Americans carry the Lithuanian flag and television marching through Moscow.

The band decided against it. Comer said this gesture would propel the Legion into a Soviet political issue which is not part of its mission.

"We're going to promote peace and harmony."

Phelan Opposes Further Cuts In Library Budget

Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan says he is strongly opposed to any further cuts in the fiscal 1991 library budget and closing any branch libraries.

"I want to register my strong opposition to any further cuts in the library budget; and I am positively opposed to the closing of branch libraries," the councillor said.

As proposed, the 1991 library budget is $38,409 less than the FY 90 budget. The FY 91 budget calls for $1,415,017 in funding while the FY 90 budget was $1,453,426.

Last week, the City Council put the library budget on hold at the request of Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien. At the time, Chretien said he favors keeping some library positions unfilled as a way of preventing some layoffs in the school and fire departments.

In stating his opposition, Phelan noted the library could lose grants and funding sources responsible for many special programs since 1985 if the budget is cut by just $1. "Branch libraries have been for years, an essential part of the community, providing an educational resource for our children and hours of reading enjoyment for the family. Branch libraries, along with the bookmobile, have been a blessing to our senior citizen population," Phelan said.

"Although we are in tough financial times, cutting the library budget any further will serve no useful purpose," he added.

Home Rule Petition Seeks City's Right To Inspect MWRA

The city took another step toward gaining the right to inspect MWRA projects and facilities located in Quincy Monday night.

By a 9-0 vote, the City Council approved a home-rule petition, which if approved, would allow city gas and plumbing inspectors to inspect MWRA facilities and projects in Quincy.

A similar petition calling for Quincy building inspectors to have the authority to inspect Authority facilities in the city has already passed the council.

To become law, the petitions must be approved by the state legislature and signed by the governor. Both petitions were introduced by Mayor James Sheets.

The mayor and other city officials want the city to have the right to inspect MWRA facilities in Quincy, in particular since the Authority is constructing a temporary sludge treatment facility at the former Fore River shipyard.

Recently, city officials were angered to learn a barge used by the MWRA to construct a pier at Nut Island was allegedly dismantled without proper approval.

In introducing the petition, Sheets said "any construction process is potentially dangerous" and therefore requires proper oversight by officials knowledgeable to the state Plumbing and Gas Code. He noted that the State Board of Examiners is "heavily burdened" because of ongoing construction in the state and budget restraints.

As a result, Sheets said the city should have the right to inspect MWRA facilities, notably the sludge facility, in order to protect the "health, safety and general welfare" of citizens in Quincy and surrounding communities.

Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson said "It's about time the MWRA realizes it is in the city of Quincy and that they recognize they must abide by state and local laws."

"The event at Nut Island has shown that we should have an eagle eye on the MWRA."

Up $2.8M Over Last Year

Council Passes $120.6M Budget

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The City Council wrapped up its budget sessions Monday night by approving a FY 1991 municipal budget of $120,665,106.

The budget is up $2,876,766 over last year. The FY 1990 budget which expires June 30 called for $117,788,340 in spending.

The council, which reviewed every department budget during 13 hours of budget deliberations, cut $145,343 from Mayor James Sheets' request for a $120,810,449 FY budget.

On Tuesday, Sheets said he was pleased with the council's handling of the budget. He also commended Finance Committee Chairman Patricia Toland for guiding the budget review process expeditiously.

"I think the City Council did a very thorough job. I think the whole budget process went very well and I think the council asked good questions," Sheets said Tuesday.

Although the budget calls for the loss of as many as 30 teaching positions, 17 firefighters and perhaps some other city workers, Sheets is hoping some of those positions can be restored.

On Tuesday, Sheets said the city has approximately $1.3 million in unanticipated revenue. If the city is left funded in local aid next month, the mayor said he would consider introducing a supplemental budget to the City Council.

The $1.3 million in unanticipated revenue comes from $700,000 in lottery money, $500,000 in new growth and the $145,000 in cuts from the budget by the council.

"With the City Council cuts and savings in the departments and an additional $500,000 in new growth and over $700,000 in lottery money, we will have money that we can consider redistributing in a supplemental budget."

"However, and this is a huge however, that is subject to our receiving our full local aid payment in June. We should be getting in excess of $17 million."

"If we get our local aid payment at that level, then we can look at a supplemental budget which would redistribute funding," the mayor said.

If the city is not level funded, then the mayor would use some of the $1.3 million to offset the loss. Only $200,000 was allocated to cushion the budget.

At this time, part of the city's fiscal future remains uncertain. The city's share of local aid will not be known until June. In addition, Sheets will not know the bottom lines of all departments for FY 1990 until June 1. Furthermore, there could be some unexpected costs between now and the start of the new fiscal year on July 1.

In the meantime, Sheets hopes the city's local aid share is not cut. A substantial reduction in aid, he pointed out, would spell "real trouble."

"The real issue now is the state economy. If we lose $2.5 million in local aid, then we're in real trouble."

Still, the mayor remains optimistic. Since several communities, notably Worcester and Springfield, would be decimated by large local aid cuts, the mayor believes the funding will come through.

"I expect we'll get our local aid funding but I could be wrong."

On Monday, the City Council passed a $9.8 million fire department budget which calls for 17 firefighters to be laid off this summer. The layoffs would drop the number of firefighters, excluding officers, from 180 to 159.

Last week, the council approved a $36.7 million school budget, down $2 million from last year. According to Carmen Mariano, Assistant Superintendent of Personnel, the $2 million reduction results in a loss of 40 teacher, counselor and specialist positions.

The School Committee is looking to restore 10 of those positions.

Mariano said the actual number of teacher layoffs depends on the number of retirements and the amount of outside funding positions renewed by state and federal grants. The actual number will not be known until the summer, he added.

The police department is losing 10 officers through retirements.

If there is a supplemental budget, Sheets said the bulk of it will go toward funding positions in the school, fire and police departments.

Henry Bradley Named Veterans Services Director

Henry P. Bradley of Quincy, the city's Veterans Service officer and a 30-year military veteran, has been appointed director of Veterans Services by Mayor James Sheets.

Bradley, 49, a 22-year resident of the city, will replace Charles LoPresti who has retired. The appointment is effective May 10.

As director of Veterans Services, Bradley will earn $40,037 annually.

"Hank Bradley has been extremely active in veterans affairs for a number of years both in the city of Quincy and in the county. He was one of several candidates who I feel were well-qualified for the job," Sheets said.

"But in the final analysis, I felt his experience in veterans and service in the city of Quincy made him the best choice."

Despite a freeze on hiring, Sheets said the position had to be filled because it is required by state law.

HENRY BRADLEY

A former Quincy police officer, Bradley helped start the original Neighborhood Watch groups and a youth diversion program with the Quincy District Court.

He also served on the Patrol Officers' Union Executive Board, serving as secretary, treasurer and president.

His military career spans 30 years, including active and inactive service. He served in the Air National Guard from 1957 to 1973. He then transferred to the U.S. Army Reserve, serving from 1973 to 1988.

He is a retired first sergeant with the 373rd General Hospital, U.S. Army Reserve.

Among the military awards he has received are the Meritorious Service medal, Army Commendation medal and the Army Achievement medal.

He is a member of the Morrisette American Legion and VFW in Quincy and an honorary member of World War I Barracks Veterans Council.

In addition, Bradley has served as commander of the Morrisette Post and Milton Post 114.

He and his wife, Rosemarie have two daughters, Helena Rose, 25, a legal secretary; and Annette Marie, 23, a registered nurse.

The CDBG budget is down $83,186 from last year. The budget for FY 1990 was $1,854,186.

Among the items in the FY 91 budget are $150,000 for affordable housing assistance, $258,513 for housing rehabilitation program support and $300,487 for neighborhood public improvement.

The improvements listed in the budget are $40,000 for public safety, $136,487 for streets and sidewalks, $22,000

The budget also calls for dividing $265,650 among eight local community center programs. They are: Elderly Outreach ($105,282); Atlantic ($34,646); Adams Shore ($9,076); Beechwood ($18,000); Germantown ($36,482); Houghs Neck ($27,062); Quincy Point ($25,802); and Squantum ($9,300).

- $50,000 for handicapped accessibility at non-profit and public facilities.
- $12,150 for elderly minor home repair at the Beechwood Community Life Center.
- $354,200 for planning and administration.
- $350,000 in housing rehabilitation (grants, lead paint and handicapped). The funding does not include $67,000 HUD rental rehabilitation program nor the $350,000 revolving housing loan fund

One Hour Earlier Opening At Donut Shop For 3 Months

By JANE ARENA

The License Board Tuesday granted a temporary license to Donut King, Inc., 151 Copeland St., allowing the shop to open one hour earlier, at 5 a.m. rather than 6 a.m., for a period of three months.

During the three-month period, police will monitor the area and report problems, if any, to the board before the permanent license is granted.

2-Hour Parking For Beach St?

Ward 5 Councilor Charles Phelan has asked the Traffic Commission to study the feasibility of making the south side of Beach St. in Wollaston, from Marlboro to Willow St. a two-hour parking zone to prevent all-day parking from the MBTA.

Joseph L. Melchione, manager of the shop, told the board that customers have been coming to the shop as early as 5 a.m. for years, and said he does not want to have to turn customers away.

The board received a letter on the matter from Ward 4 Councilor Thomas Fabrizio, in whose ward the shop is located.

"I have only one concern," Fabrizio said, "and that is whether, or not the earlier opening would attract the tractor trailers and other larger vehicles as opposed to cars and smaller vehicles."

Fabrizio, who noted that Melchione "has always run a fine establishment," said he would have no objection to the license if Melchione can assure the board that there would be no increase in large vehicle traffic.

Fabrizio also noted that the shop abuts a residential area and said that the concerns of the neighbors should be the first priority. He suggested that the license be granted for a probationary period of 30 days.

Captain Paul Nestor, however, said that the probationary period should be increased to three months because the area is an especially busy one.

The Donut shop has been operating in the location for nine years.

The suspect was traced to California where he was arrested. The detectives were among 10 officers to receive the award.

Sheets Evaluating Expanding Recycling

In the next few weeks, Mayor James Sheets said he hopes to determine what direction the city's recycling program will take in the future.

Since the bi-weekly paper recycling program began last May 1, the city has separated and collected 3,093 tons of paper. Presently, Sheets is evaluating four proposals to expand the program.

The mayor said the city could embark on weekly curbside paper recycling as well as a curbside collection of plastics and glass. Recycling metals is not an option at this time, he noted.

Sheets said he favors gradually expanding the present program since the city cannot afford the start-up of a broad recycling program given the fiscal constraints. He also believes it is not sensible to make too many modifications at one time.

"My feeling is that you have to learn to walk before you can run."

The city has received proposals from New England CR Inc., Laidlaw Waste Systems, Inc., Vining Disposal Systems and Browning Ferris Industries (BFI).

The city is now paying BFI $249,000 a year for the bi-weekly paper recycling program.

At least two of the bids are more than $2 million which Sheets said the city cannot afford now.

"We certainly don't have the money to appropriate, at this point, for a major recycling program."

The mayor also said he does not support mandatory recycling at this time. Some day, Sheets pointed out, the country may have to do it because of lack of resources "but we have not reached that point yet."

He is also against it because it would be difficult to enforce.

Chretien Cites Recycling Benefits

By JANE ARENA

Quincy residents separated and recycled a total of 3,039 tons of paper during the first year of the Quincy Recycling Program, according to Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien, Chairman of the City's Recycling Committee.

When the program began May 1, 1989, Chretien said his goal was to separate and recycle 4,000 tons of paper to save the city $100,000.

Chretien said the recycling program saved the city "a modest amount of money" in disposal charges for paper, although not as much as what was previously estimated.

This, he explained, is because midway through the first 12 months of the program, the city's disposal contract for paper was decreased from $91 per ton to $76 per ton. But what is important, he noted, is that the program did not cost the city any extra dollars.

Aside from financial savings, Chretien said, the recycling effort has accomplished environmental benefits as well. In its first full year the program has accomplished the following:

- Saved 51,663 trees from being cut down to make paper. This amounts to approximately two trees per household.

- Saved over 21 million gallons of water because making paper from recycled material uses much less water than making paper from virgin material.

- Saved over 12 million kilowatt hours of electricity, enough to heat over 3,000 homes for an entire winter. Making paper from recycled material also requires much less energy than making paper with original materials.

- Reduced the amount of air pollutants emitted into the air by 182,000 pounds.

- Saved 9,100 cubic yards of space in Massachusetts landfills.

Public Works Commissioner David Colton encourages citizens to continue their participation in the program.

Meanest Mother

Editors Note: The following anonymous article first appeared in The Quincy Sun eighteen years ago and from time to time since we have had requests from readers to reprint it.

Because Sunday is Mother's Day we feel it is quite appropriate this week to pay this tribute to all the "mean" mothers everywhere.

I had the meanest Mother in the whole world. While other kids ate candy for breakfast, I had to have cereal, eggs or toast. When others had cokes and candy for lunch, I had to eat a sandwich. As you guessed, my supper was different from the other kids too.

But at least I wasn't alone in my suffering. My sisters and two brothers had the same mean Mother as I did.

My Mother insisted upon knowing where we were at all times. You'd think we were on a chain gang. She had to know who our friends were and what we were doing. She insisted if we said we'd be gone one hour that we be gone one hour or less -- not one hour and one minute.

I am nearly ashamed to admit it, but she actually struck us. Not once but each time we did as we pleased. Can you imagine someone actually hitting a child just because he disobeyed. Now you can begin to see how mean she really was.

The worst is yet to come. We had to be in bed by nine each night and up early the next morning. We couldn't sleep till noon like our friends. So while they slept my Mother actually had the nerve to break the child labor law. She made us work. We had to wash dishes, make beds, learn to cook and all sorts of cruel things. I believe she laid awake at night thinking up mean things to do to us.

She always insisted upon our telling the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, even if it killed us -- it nearly did.

By the time we were teenagers, she was much wiser and our life became even more unbearable. None of this tooting the horn of a car for us to come running. She embarrassed us to no end by making our dates and friends come to the door to get us.

I forgot to mention, while my friends were dating at the mature age of 12 and 13, my old fashioned Mother refused to let me date until the age of 15 and 18. Fifteen that is, if you dated only to go to a school function, and that was only once or twice a year.

My Mother was a complete failure as a Mother. None of us has ever been arrested, divorced or beaten by his mate. Each of my brothers served his time in the service of this country.

And whom do we have to blame for this terrible way we turned out? You're right. Our mean Mother.

Using this as a background, I am trying to raise my three children. I stand a little taller and I am filled with pride when my children call me mean.

Because, you see, I thank God. He gave me the meanest Mother in the whole world.

What's Wrong With A Wife?

None of my daughters went to Wellesley College but I don't think they missed very much.

Not if some of the apparent snobs in this year's graduation class are any indication of what Wellesley is supposed to be all about.

Barbara Bush, they feel, isn't quite good enough for them to be their commencement speaker this year. She may be the First Lady but she's just a wife and mother, tagging along like a puppy dog at her husband's presidential heels, basking in his spotlight and in his achievements.

What could someone with that plain, dull background possibly have to say to impart further wisdom into the Class of 1990?

My God, a wife and mother as a commencement speaker! That's obviously a floor or two below their level and dignity.

What's wrong with a wife and mother? Those have been pretty honorable but tough jobs down through the years and more so today.

Especially if you are trying to be good at it.

A girl can go four years to Wellesley or any other college, come out with a fancy degree and diploma and later flop as a wife or mother.

It isn't easy to be a good wife or mother. Not every woman is a natural at it. Like not every man is good at being a husband or father.

Barbara Bush, from all accounts, has been both a good wife and mother -- and grandmother.

And so far she has been a pretty good First Lady -- in fact a role model -- down to earth, no fancy frills or baloney.

She spends a good part of her time helping the homeless, the poor, those who can't read and -- AIDS patients.

Barbara Bush is also an honest person.

BARBARA'S HUSBAND

You don't get honesty with a college degree. It comes before you get to college. Not at graduation.

We remember Barbara Bush when she visited The Sun office in 1979 during her husband's first campaign for president and she charmed the staff with her wit and honesty.

"I know that I'm not really up on some issues as I should be," she quickly confided.

"But," she added with a smile, "I'm a terribly good housewife."

She apparently still is.

Today she lives in the most famous house in the world -- also the biggest fishbowl -- and apparently is still as natural as she was here in Quincy 11 years ago.

She doesn't try to hide the white in her hair. She's not a clothes horse. She isn't tossing out the White House china. But according to one Washington report, she's replacing chipped plates one at a time.

Those who oppose Mrs. Bush being the commencement speaker at Wellesley should do themselves a favor and sit down front so they can be sure to hear what she is saying.

They might learn a little about life as it really is before they go out to try to carve a lofty niche in the world for themselves.

And get a close-up look at politeness, and humility.

THIS YEAR'S Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs, Louisville Ky. won by 10-1 shot Unbridled, was the 116th running.

But did you know, asks City Greeter Ernie Aristide, the very first winner, at Epsom Downs in 1875 was a horse named Aristide?

AUSTIN WICKENS, former executive director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, has a friend in West Dennis who is flying the Massachusetts state flag at half-mast.

"Because," says he, "the state is dead."

'Save The Earth'

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Here are some shopping hints to reduce waste at the source (supermarket). It is based on the fact that one of the most important components of recycling is the reduction on site. Becoming an environmentally aware shopper is a step towards that goal.

1. Bring your own shopping bag, recycle paper bags, and do not accept the plastic bags. Many companies claim their bags are biodegradable, when in reality, they are not.

2. Buy fresh fruits and vegetables, rather than canned ones.

3. Buy coffee in the "brick" form rather than in the can.

4. Purchase a permanent coffee filter in the gadget section of the House Ware Department. It does not fit exactly cut off a little excess to make it fit. This filter should last for years.

5. Buy milk in the paper carton, it is also safer for our health.

6. Buy juices and drinks in a concentrated form, and add water at home, saving your own energy as well as, omitting the use of large glass containers, which are not recycled in many of the communities.

7. Buy dry bleach rather than the liquid in plastic bottles, save yourself the danger of spilling and damaging clothes.

8. Other household cleaning products that are safe and non toxic are: baking soda, borax, vinegar, ammonia, and Murphy's Oil Soap.

9. Buy beans and grains in simple packages, rather than fancy heavy cardboard boxes. The cost of the box is about the same as the product inside.

10. Lastly, do not buy more than what you can consume.

11. Remember, the manufacturer does not assume the cost of the disposal of the packaging, this is absorbed by the cities and towns and its taxpayers, that is you and I.

HOW CAN YOU PROTECT YOUR LIFESTYLE?

Statistics show that a percentage of people will become disabled and be unable to earn a livelihood before they reach the age of 65. Sit down and figure it out. How much money do you need every month to pay the mortgage and car payments? How much do you need to buy food and clothing? What does it cost everyday to maintain the style in which you and your family have become accustomed to living?

Because disability can strike at any time, and because most of us do not have the resources to "tide us over" for a protracted income-less period, you should apply now for disability insurance. Furthermore, the older you get the harder it is to be economically insured. Putting off acquiring such protection until tomorrow may be devastating to your financial health the day after. With proper coverage, disability insurance can help you meet your everyday expenses without depleting your savings or other financial assets.

Council Cuts $145,343 From Mayor's Budget

After four meetings totaling 13 hours of budget deliberations, the City Council cut $145,343 from the $120,810,449 FY 1991 municipal budget proposed by Mayor James A. Sheets.

The new budget of $120,665,106 goes into effect July 1.

The council put about two dozen budget items on hold but only cut from five line items. They are:

- $43,000 from the Public Works Department. This cut eliminated the deputy commissioner of public works position.
- $33,000 from the police department. The council approved a reduction in the superintendent's position from $46,632 to $13,632 and then agreed to add the $13,632 to the $29,842 communications technician position. The superintendent's job is vacant because of a retirement.
- $14,000 from the Woodward School for Girls scholarship money and part-time help by college students.

- $5,343 from the City Council budget. Councillors agreed to shave the salary of the council's administrative assistant from $27,343 to $22,000. The position was recently vacated by Louise Brabazon who retired. The $22,000 reflects the starting pay for her replacement.
- $50,000 from the legal department. The council agreed to cut the amount allocated for court judgement costs from $200,000 to $150,000.
- Items held but then approved Monday by the council are:
- $37,500 for microfilming the city's payroll records.
- $38,613 to retain the position of forestry director.
- $1.4 million library budget.
- $250,000 for city's share of unemployment compensation.

- $20,000 for the Building Inspector's demolition fund.
- $18,221 to retain a police cadet position.
- $57,357 deputy fire chief position.
- $160,000 police overtime account.
- $400,000 fire overtime account.
- $30,000 fire sick leave buy back.
- $19,000 to retain a principal clerk's position (meter maid) position.
- $23,171 to keep a principal clerk's position in the Veterans Services department.

Several items sparked some spirited debate among councillors, especially on whether to keep the Veterans Services principal clerk position.

Ward 3 Lawrence Chretien proposed to cut the job, saying the savings could go toward rehiring a laid off teacher or adding to the department's benefits budget. Chretien also said he was upset that the position, which had been vacant because of a retirement, was filled Monday with the hiring freeze still in effect.

Graves Registration Officer Robert LaFluer said the veterans department recently lost three employees through retirement. Without the principal clerk, only one person would be left to process benefit applications.

Council President Ted DeCristofaro strongly disagreed with the idea. "Just because a person retires, it doesn't mean we no longer need that position. That department had been decimated—how can the director run the department with one person."

Voting in the minority were Chretien and Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Nutley.

UNION CHARGES INTERFERENCE

Local 5 of the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers completed its case against management of the Bethlehem Steel Co.'s Fore River Shipyard before the National Labor Relations Board.

The union charged that management interfered with the Employees Representation Plan in violation of the Wagner Act and demanded an election to determine an exclusive bargaining agent for the plant.

Trial Examiner Henry W. Schmidt, who had already listened to more than a million words of testimony covering 5,000 pages of transcript, said Fore River would open its case the following day.

JUDGE BACKS CITY

Judge Maurice Murphy in Quincy District Court ruled that Public Works Commissioner Ezekial C. Sargent acted in good faith and with proper cause when he laid off 15 city laborers.

The workers claimed that seniority lists sent to the city by Civil Service were incorrect and when that happened it was up to the commissioner to determine seniority standing.

Connie's Farm Cakes Made From Scratch

At Easter, our friends Connie and Keith sent over the most delicious cream-filled cupcakes (called farm cakes). They are made from scratch and certainly taste it, as you will see if you use this recipe.

CONNIE'S FARM CAKES

3 cups flour
2 cups sugar
1/2 cup unsweetened cocoa powder
2 tsps baking soda
2/3 cup vegetable oil
2 cups water
2 Tbsps cider vinegar
2 tsps vanilla extract

FILLING

8 oz. cream cheese (room temp.)
1 egg
1/3 cup sugar
pinch of salt
6 oz. semisweet chocolate chips
Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Lightly grease 2 muffin tins (this recipe makes 18 farm cakes). Sift together the flour, sugar, cocoa and baking soda in a large mixing bowl. Add the water, oil, vinegar and vanilla and beat at medium speed for about 3 minutes until well blended.

To make the filling, use a wooden spoon and cream the cream cheese. Add the egg, sugar and salt and beat until smooth and thoroughly mixed. Fold in the chocolate chips.

Pour the batter into the muffin cups, filling each about 2/3 full. Spoon two teaspoons of the filling into the center of each cake. Bake for 20 to 25 minutes or until cakes spring back when lightly touched. Serve warm or at room temperature.

'Jail And Bail' Cancer Unit Benefit June 6-7

Public officials, business leaders, media figures and assorted civic celebrities will be "arrested" and put behind "bars" Thursday and Friday, June 6 and 7, at 1200 Crown Colony Dr., Quincy, all to help support the work of the South Shore unit of the American Cancer Society.

The "Jail and Bail" fundraising project requires prominent jailbirds to call friends from their cell asking to bail them out through contributions to the Cancer Society. In the Jail-and-Bail process, victims are brought before a "judge," cited for horrendous offenses, mugged and sentenced. In striped prison garb they make their calls for bail.

Many of these victims will have agreed to be hauled off to jail for the worthy cause, but others may be taken into custody by surprise at the mischievous investigation of associates.

City Clerk John Gillis, who served in a lead role in a Jail-and-Bail last year, heads a large committee recruited from the nine communities now comprising the South Shore unit. Co-chairmen are Kevin Costello, Tom Koch and Marty Paul.

The South Shore unit of the Cancer Society carries on a program of public information, professional education and service to cancer patients in Braintree, Cohasset, Hingham, Hull, Milton, Norwell, Quincy, Scituate and Weymouth.

Quincy Remembers Lecture At Historical Society May 16

The Quincy Historical Society sponsored "Quincy Remembers" lecture for May will take place at the Adams Academy, 8 Adams St., Quincy, Wednesday, May 16 at 1:30 p.m. The lecture is free. Speaker Robert Marcotte's topic will be "John Roger, American Sculptor: The Norman Rockwell of the 1800's."

During the 19th century Roger produced hundreds of figures for the popular market, some are in museums and perhaps even in homes of our parents or grandparents. These figures were mass produced for a wide audience and depicted scenes of domestic life and later, of the Civil War.

Marcotte specializes in collecting Roger's groups. He is a postal employee and member of the Coast Guard Reserve and has devoted years to the research of Roger and in collecting his figures. Marcotte says that Roger was to the nineteenth century what Norman Rockwell was to the twentieth — a careful artist depicting American life.

Three groups of figures will be on display and Mr. Marcotte will include many slides in his presentation.

Refreshments will be served.

Sherrin Quintiliani Wins National Leadership Award

Competing against approximately 6,500 school winners throughout the U.S., Sherrin Quintiliani, a North Quincy High School senior, has won a national Principal's Leadership Award.

NQHS Principal Peter J. Chrisom, said the award includes a $1,000 college scholarship. One hundred and fifty of these awards were presented as part of the recent National Student Leadership Week, by the National Assoc. of Secondary School Principals (NAASP) and Herff Jones, Inc.

Principals in high schools throughout the country could nominate one of their student leaders. Winners were selected based on their participation in service organizations, clubs, and athletics; achievements in the arts and sciences; employment experience, and academic record. They also had to write about their personal leadership style and how it was developed through student activities.

"Sherrin has built a record of outstanding service and scholarship while in high school," said Dr. Timothy J. Dyer, executive director, NAASP. "Her leadership potential is clearly demonstrated by winning the Principal's Leadership Award. She's a fine example of the outstanding caliber of young people in America's high schools."

While at North Quincy High School, Sherrin has been a four year member of the Student Council, serving as vice-president in her junior year and president in her senior year. Also included in her list of achievements is being a member of the Italian Club, serving as vice-president each year; peer education, English peer tutor; blood drive chairperson; Pride Committee Executive Council; Students Against Drunk Driving; National Honor Society; Foreign Language Honor Society, and also North Quincy High School Homecoming Football Queen during 1989-1990.

Involved in the North Quincy school choir, Sherrin has also exhibited a great deal of talent in athletics, being named as a Suburban All-Star each season; cross-country; Winter and Spring Track, and a three-time Patriot Ledger All-Scholastic. Sherrin, captain of cross-country, Winter and Spring, is also captain of the swim team in the Fall.

A member of the Sacred Heart Youth Organization, Sherrin was chosen to represent her parish and travel to South America with the Por Cristo Organization, now serving on the Por Cristo Advisory Board. This Fall, Sherrin will attend the University of Vermont to study nursing.

Booklet Available On Careers In Real Estate Management

College students today often ask the same questions when making career decisions, regardless of the field.

They more than likely want straightforward answers to the following three questions:

1. What would I do in the job?
2. How would I get started in the field?
3. How much could I expect to earn?

Last fall the Institute of Real Estate Management (IREM) Foundation launched its nation-wide Real Estate Management Intern Program for college students interested in careers in real estate management.

In conjunction with this new program, the IREM Foundation created a booklet on careers in real estate management designed to answer these three questions. Students can obtain a free copy of the booklet, which includes information on the Foundation's new intern program, by calling or writing the IREM Foundation's Chicago office.

A career in real estate offers many challenges. The future demands increased attention to computer applications and technical ability, as well as the ability to analyze clients' needs, maintain critical attention to detail, and effectively communicate with a variety of people. The rewards can be great for the individual who successfully meets these challenges.

The new booklet is geared to a college audience and serves as an introduction to the wide array of career opportunities that exist today in the field of real estate management. Students will find specific information on the following:

- Who hires real estate managers

- Definitions of a property manager and an asset manager

- The variety of property which requires the services of a real estate manager

- Education and skills necessary to succeed in the field

- Starting salaries for entry-level positions in real estate management

- How membership in a professional association can enhance your career

- Ways to get your foot in the door with companies that hire real estate managers

One of the best introductions to a career is first-hand experience, and an intern program provides that. The IREM Foundation's Real Estate Management Intern Program offers a great introduction to the field. Through working with professional CERTIFIED PROPERTY MANAGER® (CPM®) managers, college students will be exposed to the high professional and ethical standards, educational opportunities, and networking opportunities of membership in IREM.

Anyone who has questions or would like to receive the careers booklet should contact IREM Foundation Coordinator, Jocelyn Lemish, at 430 N. Michigan Avenue, P.O. Box 109025, Chicago, IL 60610-9025, (312) 661-1930.

The IREM Foundation is a non-profit educational foundation that works to advance knowledge and professionalism in the field of property management through its research, publications, education, scholarship opportunities, and recognition awards. Support for its activities comes primarily from contributions from the Institute's CERTIFIED PROPERTY MANAGER® (CPM®) members, candidates, and ACCREDITED RESIDENTIAL MANAGER (ARM) participants. Donations are tax deductible as charitable contributions.

Real Estate Brokers' Role Improves Home Buying Process

Real estate brokers' involvement in mortgage origination is part of an evolution in home buying that is making the process quicker, more efficient and more streamlined, according to representatives of the National Association of Realtors.

The role real estate professionals have in providing additional services to buyers, and their right to receive a fully disclosed payment for doing so, was the focus of a session at the NAR Midyear Conference and Trade Exposition. About 6,500 members attended.

"Twenty-first Century Real Estate Broker: Restricted?" featured Len Druger, vice chairman of Citicorp Mortgage; Tom Griffin, senior vice president, Coldwell Banker Residential Group; Will Schwartz, president, Prudential Real Estate Affiliates; and Richard Schlott, president, Schlott Realtors.

A broker's ability to provide a variety of services, including finding a buyer for the seller and matching the buyer with a mortgage to complete the sale, represents the future for the real estate industry, Griffin said. The concept of "one-stop shopping," achievable through computer technology, is already applied in many other industries, such as the travel industry, he noted.

The consolidation of home buying services, and the perceived threat of lost mortgage origination business, has caused the Mortgage Bankers Association of America to try to legislatively block the right of brokers to be compensated for their work. In reality, there is no legal or ethical barrier prohibiting real estate professionals from receiving fees to cover the cost of services provided, the speakers said.

MBA's claim that receiving fees for the provision of services is a violation of the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act (RESPA) is baseless, Griffin said.

RESPA does prohibit fees paid for simple referrals to lenders that involve no work on the broker's part; and, NAR's policy supports a ban on such fees, called "naked" referral fees. However, the law allows the collection of payments for actual services rendered, Griffin pointed out.

Providing the most up-to-date mortgage information available for home buyers—information they expect—requires the installation of computerized networks. Brokers should not be expected to waive all rights to fees to recoup the costs for using the technology, Griffin said.

He discounted MBA's claim that NAR members are trying to charge a fee for mortgage location assistance they have long provided for free.

"If we have been providing free advice, then mortgage brokers should not be charging for their services," Griffin said.

If MBA's campaign, being waged at the federal and state level, is successful, then "real estate industry sophistication will diminish to the detriment of the consumer," Griffin said.

Expanded real estate services "is not a big Realtor (versus) small Realtor issue," he noted. "Small Realtors have the right to determine what kind of service they want to offer and not be regulated out of business."

Druger pointed out that the issue has, however, pitted Citicorp, the nation's largest mortgage banker and thus the largest MBA member, against the rest of MBA's membership.

"We believe in this (broker-assisted mortgage origination)," he said.

Through computerized home loan originations, real estate professionals are positioned to instantly provide purchasing options, qualify buyers and submit loan applications, cutting the time to closing from one to three months to as little as a few days, Druger said. Citicorp has found that its service results in a higher rate of closings, as well as quicker closings, in addition to customer satisfaction. Mortgage origination represents "a service of real value" to customers, he added.

The collection of fully disclosed fees from the buyer for mortgage assistance does not represent a conflict of interest for a broker receiving a commission from the seller, Druger noted.

"It's no disadvantage to the seller for the buyer to get the best financing possible from the Realtor," he said.

Schlott, whose company provides a computerized origination service, said his network offers a choice of up to 60 lenders—many more than generally are provided to a buyer by a mortgage broker. Originating the mortgage at the point of sale actually reduces costs for buyers, since a step in the home buying process—using the mortgage broker—is eliminated, he said.

"The consumer has to have access to one-stop shopping," Schlott said. "He might not use it, but he should have the opportunity."

According to Schwartz, the brokers' ability to offer a variety of services, along with their knowledge of local markets, represents the key to the continued success of the real estate industry.

With overall real estate activity expected to be slower in the years ahead, business expansion in the industry will result from the provision of new services, rather than increased sales, he said.

In the face of such an inevitable change, "those in weaker positions try to prohibit functional innovation," Schwartz said, cautioning NAR members not to "get boxed in" by MBA's efforts.

Computerization, used to provide information on neighborhoods and estimated home values, as well as mortgage selection, will enhance the personal involvement of brokers with sellers and buyers, Schwartz said.

"What makes it (the home sales industry) work is local experts, who can use technology to deliver services and products," he said.

Griffin concurred with Schwartz. "Realtors counsel buyers and sellers, and deal with emotional issues. That will not change."

The National Association of Realtors, the nation's largest trade association, is the voice for real estate, representing more than 800,000 members involved in all aspects of the real estate industry.

Spring HOME IMPROVEMENT

Vinyl Replacement Windows Attractive And Save You Money

By KEVIN HASKINS
Vinyl replacement windows are a popular item for homeowners, and for good reason.

They are attractive both inside and out. They'll save you money on heating, air conditioning and maintenance costs. You will never have to paint them. They're easy to operate and clean and they will not warp or rot.

More than anything else, windows can be the worst energy wasters in the home. However, a thermalized replacement window can dramatically decrease the energy loss through windows... reducing fuel consumption by 61%. Fuel savings alone will repay the investment.

Through the years, more and more people have replaced their wood and steel windows with vinyl. In fact, over 85% of home in Europe have vinyl windows. Not all vinyl windows are alike. Not all companies who sell them deliver the same service. Here's what to look for in your selection.

Do business with a reputable firm. In the window business, experience, longevity and reputation is an important issue. Learn as much as you can about the company providing the service and installation. Find out how long they've been in the area. Price is important, as is the quality of the product. If you don't have the confidence that the company servicing you will be around for the next twenty years, it won't matter how good the windows or promises are.

Get a free estimate. Make arrangements to have your windows measured. Obviously, the size and number of windows will determine your actual costs. Don't be misled by a ballpark quote. Have the company that is preparing your quote put it in writing, based on each window you have replaced. You should receive a no obligation estimate at a price the company will honor in the future. If you're offered a price that's only good for 24 hours, tell them thanks, but no thanks. You're about to buy a product that will save you money year after year. It's a good investment, but there is no need to rush into a decision.

Find out who will install the windows. You want the job done right. So don't be afraid to ask questions. Are the installers properly trained? Are they employed by the company? Will the work be done on the day it's promised? Will they clean up after they have finished? If you have a problem, who will come? Ask about the company's service department.

Look at the warranty. You are making an investment in your home, make sure you see the warranty. If there's a problem with either the windows or the vinyl components, find out who will back it up. You want service from a company who will be in business 20 years down the road.

Service is the name of the game. Look for it. Expect it before and after the sale. Vinyl replacement windows will bring your home a new, attractive look. They'll keep your home warmer in the winter and cooler in the summer. You'll never have to worry about painting windows again. When you decide to make the investment in your home, invest the time and make sure you get the service you deserve.

Protect your home with metal roofing

No part of your home is called upon to protect that structure quite like its roof. It is common sense, then, that your next roof should be selected carefully with performance first in mind.

Metal roofing was developed in the 1800s and many of these same roofs are still providing protection. But, most of those roofs looked agricultural or commercial. The answer for today's homeowners is Rustic Shingle.

Rustic Shingle aluminum roofing combines the dimensional look of wood shakes with the durability of metal. Available in ten baked-on Glidden colors. Rustic Shingle carries a 40-year limited warranty.

Aluminum shingles are ideal for all climates. They protect against ice build-up in the snowbelt and against attic heat build-up in the sunbelt. Because aluminum reflects radiant heat, cooling loads are reduced by up to 40 percent in comparison with other roofing materials.

'In Danger Of Losing Our Way'

Silber Warns At Prayer Breakfast

The 43rd annual South Shore Men's Prayer Breakfast was held recently at Freeport Hall in Dorchester.

Over 500 men attended the event with the proceeds used to help support the Protestant Social Service Bureau's Chaplaincy Program at Quincy Hospital.

Robert Steen, newly-elected President of PSSB announced that Kathleen Graves, co-minister of the Covenant Congregational Church, Quincy is the new hospital Chaplain.

The featured speaker, Dr. John Silber, currently on leave as the President of Boston University as a candidate for Governor, blamed the crises affecting society today in the industrialized west due to a decline in the church, a deterioration of the family and a lower respect for most institutions in general including the courts, the Congress, the works.

He said that in an earlier age it would have been natural to turn to the churches, if not to the schools and universities for an answer to questions faced today. But the institutions of the church, family, schools, universities and even of law are subject to the pervasive influences of our time and the general lack of direction and sense of identity.

"We are in danger of losing our way," he said. Many in the university, the school, even in the churches and the courts will admit that God has withdrawn from the ceremonies that we celebrate and from the principles for which we allegedly stand. The fault lies in the cultural disarray of our times. If we abandon our students and our children to the mindless Babylonian pursuit of pleasure we will have failed them. If we are not to forget Jerusalem but to remember Zion in the midst of Babylon we must make use of our religious tradition."

Silber said that "we can still sing the songs of Zion and we must sing them even by the Rivers of Babylon. If we retain these insights and allow our lives to be guided by them we will hold fast to our true heritage. We may still sing the songs of Zion, we need not forget Jerusalem."

Musical selections were provided by the Madrigal Singers of Eastern Nazarene College, directed by Professor Timothy Shetler. Shetler also directed a hymn sung by the large assemblage of men. George Rollins of Quincy was the organist.

Area clergymen participating in the program included the Rev. John Benbow, First Congregational Church, Milton; the Rev. James R. Hiles, Rector, Church of Our Savior, Milton; the Rev. Dr. Robert Houston, Parkway Community Methodist Church, Milton; Thomas McMillan, Student Associate, East Congregational Church, Milton; the Rev. Gary Blume, First Church, Weymouth and Rev. Mark Harris, First Parish Unitarian Church, Milton.

James G. Mullen, Chairman of the Milton Board of Selectmen, offered greetings from the Town of Milton. Robert Foster of Milton, the General Chairman of this year's breakfast, presided.

REV. FREDERICK ATWOOD-LYON, second from left, co-pastor of the Quincy Point Congregational Church, recently celebrated the 30th anniversary of his ordination. With him are, from left, Rev. Richard Sparrow, Association of Conference of Ministers for Central Area of Massachusetts Conference of United Church of Christ; his wife, Rev. Carol Atwood-Lyon, co-pastor of the Quincy Point Congregational Church; and Don Hunter, chairman of the Board of Deacons.

'The Wonders Of Christmas' Festival Parade Winning Theme

"The Wonders of Christmas," submitted by Rosemary Esdale of Wollaston, has been selected as the winning theme in the Quincy Christmas Festival Parade contest.

Esdale's entry was selected from 250 entries, according to Festival Chairman George White. Entries for the theme of the 39th annual parade were received from numerous communities south, west and north of Boston, White noted. Esdale, employed by the Internal Revenue Service and a former Quincy School Committee candidate, was "totally surprised and speechless" when informed of her winning selection.

Last week, the 28-member Festival Committee met and spent several hours before arriving at the winning parade theme. Many other outstanding entries were also submitted, said Mrs. Frances Flynn, chairperson of the Float Committee.

The committee agreed that "The Wonders of Christmas" offers participating organizations building a float diversity and flexibility in complying with the theme.

Best overall float receives $1,000 in cash and the Father Thomas Tierney Trophy. Second place is $500, third place $300 and fourth $200.

Floats are judged on how creatively they appear in meeting the parade theme.

More than 250,000 viewed last year's parade, billed as the largest Christmas parade on the East Coast. With the theme decided, organizations will be notified and parade float entry forms will be mailed shortly.

Flynn urges all organizations planning to participate to return their completed entry forms as soon as possible. For the past four years, the Committee has had to establish a waiting list. Even though two floats were added last year, a waiting list was still necessary.

"We are in the spring season, soon to be summer, and before we know it, the way time flies we will be viewing the 1990 edition of the Quincy Christmas Festival parade."

White added, "The Christmas Festival Committee is very appreciative of the general public's continued interest and participation."

Quincy Snaps Losing Streak With 11-2 Win Over Waltham

By TOM SULLIVAN

Quincy's baseball team, which had a 5-3 record in non-league games, lost its first five Suburban League games but ended the streak Monday with an 11-2 victory over Waltham at Adams Field.

The win gave the Presidents a 6-8 overall record (1-5 in the league).

Quincy will play at Brookline Friday, will host Brockton Monday at 3:30 at Adams Field and will be at Cambridge next Wednesday.

After scoring twice in the first inning against Waltham, the Presidents erupted for nine runs in the third inning. Tom Balzano, the team's top hitter, drove in four runs in the inning, one with a line single to left and three with a bases-loaded double to deep center. Pitcher Chad McMahon helped his own cause with a two-run single.

Waltham scored a run in the top of the third and tried a double steal for the tying run but the runner on third was gunned down on a bullet throw from catcher Balzano.

McMahon pitched an excellent game to improve to 4-2 with a three-hitter. He struck out seven and walked only one.

Balzano had a double and single. Steve Loud twosingles and Fred Regan, Steve McInnis and McMahon a single each.

Last Friday was a total disaster for the Presidents as Newton North hit everything thrown up and buried Quincy, 20-1.

Quincy dropped a 12-3 decision to Cambridge Rindge and Latin as Loud, McMahon and Mike Malvesti shared the pitching. Cambridge scored three runs in the first and iced the win with five in the fifth.

McMahon and Balzano had two hits each and freshman Robbie Kane had an inside-the-park home run.

The Presidents earlier lost to North Quincy, 7-1, as they were held to five hits by freshman Sean Donovan, son of the North coach who was called up from the jayvees to pitch his first varsity game.

The Raiders took a 6-0 lead after three innings and never looked back. Quincy scored its lone run in the fifth when Balzano singled, advanced to second on an error and scored on Regan's single.

"We have had troubles with our pitching, with some sore arms and our pitchers are young," said pitching coach Dave MacKenzie. "We have had to use youngsters against experienced teams. McMahon has done an excellent job for us."

"Let's hope this is a sign of better things to come," said coach Bob Sylvia. "Everything went our way today and everyone played a good game. I want to praise Dave MacKenzie, our pitching coach, and Nick Malvesti, who has joined our staff on a volunteer basis. Nick has a lot of experience and is a big help to us."

Malvesti, a Quincy star in the 1930s, coached Morrisette Legion for many years, winning several Zone 6 titles.

North Goes The Other Way

The North Quincy baseball team, after winning its first five Suburban League games, had its streak snapped Monday when four unearned runs gave Brockton a 4-2 decision. North is 5-1 in the league and tied with Brockton for first place and 9-5 overall.

The Raiders will again qualify for the Eastern Mass. Tournament by splitting their final six games. If they finish first or second in the league they will qualify for the second year in a row regardless of their record.

Leo Donovan's North team faced Cambridge Rindge and Latin Wednesday, is idle Friday, will be at Newton North Monday and will be home to Waltham next Wednesday at 3:30 at Adams Field.

Ace Erik DeBoer hurled another outstanding game at Brockton but again was victimized by errors. He has a 3-3 record and could easily be at least 5-1.

DeBoer leads the league in pitching, having allowed just 22 hits in 43 2/3 innings, struck out 69, walked only 14 and has an ERA of under 1.09.

North had nine hits and led, 0-0, after four innings. Brockton scored twice in the fifth and held the lead.

George Rozanitis and Dave Gamsby had two hits each and Jim Maloney belted a triple for the Raiders.

Last Friday North defeated Brookline, 7-2, for its fifth straight league win as Gary Rawdon pitched a four-hitter and struck out 11.

Mark Kelleher's sixth-inning single broke a 2-2 tie and the Raiders scored five runs. Kelleher finished with two hits and three RBI.

North defeated Quincy, 7-1, and the big news was provided by freshman Sean Donovan, son of the North coach, who was called up from the jayvees and pitched his first varsity game.

The lean southpaw proceeded to pitch a five-hitter and struck out nine.

"Not bad for a freshman," said Donovan. "He was a little nervous at first but once he got by the first batter he was in control. He had good poise and it is certainly a good confidence builder. We just wanted to take a look at him."

North wasted no time as it took a 6-0 lead after three innings. It started with three runs in the first when Jeff Calvert walked, Rozanitis and Jim Bryan reached on errors and DeBoer, the designated hitter, drove in two with a triple.

The Raiders added a run in the second on Tony Anderlonis' sacrifice fly and scored two in the third with Scott Dunn driving them in with a single. The final run came in the sixth on Calvert's RBI single.

Earlier North had edged Waltham, 4-3, as DeBoer pitched a three-hitter, struck out three and walked two.

Kelleher scored on an error in the sixth inning for the winning run. Calvert had two hits and an RBI and Bryan and Kelleher had a pair of hits each.

Rayner Optimistic Despite 0-2 Start

Quincy High boys' track coach Jack Raymer welcomed 48 candidates and, despite an 0-2 start, the Presidents have had some outstanding individual efforts, led by Capt. Chris Fay and sophomore Chris Walker.

Fay won the long jump and 100-yard dash and finished third in the triple jump against Newton North and Walker won the high jump and took second in the high hurdles and long jump. Walker and Fay also joined Mark Bogan and Scott MacPherson to give Quincy an impressive win in the 4 x 100 relay.

Also performing well have been Gary Collins in the javelin and discus, Mike Tempesta and Scott Buckman in the shot put, Keith Norris in the javelin, Bill Reardon in the 300 hurdles and 200 meters, MacPherson in the 400 meters, long jump and 100 relay and Dan Thackeray in the high jump and high hurdles.

Quincy's runners have been improving all the time and performed well against powerhouse Brockton.

The Presidents face Waltham and Cambridge Rindge and Latin next week and are awaiting the annual meet with North Quincy May 23 at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Golfing Not Allowed On City Parks

Raymond Cattaneo, executive director of the Quincy Park Department, reminds residents that golfing is not allowed in Quincy parks and playgrounds.

The Quincy Park and Recreation Board has firm guidelines regulating the use of Quincy's public recreational areas, and golfing has been prohibited for many years, he noted. With the growing popularity of golf as a sport, many golf enthusiasts have been using Quincy's parks to practice.

The Park Department is concerned because of the danger to park users and passing motorists in densely populated areas where golfing is a definite safety hazard. The damage done to the ball fields by digging up the turf also presents a maintenance problem for the Quincy Park Department.

Cattaneo also noted that the Police Department will assist the Park Department in reminding golfers to please stay off the parks and playgrounds.

Cattaneo also suggested that golfers use the two golf courses located in Quincy, the Furnace Brook Golf Club and the Presidents' Golf Course and he said there are driving ranges located nearby in Hanover, Holbrook, Dedham, Canton and Abington for golfers to practice.

Boys Under 10 Win 5th Straight

Quincy's boys under 10 youth soccer entry in Division 2 of the South Shore League improved its record to 5-0 with a 6-1 victory over Randolph last Sunday.

The team will host Brockton Sunday at 3 o'clock at the Atlantic field.

Chad Fitzpatrick opened the scoring for Quincy nine minutes into the game with an assist going to Paul Hussey. After Randolph's Clint Gallego tied the game, Fitzpatrick gave Quincy the lead for good with his fifth goal of the year with Kevin Cellucci assisting.

Left wing Robby Bell scored for Quincy just before the half ended with Fitzpatrick getting the assist.

Quincy applied relentless pressure in the second half with Mike Mulvey, Jerry Mulcahy and Nick Bissante having good scoring chances.

Mike Sullivan scored his second goal of the year with an assist to Steve Marks and Bell scored his second of the game unassisted. Sean Slattery finished the scoring, taking a pass from Chris Bregoli and beating the Randolph goalie.

Quincy's defense was immense in the second half allowing Randolph just one shot on goal. Standouts were Ben Burnes, Jamie Parisi, Jeff Marks and Randy Feetham. Tom Daley and Steve Marks shared the goalie duties.

In its previous game Quincy had blanked Sharon, 2-0.

Both teams had difficulty mounting any offense on the wet field at Sharon. Quincy's best chances in the first half came as a result of hard work by midfielders Bard Hajrizaj, Randy Feetham and Kevin Cellucci. Also playing well in the first half were Ben Burnes, Mike Mulvey and Robby Bell. Defensively, Danny Kinnecon, Jamie Parisi and Jeff Marks were outstanding.

Sharon's best chances to score came late in the first half with two indirect kicks in the penalty area, both from inside 10 yards. On the first an apparent goal was disallowed and on the other, goalie Tom Daley made a great punchout save.

The teams remained scoreless until the last 12 minutes of the game. Wing Sean Slattery fed Jerry Mulcahy, whose shot found the far right corner of the net.

Four minutes later, striker Paul Hussey drilled a shot through the goalie's legs with an assist going to Mike Sullivan.

Quincy nearly had two more quickly but shots by Sullivan and Nick Bissanti were turned aside.

Late in the game outside fullback Chad Fitzpatrick saved a goal with a diving slide tackle. Goalies Daley and Steve Marks combined for the shutout, the team's third in four games.

Keohane's blanked Burgin Platner, 7-0, as Jim Geary and Dave Keddy combined for a no-hitter, each pitching three innings.

Keohane's was sharp in the field with Scott MacPherson making some good plays at first base and combining with Geary and second baseman Keddy for other fine plays.

Jeff Keddy and Steve LeBer also sparkled on defense. Mike O'Brien had a fine game catching. Also contributing to the win was Pat Cummings, who shared the catching chores, Jason Fennelly, Robbie Winter, Pat McGann, Pat Coughlin, Ray Sartre, Danny Stock and Scott Howard. Ryan Herlihy missed the game due to illness.

The Elks defeated Kiwanis, 9-6, led by the outstanding play of Scott Cooper, the number one draft pick, who has led the team with solid defense behind the plate. He is only 10 years old.

John Riley was 4-for-4 and Cooper went 3-for-4. Brad Smith, Todd Sullivan and Fred Corson also had key hits and Dan Calnan, Steve Finn, Scott Pyer and Mark Glynn sparked on defense and Robbie Pirelli pitched a strong game.

Hockey

Executive, S.S. Leagues In Watt Memorial Games

The first Charles Watt Memorial hockey games were recently played at the Quincy Youth Arena between the Quincy Executive League and the South Shore Hockey League with all proceeds going to the Quincy Youth Scholarship Fund in Watt's name.

Watt was a member of both these over-30 leagues and players wished to honor his memory in this way. He suffered a fatal heart attack during a game last November.

Game 1 was played with only B players taking part. Both teams were represented by many former local high school and college skaters.

In the opening seconds the Quincy Executive players, Mike Manganaro, Joe Fribotte and Steve Lewis, had several good scoring chances but were stopped by the excellent work of South Shore goalie Billy Swanson. South Shore got on the board early with Joe Kelly scoring assisted by Mike Bergin.

Continued pressure was put on the South Shore players by Quincy forwards Jim Conso, Jack Hurley and Jack Duffy, but they were stonewalled by South Shore defensemen Ed Faherty, Glen Peterson, Mike McCormick and Bob Horan. The second South Shore goal was scored by Joe Malley with Kelly assisting. Kelly also scored the third goal with Fred Cashman assisting.

Time was running out on the Executive League, but Capt. Marty Tolson broke in over the blue line on a 3 on 2 situation giving the puck to Skip Manganaro, who passed to Paul Veneziano for the only Executive goal. Bobby Carroll, Bibby Lewis, Ken Gardiner, Don Bonito, Art Boyle and Peter Bertrand continued to pressure the South Shore players, Joe McLaughlin, Ed Corrigan, Joe Nash, Joe Sora, Kevin Hemaway, Ed Curran and Mike McCormick.

Begin scored late in the game with an unassisted goal for South Shore's final 4-1 margin of victory.

Executive goalie Joe Keating had 41 saves and Swanson had 36. Only four minor penalties were called, two on each team.

The Executive League team was coached by Al Gullickson and South Shore by Carl Nantel.

Game 2 was solely for first liners and the Executive League won a hard-fought 6-4 decision.

South Shore goalie Marc Nantel kept the Executives off the board until late in the first period when Jack Aldred scored assisted by Kevin Jago. South Shore came right back with a goal by Jim Costa with Dave Ethier and Mark Chisom assisting. It was an up and down game with the Executives dominating the first period with three more goals by Peter DiBona, Peter Janis and Kevin Jago and assists for Aldred and DiBona.

South Shore came alive in the second period, scoring three quick goals by Glynn, Rocky Rothwell and McCarthy with Morgan, Marty King and Joe Fell assisting, tying the game at 4-4.

If it wasn't for the steady defense of the Executive's Jack Erickson, Jay Powers, Ed Nolan and Chuck Bahenna and South Shore's Steve Walsh, Beau O'Shaughnessy, Johnson and McCarthy, either team could have taken the lead.

South Shore changed goalies in the third period and goalie Selbreit made some outstanding saves, but Mark Paolucci scored unassisted with a minute to play and Erickson put one into the open net with Jago and Chip Linscott assisting to clinch the win. Executive's Bobby Goodwin was outstanding in goal.

Anyone wishing to donate to the Quincy Youth Scholarship Fund in Watt's name can send donations in any amount to the Quincy Youth Hockey Association, 62 Murphy Memorial Drive, Quincy 02169, attention of Lorraine Rooney.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

A MOTHER'S TRIBUTE TO HER CHILDREN ...

"When I first looked at this tiny, wrinkled face and those little clenched fists, 'That was Mother's Day!' ... I have shared so many happy moments with you, some you may never realize were so important to me. Your first tooth, your first wobbly step and that most important first word. Those were all Mother's Days to me ... I watched you at play and punished you in time of need. I've had to share you with classmates, teachers and friends, and now some of you with husbands and wives. Sometimes I've even been a bit jealous. But those times you chose to share your thoughts and dreams with me ... 'That was Mother's Day!' ... We haven't always agreed on everything and many times you were told 'No' to certain things, but that is part of growing up and your respect for my decision meant so much to me ... I know the time has come for some of you and coming soon for the rest to make your own way in life, but never forget this, my children, as long as you love God and are well and happy each day will be Mother's Day!"

"Every mother has those tiny worn baby shoes and chewed toys and thousands of memories to look back on and the joy of watching you grow up and succeed to look forward to - and no matter if you are far away, the sound of your voice saying, 'Hi Mom - it's me.' That makes it Mother's Day." ... Unknown Author

A few words on FUNERAL SERVICE

Every Adult Should Have A Will

You need a will to prevent your estate being subject to probate. Without it, you lose control of how your estate will be divided by the courts.

Your will should be drawn up by an experienced lawyer. He will, in legal terms, prepare your instructions so that your wishes are bound by law and without costly court battles.

Both husband and wife need to have wills and brought up-to-date as needed. This, too, helps prevent possible family friction.

$3.4M In State Aid At Stake

SJC Decision May Save 60 City Jobs

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

A Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court decision ruling this week that Gov. Dukakis erred when he used a state law to withhold $210 million in local aid due cities and towns could lead to the rehiring of as many as 60 or more soon to be laid-off city employees, Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday.

On Monday, the state's highest court ruled that Dukakis erred when he withheld the $210 million in local aid last August. According to Auditor Robert Foy, Quincy's share of the local aid is $3.4 million.

Sheets said if the state allocates the lost aid, he would bring back as many laid off city employees as possible. He cautioned, however, that the ruling does not order the state to release the money.

Still, Sheets viewed the ruling as good news for the city of Quincy for two reasons.

First, it "raises the prospect" that Quincy will receive $3.4 million in the future. "Given the financial conditions at the state level, I'm not sure when that will be and when we get it is important because it will have an impact on the number of layoffs," he said.

Secondly, Sheets believes the ruling will set a precedent by forbidding future governors to withhold local aid. As a result, the mayor says Quincy will definitely be level funded in local aid for FY 1991. The payment is due next month.

The city's FY 91 budget, which takes effect July 1, is based on level funding. If the city's aid is cut, additional layoffs would probably take place.

The mayor said he would use the local aid money to bring the school, fire and police departments back to adequate levels. If the city receives the $3.4 million within the next seven weeks, Sheets said he would rehire the 32 teachers, 18 firefighters and perhaps some other employees who face being laid off. In addition, he would fill 11 vacancies in the police department.

"With the $3.4 million, we'd be able to bring those people back. But we don't know when this money is coming down."

Even if the city receives the money, the mayor said

Quincy still would not be "out of the woods" financially. That, he explained, depends on whether the city is level funded in FY 92.

"If the legislature level funds local aid in FY 92, we'll have to make cuts again. Any time we're level funded we take a step backward."

"Level funding is a negative. It means we have to cut positions."

The FY 91 municipal is based on level funding over last year. Because of escalating costs, the city was forced to prepare for the layoff of about 70 workers.

For example, the mayor noted that health insurance premiums soared by more than $2 million this year while special needs education shot up $600,000. In addition, the city spends between $500,000 and $800,000 to cover incremental pay raises for city employees.

Sheets said he was surprised by the court's 9-0 decision. "That's a very, very sound decision."

Incinerator Protest March, Rally May 20

Billed as a chance for concerned citizens to be "seen and heard," a march and rally to protest Clean Harbors' proposal for a toxic waste incinerator in East Braintree near the Quincy line will be held Sunday afternoon, May 20.

Ralliers should meet at Watson Park on Gordon St., off Quincy Ave., Braintree, at 1:30 p.m. The march will begin at 2 p.m. and proceed down Quincy Ave. to the Clean Harbors site on Hill Ave.

With important decisions regarding the incinerator expected this month, Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson urged Quincy residents to join with citizens from Braintree and Weymouth in the march.

Kolson, who helped organize the first tri-town rally three years ago, said, "If this incinerator has to be built in a densely populated area, we are asking for more problems than we can imagine."

Cleanup Saturday At QHS, Vo-Tech

Students, staff members and parents aided by Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson will clean up the grounds at Quincy High and Voc-Tech Schools Saturday.

The clean-up, sponsored by the Friends For A Better Quincy High School, will be from 9 a.m. to noon.

Peter DiBona, a landscaper and graduate of the high school will be the coordinator.

Others are invited to participate.

GERMANTOWN RESIDENTS were among the many residents who participated in Saturday's Cleaner, Greener cleanup effort. Cleaning up the Palmer St. area are, from left, Ainsley Morse, Rita Lund, Bobby Nevins, Alexander Morse, Betsy Morse and her baby, Rachel. Residents in Wards 1, 3 and 6 took part in the cleanup.

Sheets Seems Shying Away From Plastics, Glass Recycling

Mayor James Sheets, who has not made a final decision on expanding the city's recycling program, appears to be backing off a recommendation to include plastics and glass.

Last week, the Quincy Recycling Committee recommended expanding the bi-weekly collection of paper, glass and plastic.

The committee, chaired by Councillor Lawrence, also recommended the program as financially viable.

However, the mayor, who had a cost analysis of the program, said he was not convinced it was a cost-effective way to handle the waste.

"We have to be very careful not to end up losing money because with the economy in this city, when you lose money, you lose jobs," he said Tuesday.

Although Quincy collected 3,039 tons of paper from May 1, 1989 to May 1, 1990, the city actually saved only $12,156. By collecting the paper, the city saved $258,315 in disposal costs ($85 per ton). However, the program cost $249,000 to start up.

The city also spent $88,000 to promote the program and determine its feasibility. Thus, the real cost to the city, including heavy first-time expenditures, was $75,844.

With no start-up costs next year, Sheets said the city could save $40,000 next year if only paper is collected weekly. If the weekly program includes glass and plastics, the mayor said the city would probably break even or lose money.

For one thing, the mayor believes plastic and glass recycling will not be as popular among residents. "We do know you don't have the same enthusiasm (for plastic and glass) as you do with recycling paper," he said in his feeling stems from conversations with people.

Sheets has until July 1 to decide on four bids which he has received. He said a decision could be made within a week.

To promote the bi-weekly recycling program, the city spent $8,300, including $2,000 for calendars, $1,600 for newspaper announcements and $1,300 for brochures.

In addition, the city spent $79,700 on feasibility and consulting costs. The feasibility report alone cost

Permit Granted For Asian American Benefit Carnival

The License Board Tuesday granted a request from Janet Ellis, the City's Equal Opportunity Administrator, for permits for the Asian American Committee of Quincy to sponsor a benefit carnival June 12 through June 17 on land near the Jordan Marsh Warehouse, Marina Bay.

The land was donated by the Peter O'Connell Corporation.

The carnival will be put on by Fiesta Shows who recently held a carnival in Braintree. The event will feature rides, food booths and a petting zoo including a camel and an elephant.

Funds raised by the event will benefit programs sponsored by the Asian American Committee of Quincy.

Fiesta Shows gave the board an information sheet about the carnivals which state that all rides and games are state approved, all rubbish will be cleaned from the site, the carnival is fully insured, police details will be provided and that noise will be kept to a minimum.

Before the opening of the carnival, the Health Department will inspect all food booths, the Building Department will inspect all rides and tents, and the fire department will inspect to ensure that fire department access to the Jordan Marsh Warehouse will not be blocked and that ample parking will be available.

The permit was granted subject to the department inspections.

Board Imposes Restriction On Salvage Firm

By JANE ARENA

Ernie Bettuchy, owner of Ernie's Salvage, 16-22 Isabella Rd. was instructed by the License Board Tuesday to erect a sign advising that no delivery or drop off of salvage materials will be accepted at his business.

He was also told to notify his customers of the fact he will no longer accept deliveries but will have to pick them up himself.

The matter was before the license board for the third time and the board expressed hope it would be resolved.

Neighbors have complained to the city for years about the truck traffic in the residential "B" area and about noise.

The business has been in operation there for some 12 years, but neighbors say it has expanded with more noise and increased truck traffic over the last three or four years.

Atty. Robert Fleming, representing Bettuchy, told the board a pending action in Quincy District Court between Bettuchy and the Building Department has been continued on an agreement with the city.

Bettuchy has agreed to file with the Building Department for a necessary occupancy permit for a storage building on the location. The permit is pending.

Bettuchy has also "explored" landscaping for the area and will submit a plan to the Building Department soon and he has also agreed to "do his best" to control truck traffic in the area, Atty. Fleming said, but added that it could take "a good year" before all Bettuchy's customers are notified.

Fleming stressed that Bettuchy has been "making great effort" to satisfy the neighbors and said he is "doing all he can."

The matter was before the Zoning Board of Appeals in 1981 and a decision was made to allow the zoning variance in the residential "B" area provided that Bettuchy erect fencing and do landscaping work, demolish an existing shed on the land and erect a new building with the approval of the Building Department.

According to Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey that building had not been inspected and the permits were never sought until recently.

The matter was brought before the ZBA again in February and it was decided that an additional variance which would allow Bettuchy to cut, hammer and separate metal at the location would be detrimental.

Fleming told the board that he feels the ZBA went beyond its authority in imposing such restrictions, but said that Bettuchy has been trying to comply with them.

Catherine and Jean Hall, neighbors of the business, told the board that the problems still exist. They said Tuesday that the banging has continued and that trucks continue to deliver materials.

"We live there," Catherine Hall said. "He does not live there. He comes and goes."

Hall also said that a fence on the property has barbed wire on the top and that she has notified Gary Fine of the fence department on the matter.

Mulvey said that he has spoken to Bettuchy about the barbed wire and assured Hall that it would be taken down. Bettuchy was not aware that it was illegal, Mulvey said.

Board Chairman John Gillis and Police Captain Paul Nestor said they had visited the location two weeks ago, directly after the last hearing on the matter, and had found nothing wrong with it. They said it was clean and empty when they arrived.

Neighbors say that any clean-up of the area has been done since their complaints began in earnest and will likely will not last.

Mulvey said he anticipates that the problems between Bettuchy and the neighbors will be resolved soon because Bettuchy is taking steps to landscape, fence and clean up the area as well as making an effort to control the traffic.

Mulvey suggested that the "No deliveries" sign be erected as soon as possible and that Bettuchy keep notifying his customers that he will have to pick up materials from now on.

$769,850 Put On Hold

$1 Million Of CDBG Budget Gets Green Light

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The City Council Finance Committee passed a portion of the FY 1991 Community Development Block Grant budget while putting several items on hold Monday night.

The FY 91 CDBG budget totals $1,771,000. Of that, the committee passed five line items amounting to $1,001,150. Three other items totaling $769,850 were put on hold by councilors for further review.

The FY 91 CDBG budget is down $83,186 from last year. The FY 90 budget figure was $1,854,186.

Line items approved by the committee are:

- $258,513 for housing rehabilitation program support. City Planner Kevin Shea said the revenue is used to operate the Office of Housing and Rehabilitation which distributes loans and grants. The money also funds the salaries of four rehabilitation specialists, one financial specialist and a clerk.

- $350,000 for housing rehabilitation to cover grants, lead paint removal and making private homes handicapped accessible. The money does not include $67,000 from HUD Rental Rehabilitation program nor the $350,000 in the revolving housing loan fund.

- $30,000 to fund a rehabilitation specialist for Quincy Neighborhood Housing Service. Shea said the specialist conducts inspections.

- $50,000 for handicapped accessibility for non-profit organizations and public facilities. According to Shea, there have been more requests for this service in recent years. Councilor-at-Large Michael Cheney asked the Planning Department to make the Atherton Hough School handicapped accessible. Cheney said the school is also a Civil Defense headquarters. During Hurricane Gloria, some handicapped people had to be carried up the school steps, he noted.

- $12,150 for Elderly Minor Home Repair based at Beechwood Community Life Center. Shea said the money pays for a person who does minor home repairs such as replacing door knobs and windows.

Items placed on hold are $150,000 for affordable housing assistance, $265,650 for public service at local community centers and $354,200 for planning and administration.

Ward 6 Councilor Thomas Nutley asked for the affordable housing money to be held. Nutley wants $50,000 of the money to be set aside for rental assistance for those in need, particularly single mothers and battered women. The entire $150,000 is presently earmarked to assist homeownership by supplying qualified applicants with down payments on homes. Some councilors agreed with Nutley's intent, but questioned how such a program would be administered. Other councilors regretted the idea, saying the program could be abused or give renters "false hope."

Councilors Ted DeCristofaro, Timothy Cahill and Thomas Fabrizio agreed with the intent.

"Home ownership is important but it isn't always the need. While we have the money, we should look at some (rental) emergencies," Cahill said, adding that the money could help unemployed people pay their rents next winter.

DeCristofaro said he agrees with Nutley's idea but added, "It could get out of hand."

Fabrizio said the money could help qualified people find shelter by providing the first and last month's rent.

Councilors Michael Cheney and Lawrence Chretien rejected the proposal. Cheney, who believes the program would give renters a "false hope that there's another bank," added, "Once we open it up, there will never be enough money" to help everyone who qualifies for the assistance.

Chretien said he favors keeping the money earmarked for home ownership. Nutley, who said he was shocked by the "intense concern" from his fellow councilors, asked to put the item on hold. He also wants Jane Reikard, the city's executive secretary on the Rent Grievance Board, to give a presentation on rental assistance.

Fabrizio requested that $265,650 for eight public service community centers be put on hold. The councilor, who represents Ward 4, wants $3,000 to help fund the Southwest Community Relations program which provides after school care for 120 youngsters.

Shea said money cannot be added to public service to fund the day care program. If one dollar is added to the $265,650, the city would violate the cap. The city can only budget 15 percent of the total CDBG budget for public service.

Noting there are no community centers in Ward 3 which he represents, Chretien said he wants the 15 percent cap lifted. He also said he favors spending all the money for elderly outreach and youth services.

Several councilors opposed the idea. Although centers may be located in a particular ward, they said the facilities provide services for residents throughout the city.

The public service money would fund these community programs:

- Elderly Outreach ($105,282), Atlantic ($34,646), Adams Shore ($9,076), Beechwood ($18,000), Germantown ($36,482), Houghs Neck ($27,062), Quincy Point ($25,802) and Squantum, $9,300.

Chretien also tried to cut $260,487 out of the neighborhood public improvement budget. The money is targeted for street and sidewalk repairs, recreation and traffic improvements in low to moderate income areas.

Chretien said the money slights Ward 3 since there are few low to moderate income areas in that area of Quincy which need improving. Instead, he favored the money going to affordable housing and housing rehabilitation. His motion failed since no councilor seconded it.

Cheney asked for a hold on $354,200 for planning and administration. The figure is capped at 20 percent and covers seven salaries: one principal planner, three assistant planners, two secretaries and one financial worker.

Last year, $370,637 was set aside for planning and administration.

The budget will be discussed again Tuesday, May 29.

Food Mart Granted CV License

The License Board Tuesday granted a request from the Corner Food Mart, 1060 Hancock St., for a common victualer license, and for increased hours of operation. The store had previously not held a common victualer license.

Police Chief Paul Nestor said that there has not been problems with the manner of operation of the store in the past. He said he would alert the police officers of the new closing hours because they were used to the earlier closing.

They Do Know How To Raise Taxes

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
My most recent Quincy
Sun letter (April 5) concerning the paralysis of state government contained a

I was attempting to make.

The sentence which ran, "If there's still was out there (and I'm sure there is), then propose methods to curtail that waste," should have read,
"If there's still waste out there

Speaking of perceived Beacon Hill waste and the talk of needed new taxes, did you know that last year the nation's 50 states combined to raise approximately $4.5 billion in new taxes and that the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, alone, was responsible for a third of that total? This year's current budget deficit hovers around $710 million on the way to $1 billion before the end of the fiscal year on June 30 and the fiscal budget starting on July 1 is already in the red by more than $400 million. How long can this taxing situation continue and how steep the burden on the already overburdened taxpayers?

The real burden of proof is on the state legislature and governor to show cause why new taxes are needed to sustain services but taxpayers won't consider any new taxes as long as the perception exists that Beacon Hill polls are taking end-runs around protected areas of fatty waste.
If the polls are upfront and honest about cutting the budget down to manageable size, support for program and service funding will be found but resistance remains in the eyes and minds of the general public toward the crue of polls up in the Great and General Court who can't see the forest from the trees.

HOW MUCH ARE YOU REALLY WORTH?

In the event of a fire, flood, explosion, theft or other disaster that can destroy your home and its contents, do you know how much you stand to lose? Do you even know what items of value you actually have and where they were at the time disaster struck? Not many of us can answer
"yes."

Please inventory your valuables before disaster strikes, so that you can determine the amount of insurance you should be carrying, and so that you can claim the rightful amount for your losses. You can put an end to "educated guesses" which most times are way below actual value.

We suggest a room-by-room inventory of your possessions with photographs of the entire room and selected individual pieces of exceptional worth. We further recommend marking your valuables with security numbers, phone numbers or other personalized I.D.'s will help police recover these items. Small honing devices are also available on the market today. They are small and can easily be hidden in many items. They are remarkably effective in locating stolen goods.

No Rocking Chair For Ted

City Council President Ted DeCristofaro has a birthday coming up May 22 and is quite frank about which one it is: his 67th.

But don't take up a collection for a rocking chair for him. He's not about to retire from the local political arena.

"I feel good," he says. "Right now, DeCRISTOFARO
I would say I will probably run again."

DeCristofaro is in his fifth two-year term as Ward 2 councillor and wouldn't mind a sixth to make it an even dozen years.

DeCristofaro's low-key style has been to do his job quietly and let others do the talking. He has a grass-roots approach to problems and issues — knowing his ward like the back of his hand. He grew up in Quincy Point as did his wife, Betty.

When there's work to be done, DeCristofaro doesn't hand it to someone else to do. He pitches in. So does the family.

Like last Saturday, he, Betty, daughter Ruth McInnis and grandsons, Tom, 12, and Mark, 10, spent the morning distributing some 2000 fliers generating support for the "March and Rally" set for this Sunday to protest Clean Harbors' proposed toxic waste incinerator at the Braintree-Quincy line in the Fore River basin.

Protestors will meet at Watson Park on Gordon St. off Quincy Ave., Braintree at 1:30 p.m. and march on Clean Harbors on Hill Ave.

DeCristofaro's main opposition to the toxic incinerator is the proposed site.

"It's the wrong place," he says.

There is an estimated 30,000 people living within a mile of the site and 200,000 within five miles.

The proposed incinerator would burn 45,000 tons of toxic waste a year.

"That's not the place to be burning that stuff," says
DeCristofaro. "It's too close to too many people."

Whenever there is a meeting, a hearing, a protest concerning the incinerator, DeCristofaro is there helping to lead the opposition.

He doesn't know whether the people will win this one or not. The state needs an incinerator and Clean Harbors is already located there.

But if the state needs the incinerator, there are plenty of other places — safely away from homes — where they could put it, says DeCristofaro.

The area already has enough fumes and air pollution with a soap factory, oil storage tanks, and Clean Harbor's own waste treatment plant. And coming: a sludge facility.

DeCristofaro would like to stop the toxic waste incinerator from adding to the environmental problems already there.

But if he isn't successful he wants the people in the area — his people — to know he tried. And he wants to know down inside that he did.

DeCristofaro loves his native Quincy Point and doesn't like anyone or anything hurting the area.

Maybe that's why he is thinking of running at least one more time.

CONGRESSIONAL TRIBUTE: Win Bettinson and Herb Fontaine who recently retired from WJDA after a combined 72 years in radio broadcasting (Bettinson 38, Fontaine 35)
have been cited in the Congressional Record.

FONTAINE BETTINSON

Congressman
Brian Donnelly inserted a tribute describing the pair as two of Quincy's "finest community servants."

"Their performances were stellar," Donnelly said of Bettinson's and Fontaine's on-the-air work during the Blizzard of '78 when WJDA was the main source of communications for the South Shore area during the height of the storm.

"Over the years," Donnelly said, "their continued coverage of local news and sports made WJDA the giant among South Shore radio stations despite the expanding signals from the much larger Boston stations
..." Because of the local tilt, you would be hard pressed to find anyone in the area that did not depend on WJDA for weather forecasts, traffic reports and local news updates."

And, he added:

"Because of their immense knowledge of the area and dedication of time to the local issues, Mr. Speaker, their voices will be sorely missed and difficult to replace."

SENATOR JOHN KERRY will be the featured speaker Sunday at a Quincy Democratic City Committee fundraiser.

KERRY

The 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. event will be held at the Center Stage Restaurant in Quincy Fair, Hancock
St., downtown Quincy.

Tickets are $15 and may be obtained by contacting
City Committee Chairman Daniel Raymondi at 479-

Chretien, speaking for the Committee in a letter to that financial constraints should not delay the implementation of the benefits outweigh the relevant fiscal concerns."

"It is felt that a weekly program would significantly thus offsetting the higher cost of weekly collection."

Chretien also said the committee is convinced that recycling is the primary step in not an "extra" step, and therefore, should not be considered to be a cost above

CHRISTOPHER KENNEDY

A PLAQUE Dedicating Christopher F. Kennedy Hall at Northeastern University is unveiled by Northeastern President John A. Curry (left) while Mrs. Mary Kennedy and Northeastern Chancellor Ken Ryder look on. Kennedy, a 13-year member of the Quincy School Committee served with Northeastern for 40 years. He was Vice President of Administration when he retired in 1988.

Christopher Kennedy Hall Dedicated At Northeastern U.

Christopher F. Kennedy Hall at Northeastern University was recently dedicated to the memory of the Quincy resident who served the University 40 years from 1948 to 1988.

He was also a member of the Quincy School Committee for 13 years, and served as president of the Massachusetts Association of School Committees. He died in 1989.

John A. Curry, Northeastern University president, said of him:

"Christopher Kennedy was above all a gentleman and a scholar. Beloved by generations of our students for his caring attitude and warm manner, Chris was relentless in his determination that services be responsive to the educational needs of Northeastern students of all generations...It is indeed fitting that we honor his memory and his legacy by dedicating a student dormitory to him, for after all, students were his everything."

Mrs. Mary Kennedy, his widow, said, who took part in dedication ceremonies, "we were all very honored and we all feel very good as the family and I think of my husband as someone very special."

"I mentioned Will Coney, in the audience, a friend from Boston Latin School who urged him to go to Northeastern. Chris thought he would come for one year to see if he liked it. He obviously liked it very much as he stayed for 40 years.

"All eight of our children graduated from Northeastern, two with Master's degrees."

"Chris knew about the dedication before he died," she added, "thanks to President Curry, and we were both thrilled."

After spending nine years in the mathematics department, Kennedy became Dean of Freshmen in 1957, and Dean of Students in 1969. In 1980 he was appointed Dean of Administration and five years later became the Vice President of Administration, where he remained until his retirement in 1988.

Kennedy was a graduate of Boston Latin School and of Harvard University in 1946, his education interrupted for two years when he served the Navy in World War II in the Pacific.

Kennedy Hall was originally constructed in the early 1920's as 115 and 119 Hemenway St. In 1975 Northeastern University acquired the two buildings that are now home of 95 men and women. The two buildings are joined together internally on the ground floor.

Quincy's Yesterdays

500 Increase In School Enrollment

School Supt. Dr. Paul Gossard announced that nearly 1,700 first graders will be starting school in the Fall of 1993, bringing the total enrollment to more than 13,300, an increase of 500.

Dr. Gossard said some of the crowding in the Quincy schools is expected to be relieved when the new four-room wing of the Snug Harbor School is ready for occupancy, probably at Christmastime.

Until then, he said, three classes from Snug Harbor would be bused to the Hunting School and the basement library at the Wollaston School and the auditorium at the Merrymount would continue as classrooms.

BROAD MEADOWS TITLE CLOUDY

Assistant City Solicitor Douglas A. Randall stunned city officials when he gave the opinion that the city's title of 136 acres of land in Broad Meadows is in doubt.

The city was entertaining two proposals to purchase part of the city-owned land in the area.

One was an offer of $500 an acre for 55 acres by Grossman Enterprises, which was planning to move to more spacious headquarters from its current location at 130 Granite St.

The other was from Frederick Bailey and Gilbert Mason, who were offering $2,000 for 11 acres of land on which they operated a golf driving range under a lease due to expire in May, 1992.

Meanwhile, John Marshall of the State School Building Assistance Commission was in town to investigate the Broad Meadows area as the possible site for a proposed new junior high school.

COUNCIL VOTES PARKING

The City Council instructed City Manager William J. Deegan Jr. to apply for authority to borrow $275,000 outside the debt limit to acquire land for an addition to the east side parking lot.

The Council vote was 6-1 with Councillor David J. Crowley in opposition.

Chicken Eggplant Bake

From Ann Marie

After a busy weekend which resulted in our daughter Suzie and her family moving to Rhode Island, our other daughter, Ann Marie called me on the phone and invited us to dinner.

What a welcomed phone call and a delicious meal that followed. Naturally, I had to take down the recipe and share it with all of you. It's chicken and eggplant bake made with a light batter. We loved it and I'm sure you will too. It can be made ahead of time and is lower in calories than using bread crumbs.

ANN MARIE'S CHICKEN-EGGPLANT BAKE
2 or 3 Tbsps oil for frying
About 1 Lb of chicken slices (cutlets if you wish) 1 medium sized eggplant (peeled and sliced) tomato sauce munster cheese (or shredded mozzarella)
1 egg
a couple of Tbsps of flour 1 cup or so of skimmed milk
salt and pepper to taste

Make a light batter, beating the egg, flour and milk together. Heat the oil and quickly saute the chicken and then the eggplant after dipping them in the batter. Drain and set aside.

In a slightly greased baking pan, layer a little sauce on the bottom of the pan first, and then the chicken and eggplant topping each row with the cheese and more of the tomato sauce. Bake in a 350 degree oven for about 30 minutes and serve with your favorite pasta. Ann Marie served it with linguine and an antipasto.

How To Spot A Con Artist

While you cannot identify a con artist by his looks, you can often spot him by the words he or she uses. Here are some that should trigger your suspicions.

Cash: Whenever you are asked to turn over sizeable amounts of cash, be cautious. You should ask "why is cash necessary?" Consult with others before making your own decisions on large cash transactions.

Secret Plans: Be cautious of being drawn into secret deals wherein you are asked to surrender anything of value without telling anyone. Why are you being asked not to tell anyone?

Get Rich Quick: Any scheme that promises you rich rewards quickly should be carefully investigated.

Something For Nothing: A retired swindler once said that any time you are promised something for nothing, you usually get nothing.

Contests: Be sure they are not just a "come-on" where everyone "wins" something. Be careful, you are usually being drawn into some money-losing scheme.

Home Improvements: The very best investment you can make is to spend a little time investigating the reputation of the people with whom you are dealing. They should be reputable and have satisfied customers. It is often advisable to get estimates from several different firms so that you can compare home improvement costs. Be cautious of door-to-door solicitors and itinerant contractors.

Contracts: It is unfortunate, but homes have been lost as a result of signing a mere TV repair contract. Signing a contract is not a frivolous matter. The contract may be secured by a deed of trust to your home. It may include a provision that failure to pay on time will permit a judgement to be entered against you. Contracts in most states can be sold to a bank or finance company for collection. Although these institutions have no responsibility for the quality of the product delivered or the work performed.

Haste: Be wary of any pressure that you must act immediately or lose out.

There is no better insurance than dealing with reputable or recommended businesses or persons.

Some good rules for self-protection from con-men/women.

- Do not discuss your personal finances with strangers.
- Do not expect to get something for nothing, especially from a stranger.
- Do not draw cash out of a bank at the suggestion of a stranger.
- Do not be too embarrassed to report the fact that you have been victimized or swindled.
- Do testify in court, if asked, to help stop this type of crime.

Bryan VFW Post Holding Buddy Poppy Drive

The George F. Bryan Veterans of Foreign Wars Post will conduct its annual Buddy Poppy Drive today (Thursday) through Saturday, May 19 from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. throughout the Quincy area.

The poppies honor those who died on foreign battlefields by bringing aid to those who fought beside them.

Rain dates are Thursday, May 24 through Saturday, May 26. Joseph Sullivan is sale chairman and Vera Sullivan is co-chairman.

The V.F.W. Buddy Poppy is made by patients in veterans hospitals throughout the United States. The work provides needed therapy for hands and minds crippled by the ravages of war, and the pay earned provides a few simple luxuries to ease the boredom of hospital life.

Keeping with its pledge "Honor the Dead by Helping the Living," the sale is conducted exclusively by volunteers and the VFW dedicates the profits to the aid and assistance of disabled and needy servicemen and veterans, and the widows and orphans of deceased veterans.

The poppy sale helps fund counseling service for disabled veterans, entertainment of hospital patients, assistance to servicemen and direct aid to needy families.

After more than a century, the poppy still brings its message of hope to those who have borne the brunt of battle.
